

Appeal to Nixon: Halt O'Hare Expansion

Twenty suburban communities will appeal to President Nixon to stop expansion of O'Hare Airport.

Members of the O'Hare Area Noise Abatement Council will ask the President to deny a land conveyance of 365 acres from the Department of Defense to the City of Chicago.

The tract, part of a military reservation at the northwest corner of the airport near Mannheim and Higgins roads, is the site of a third northwest-southeast runway and an international terminal building, said council representatives this week.

George Franks, a resident of Wood Dale and chairman of the council, said Tuesday the municipalities are formally protesting the expansion of the "world's busiest airport." Included are Addison, Bensenville, Wood Dale, Roselle, Itasca, Bloomingdale and several Cook County Communities.

FRANKS SAID the city plans to obtain the acreage for $1 from the Defense Department. The land is valued at $123 million, he added.

Without the conveyance, O'Hare will not be able to expand," he said. "We want the President to deny the request to convey the federal land."

Franks said the expansion of O'Hare would affect the lives of residents of 30 surrounding municipalities — approximately 1.5 million people.

He said a public meeting next Wednesday in Bensenville's Fenton High School will be held to allow residents to express themselves on the issue. Sen. Ralph T. Smith, R-Ill., may appear at that meeting, he said.

He predicted 2,000 residents would attend the meeting. "The turnout will tell us what our next action will be," he said.

WARREN EDWARDS, a commercial pilot and resident of Elk Grove Village, said the city plans to add three more runways to O'Hare as funds become available. The additional runways would affect all communities, he said.

O'Hare would have nine major runways in all. It currently has five, with one under construction.

A northeast-southwest runway requiring the relocation of Irving Park Road near Bensenville is presently being built.

It is the object of a suit by Park Ridge officials, who contend it was approved by the city without adequate notice to suburban communities.

Park Ridge is expected to be part of another suit, joining Schiller Park and Bensenville in asking that the city curtail further expansion until proper noise and air pollution devices are devised for jets.

The suit is expected to be filed in Republican DuPage County, where the court may be more sympathetic than if filed in Democratic Cook County, where Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley is a strong proponent of airport expansion.

3,000 Seek Overpasses

The State Highway Commission has received about 3,000 signatures on petitions or letters from Bensenville and Wood Dale residents asking for pedestrian overpasses be constructed over the proposed Rte. 83 improvement through the two villages, according to John Bell, member of the state bureau of planning.

Tuesday night Bell told the Bensenville Chamber of Commerce the Village of Bensenville has also gone on record as recommending overpasses be included in the improvement plans.

Earlier this month, the state held a public hearing to allow area residents to voice their recommendations for the proposed improvement between Memorial Street and Thorndale Avenue.

AT THAT TIME private citizens and civic organizations recommended the pedestrian overpasses be constructed at Second Avenue, Grove Street and Hillside Street and a special pedestrian structure be constructed over the Milwaukee Railroad tracks. Citizens were given ten days after the hearing to offer other recommendations to the highway department in Elgin.

Tuesday was the deadline for citizen to formally react to the Rte. 83 proposal. "We have two problems in getting the results. We do not have enough people in the offices to work on this and we have not received the transcript from the hearing," Bell said. He added the transcript would probably be submitted by the end of this week.

In the meantime, Bell said the highway engineers were willing to meet with any homeowners, or citizens organization to explain the proposed improvements.

"We will speak with any person anytime," Bell said.

BEFORE THE FINAL plans are made, Bell said the staff would have to submit its recommendations (compiled from engineering surveys, reports and public recommendations) to the Springfield Bureau of Public Works for approval. It would be four to six months before final plans could be announced, Bell said.

"We respect your opinion," Bell told the Chamber members. "All of you are highway engineers because you have driver's licenses."

Other plans the highway department has for improvements in the area include resurfacing of Rte. 19 (Irving Park Road) through Wood Dale. Bell indicated initial plans did not call for the widening of Rte. 19, but "if we can get the village (Wood Dale) interested we will improve the intersection at Wood Dale Road and Rte. 19."

"DuPage County is the fastest growing county in the state," Bell said. The major factors contributing to the problems of the county are "people, cars and travel."

"In 1960 313,000 people lived in DuPage County. In 1968 there were 426,000. From 1950 to 1960 the number of cars in the county increased from 57,000 to 141,000. There were 232,000 cars in 1968. The daily travel in DuPage County is three billion cars over 800 miles of roads or over 11,000 vehicles for every mile of pavement."

BENSENVILLE'S BLACKHAWK Junior High School student council presented a console sewing machine and a weaving loom to the Bensenville Home Society Wednesday. The gifts were bought by the student council with

Fenton High School Dist. 100 in Bensenville received a two prong assault Tuesday night with the announcement of a possible loss of accreditation status with the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools and with the resignation of Kenneth Carroll, assistant superintendent of business affairs for Bensenville public schools.

The administration indicated the negative repercussions of the educational curtailment program attributed to the accreditation prompted board members to recommend measures to upgrade the high schools status with the association.

"The board wishes to upgrade the standards of Fenton — this should be our position," Board Member Arthur Riche Richter said.

The administration recommended "the board of education, the administration and a Citizens Advisory Committee develop a plan of action to regain full status."

Fenton, which has been accredited by the NCA since 1937, has been allowed one year to upgrade the educational program to meet the association's standards.

"THE PROFESSIONAL staff feels this is very serious," said Martin Zukerman, superintendent of Bensenville public schools. This situation is like a doctor being dropped from the American Medical Association. I would think twice about visiting him.

"We need to get the support; we need to provide a more adequate education."

"It is interesting as well as frustrating and disappointing to have this happen just when the junior high school received accreditation from the NCA."

Although the NCA notification indicated a lack of community support as a possible reason for the downgrading of Fenton's status, Zukerman cautioned "nobody can point the finger at anybody else. I'm merely stating this is a very difficult situation."

BOARD MEMBER James DiOrio is concerned the public might interpret the possible loss of accreditation as a "threat" to get an educational referendum passed in the district. Four consecutive Dist. 100 educational referendums have been defeated in the past two years.

"In anticipation of the possible accreditation loss, we purposely kept the subject out of the last two referendums," DiOrio said. "If we emphasize the accreditation loss, then the public may feel we are threatening them."

Industrial Fight Backed

by DICK BARTON

Members of the Mohawk Terrace Homeowners Association voted unanimously Tuesday to endorse their board of directors in pursuing the fight against the industrialization of their area by Elk Grove Village developers.

After being told by a local Realtor that their homes, presently valued at $35-45,000 and up, would be worth no more than $25,000 if industrialization surrounded them as proposed by developers, the members indicated they would take the matter to the U. S. Supreme Court if necessary. The only trouble will be legal fee costs, but the members will hold various fund-raising events such as an Antique Sale on June 6 from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. at Central and Devon avenues to raise the money.

MOHAWK ATTORNEYS have said it would cost at least $20,000 to take the matter to the highest court in the land.

Members decided Tuesday to only commit themselves to fees up to the expected Cook County court decision on the recent fight with Elk Grove Village and Trummel Crow Co. of Des Plaines who intends to buy all the land around them for industrial use in line with the Elk Grove master plan.

A decision on the trial which ended two weeks ago is expected in late June or July.

The Mohawk suit challenges the industrial zoning and annexation to Elk Grove of 205 acres of land to the west of the subdivision along Devon Avenue, west of

BESIDES FIGHTING the industrialization in court, the group is thinking about getting an owner of a nearby piece of land to zone his property commercial and annex to Wood Dale or Bensenville in an effort to block the encirclement by Elk Grove.

If the area was eventually completely surrounded, the homeowners feel the developer would start buying individual lots on the perimeter of the subdivision until the area was less than 60 acres of unincorporated land. If that happened, Elk Grove could force annex the area and the "death of the residential area" would be near, according to residents.

The groups feels no matter what the court decides, an appeal by one side or the other will follow. The additional court costs will have to be approved by the membership following that decision before the group will proceed.

Drama Department Slates Three Plays

A Russian farce, a Dylan Thomas voice-play and a play satire will be featured on Bensenville's Fenton High School stage tonight and tomorrow night.

Three one-act plays, "The Boor" by Anton Chekov, "Under the Milkwood" by Dylan Thomas and "Aria de Capo" by Edna St Vincent Millay, will be presented by the Fenton drama department in the Little Theatre at 8 p.m.

Tickets are available at the door and are $1.25 for students and $1.75 for adults.

The Big House Reopened

The Big House Tavern Restaurant, 211 E. Lake St., Addison, was open for business as usual Wednesday following a two-week shut-down ordered by the DuPage County Health Department.

The Big House has been juggling violation notices like hot potatoes for the last nine months, precipitated chiefly by the Addison Fire Department and the county health department.

"We revoked their license on May 6 because it failed to meet the minimum requirements of the food handling ordinance," said Gary McCullough, chief sanitarian of the county health department.

McCullough said the revocation was based on several violations that related to maintenance and upkeep, but would not specify what the violations were.

"WE REINSTATED the restaurant's license at about 2 p.m. today,"

McCullough said, "because they corrected the violations we had listed."

McCullough stated that the law required the health department to inspect all the restaurants in DuPage County a minimum of twice a year, but that some had to be inspected more frequently, some as often as once a week.

An Addison fire department official, who asked not to be identified, said that the department issued the restaurant a violation notice on several delinquent items back in July, 1969.

"The restaurant has been receiving extensions to correct the violations at 30 day intervals," the official said.

According to Stuart Buffington, part owner of the Big House Restaurant, there were several things at the restaurant which needed correction because repairs were put off too long.

"THERE WERE some things," he said. "For one thing, we had no self-enclosed dumb waiter, that is, it had no doors. None of the violations were very complicated." This was the only violation Buffington would mention.

"I'm waiting to see what happens now," Buffington said. The owner stated that he would be meeting with officials of the village of Addison within the next few days to discuss "other problems" that might be brought up in the future.

Attend Church Synod

Pastor Robert R. Lesh, of St. Matthew Lutheran Church, 7N055 Catalpa St. in Itasca, will be among the 600 delegates expected to attend the eighth annual convention of the Illinois Synod of the Lutheran Church in America, May 22 in Rockford.

The convention sessions will be held at Zion Lutheran Church in Rockford. The Rev. Dr. Gerald K. Johnson, Synod President, will preside at the sessions and preach at a combined Ordination and Communion service scheduled for Sunday, May 24, at the First Lutheran Church in Rockford.

Accreditation Ball, Chain

by LINDA VACHATA

What effect would the loss of the North Central Association's accreditation have on college bound graduates of Fenton High School serving Bensenville and Wood Dale?

Fenton administration officials contend the loss of accreditation might hamper Fenton students' efforts in getting college admissions.

Most universities and colleges in the United States list among their requirements for admission "graduation from an accredited high school."

Wednesday the Register contacted several university and college admission counselors in the area to determine what difficulties, if any, a senior graduate from a non-accredited high school might face.

MOST OF THE admissions counselors agreed the lack of accreditation at Fenton might result in "negative connotations," but they added the schools they represent would most likely admit such students if the general admissions requirements were met.

"There are a number of high schools in the Chicago area like Chicago Latin that are not accredited, but that does not mean the students don't learn anything there," said Helen Navolio, admissions counselor at the University of Illinois, Chicago Circle Campus. She added students from a non-accredited high school might be asked to take the GED (General Examination Degree) test, but those are "very simple."

GED tests are usually administered to people who have not graduated from high school and the test can be validated as a diploma from high school, she said.

"As long as the student scores above 24 (slightly above average) on his ACT (American College Testing) test and meets other admissions requirements we will accept him," said Kathleen Dice, admissions counselor from Northern Illinois University (NIU). She added the GED test might be required for graduates of non-accredited high schools.

While the College of DuPage maintains some of the most liberal admissions requirements in the state, Northwestern University has the strictest.

"WE WOULD GO ahead and admit students from a non-accredited high school," said James Williams, admissions counselor at the College of DuPage. "The College of DuPage does not require a high school diploma, so this would not affect us."

At the College of DuPage, anyone who is 18-years-old or over is eligible for admissions, according to Williams.

Since the College of DuPage, NIU and the U of I are public schools, their admissions policies are expected to be more lenient than a private institution.

At Northwestern University, only students rated in the top tenth of their class are usually eligible for admission, according to Mrs. Peggy Walter, associate director of admissions. Mrs. Walter indicated a graduate from a non-accredited high school "might" be considered for admission, but this would depend upon "why the school lost its accreditation."

IT WOULD APPEAR graduates from non-accredited high schools would have little difficulty entering a college or university in Illinois, but the selection could be cut considerably if the student chose to go out of state.

"This could have a serious effect on students going out-of-state," said Fenton counselor Richard Gorham. "I'm not sure what impact this would have on in-state schools."

The reason for the difficulty in entering out-of-state schools is the stricter selectivity they apply to out of state students than in-state applicants. State schools in Wisconsin, for example, have hiked their admissions requirements and almost doubled their tuitions in the past few years to discourage out of state students. The Wisconsin State University Board of Regents have contended they must first educate the students in the state and whatever room is left over can be appropriated to out-of-state students. Many other states have applied these same principles to their admissions programs.

night included the acceptance of Carroll's resignation. He has served six years as the high school and elementary district's business manager. His position was recently renamed assistant superintendent of business affairs.

"I think Kenneth Carroll will be sorely missed," Zuckerman said. "It will be difficult to get another applicant."

MARTIN ROMME recommended the board hold off action on Carroll's resignation until a joint meeting could be held between the elementary and high school district boards. Romme indicated Carroll might be induced to stay if the boards could jointly work out an agreeable solution to the reason for his resignation.

"I don't think we are talking about salary," Board Pres. Morton Wright said. "He has already accepted a position today."

When asked to comment on the reasons for his resignation, Carroll replied, "The present board situation precludes my staying."

Carroll told the Register Wednesday he has accepted a position as business manager with a Skokie school district.

In other action, the board accepted the appointment of Ray Soden as chairman of the newly formed Citizens Advisory Committee.

Soden, who is past commander of Bensenville VFW Post 2149 and an active member in the VFW on a state and national level, will begin working on the formation and organization of the citizen's committee.

The citizen's committee will presumably study the financial status of Dist. 100 and make recommendations to the board.

The proposal Tuesday to purchase 300 picnic tables for forest preserve recreational grounds throughout the county at $39.50 each brought a challenge from Ray Haas, Milton Twp., who said he saw four such tables in the East Branch of the DuPage River near Glen Ellyn. If this was the future fate of the 300 new ones at $39.50 apiece, Haas wondered why such a purchase should be considered.

How did they get in the water? Well, this was a nice question. No one volunteered an answer but it was hinted that youths from the vicinity, on an anti-establishment binge, probably responded to their Freudian urge of hostility by tossing the tables into the water.

That such is a common occurrence was made clear when a member of the forest preserve staff told Haas he had pulled eight tables from the water Monday near the same spot. In fact pulling picnic tables out of water, he said, was nothing unusual for the staff.

MEMBERS OF the preserve commission seemed to be scolding Haas for bringing such a matter up, especially when they were about to purchase 300 new tables. When asked if he had a solution, Haas confessed he could offer none. On the question of how to save picnic tables from being tossed in the water, Director Charles Johnson suggested more rangers could be hired to patrol preserve picnic premises. At this point the matter was dropped.

The purchase of the 300 new tables was authorized to Mikes Brothers, Bloomington, who had the low bid, after Al Anderson, Downers Grove Twp., was told that they could be bought cheaper than they could be built by forest preserve personnel.

But the big burst at this Tuesday session was the emotion-loaded controversy about out-of-state travel, this time to a meeting on county finances at Miami Beach. The county board had voted to send four and the forest preserve commission (same personnel) was asked to approve two more. This with the finance director of the county board made seven expense accounts in all.

THE COUNTY board ruling, said to be applicable to the forest preserve commission, reads: No Supervisor may make more than two out-of-state trips in any one year, one day per diem travel time shall be allowed each way, together with a reasonable daily expense, including meals, gratuities, registration fees, local transportation. Hotel and registration receipts must accompany claims.

County board and forest preserve commission members are always sensitive about voting on out-of-state travel because of charges of extravagant waste of taxpayers' money made by board members and particularly after the Las Vegas fiasco which brought grand jury investigation, caused a member to resign and now has another tied up in court in another county on a charge of venue.

On the basis of calculations made by members, transportation to and from Miami Beach by car at 15 cents a mile runs to $450, hotel and food $50 a day (4 days) $200, and six per diems ($25) would amount to $150. This would total a cost of $800 per member attending. But if air transportation were used the round trip would be only $180 or a total cost for each member attending of $550.

SOME CONSIDER such a trip a "fringe benefit" falling in the laps of those who are members of the county board. Others call it a "vacation splurge," by taking along their wives and by adding to their expense account with money out of pocket.

But Pat Savaiano, Bloomington Twp., chairman of forest preserve commission finance committee and on the board finance committee, looked at it differently. He said county finances set the direction of progressive county government. Methods of financing are changing and local government must keep abreast of what's going on. Speakers at Miami Beach will be top drawer people.

With this setting and background the travel motion to send two to Miami Beach found some rough going before it won by a vote of 18 for and 11 against. Voting against it was Paul Ronske, county chairman, and R. R. Rickson, both from York Twp. Rickson is making the trip as a member of the finance committee of the county board. Jack Wall, Bloomington Twp., and Fred Koebelman, Addison Twp., were also among the 11 who said "no."

But it must be remembered that the "yes" and "no" votes by many members were for various considerations that go to make up county board politics. It was not entirely on merits of the Miami Beach convention. And things being as they are, under the present county board political system, it's going to be pretty difficult to bring about an out-of-state travel Utopia in DuPage County.

80 Permits Issued For Home Building

The DuPage County Building and Zoning Department issued 80 permits for single-family homes for a total value of $1.9 million during April.

This was about a quarter of the total value of new construction during the month. The value of all building permits issued in April was $4.9 million.

Only two permits were issued for multiple family dwelling units. Permits for garages and shed, and remodeled dwellings ranked second highest. A total of 245 permits were issued in April.

College Speech Team Excels

Two College of DuPage speech team members advanced to the semifinals, and nine garnered 13 certificates for excellence in the National Community and Junior College Speech Tournament, held May 4-9 at the University of Michigan, Ann Arbor.

Pacing the team were John Qualkinbush, Clarendon Hills, who was a semifinalist in oral interpretation; and Tony Veneny, Oak Park, who advanced to the semifinals in impromptu speaking.

Qualkinbush and Veneny were also multiple winners of excellent certificates, along with Pat Gorak, Warrenville. Miss Gorak's excellent certificates were in informative speaking, speech analysis and oral interpretation; Qualkinbush earned his in persuasion and oral interpretation, while Veneny won excellent certificates for extemporaneous and impromptu speaking.

Also bringing home certificates of excellence were: Jan Barker, Bensenville, speech analysis; Greg Van Drepe, Medinah, persuasion; David Ohm, Glen Ellyn, oral interpretation; Fred Robinson, La Grange, informative speaking; Karen Wisniewski, Roselle, persuasion; and

Kenroy Decision Expected Monday

The Addison Plan Commission, zoning board of appeals and land use committee will hold a joint meeting Saturday at 9 a.m. to formulate a decision on a request to build an apartment complex on the west side of the village.

Representatives of the three groups will meet to decide on what recommendations will be made to the village board Monday night on whether to allow Kenroy Inc., to construct the complex.

The plan commission and zoning board met in joint session last night with Kenroy officials to iron out some of the details. They will present their findings at Saturday's meeting.

The village board Monday night has scheduled a special meeting at 9 p.m. to make a final decision on the proposal.

Propose Vocational Center

A $10 million vocational education center being proposed for DuPage County may help solve the labor shortage in suburban industrial parks, according to John R. Gibson, director of the DuPage Area Vocational Education Authority. He spoke recently before the Centex Industrial Park Association (CIPA) in Elk Grove Village.

Gibson said the center would be unlike a high school, but would be attended by some 3,000 to 8,000 high school juniors and seniors from the 10 high school districts in the county.

THEY WOULD attend half-day classes at the center, an occupational training facility, where they would have a choice of being trained in 70 different occupations ranging from an automobile mechanic to a data processing programmer. Instruction would be 90 per cent laboratory experiences resembling actual employment conditions with training by a staff of experts in various fields.

A federal and state matching fund program will make the center possible, he said. Sixty per cent of the cost will be provided by state and federal funding, while 40 per cent will be provided locally, he said. The average cost to a homeowner will be $5, he said.

THOUGH A SITE for the center has not been announced, Gibson said construction will begin in spring, 1971.

Gibson appealed for industry, government, educators, and labor to cooperate in the program.

He told the industrialists, "You have to tell us the skills and attitudes needed as well as the instructional methods to be used."

Gibson earlier backgrounded the need for such a center by saying that many students go directly into the job market right after high school.

"WE'RE NOT DOING enough for those who want to go to work," he said.

Gibson also said too many people look down on blue collar workers and that this was not right because they make important contributions to society.

He accused the Chicago metropolitan area of being a "bastion of educational snobbery" where the "only thing to do is to send your children to college."

Deadline Nears

Elmer J. Hoffman, DuPage County Collector, has announced the deadline for payment of the 1969 property taxes is approaching. As a reminder to taxpayers, the first installment of the 1969 real estate tax and all of the 1969 personal property tax will be due on June 1.

Payments will be accepted without a penalty charge until the close of business at 4:30 p.m., on June 1. Payments received by mail postmarked June 1, or earlier, will also be accepted without a penalty. A 1 per cent penalty will have to be added to all payments received after June 1 and prior to June 30. Tax payments can also be made at any local bank in DuPage County.

Hoffman also stated that any DuPage County property owner who has not as yet received a tax bill should contact the collector's office immediately. Failure to receive a tax bill does not relieve the property owner of the responsibility of paying the tax due.

A Solution

by DOROTHEA B. HOLLAND
LIBRARIAN

Are you looking for a way to make money in your spare time, planning a vacation, trying to create a new wall hanging? "A Woman's Guide to Wall Street" by N. L. Jarvis, "The Grand Colorado: Story of a River and Its Canyons" by T. H. Watkins or "The Technique of Creative Embroidery" by Christine Risley may be the answer to your problem.

Perhaps other problems may be bothering you. Are you a homemaker searching for a special dessert recipe, or a diet for a special health problem, or interested in starting a franchise business. The answers to all these and many other puzzling questions and problems can be found at your Bensenville Community Public Library in the thousands of books and other materials available for loan.

Do you know only 2 percent of the population utilizes a library when a personal problem arises; that only one person in 20 reads a book a year. These statistics have remained constant since the 1920's in spite of the population and education explosion.

The librarians will be happy to answer your telephone questions on how to spell a word, give you the price and address of a special magazine you'd like to order.

WANT TO READ the minutes of the last village board meeting, or those of the school board, park district or library board? They are all on file at your local library awaiting your call.

Recently these timely books were added to the shelves of the Bensenville Community Public Library. "Hot War on the Consumer," edited by David Sanford, tells the consumer truths about foods, drugs, brand names, big business practices, safety in flying, insurance and highway safety. "The Reluctant Taxpayer," by William Raby, explains when and how to fight the IRS and what appeals procedures are available.

"The Body Has a Head," by Gustav Eckstein is written in a completely different and entertaining style. The author declares it is his intent, "to make the human body more familiar to anyone who owns one."

The Bensenville Community Public Library will be closed on Memorial Day, May 30.

Obituaries

Frank F. LaPorta

Funeral mass for Frank F. LaPorta, 50, of 234 Arapahoe Trail, Carol Stream, will be said at 10 a.m. today in St. Luke Catholic Church, 401 W. Cochrise Court, Carol Stream. Burial will be in Queen of Heaven Cemetery, Hillside.

Mr. LaPorta, who was employed at the Naval Ordnance Plant in Forest Park, with 24 years of service, and a veteran of World War II, died Tuesday in DuPage Memorial Hospital, Elmhurst, following an extended illness.

Surviving are his widow, Carmella; four daughters, Mrs. Joan Dazzo of Glendale Heights, Mrs. Annette Vacari of Schaumburg, Mrs. Marilyn Iardella of Carol Stream; 10 grandchildren; his father, John LaPorta of Bellwood; two sisters, Mrs. Caroline DeCesare of Cicero and Mrs. Rose Amorosa of Bellwood; and three brothers, Leonard of Chicago, Joseph of Cicero and John of Glendale Heights.

Richert and Meyer Funeral, 320 W. Lake St., Addison, are in charge of the funeral arrangements.

Mrs. Mary Brani

Visitation for Mrs. Mary Brani, 80, of 334 Lawrence, Medinah, is today from 2 to 10 p.m. in Martin and Richert Funeral Home, 333 S. Roselle Rd., Roselle.

Funeral mass will be said at 10 a.m. tomorrow in St. Walter Catholic Church, 117 W. Maple St., Roselle. Burial will be in Mount Carmel Cemetery, Hillside.

Mrs. Brani, a resident of Medinah for about 25 years, died Wednesday in DuPage Convalescent Home, Wheaton. She was preceded in death by her husband, Fred.

Surviving are a son, John R. of Elmhurst; two daughters, Mrs. Adele (Arthur) Jacobi of Medinah and Rosemary Brani of Los Angeles; and a sister, Mrs. Fanny Monnich of Quincy, Ill.

Deaths Elsewhere

Charles Forrest Shriver, 54, of 620 Lake Road, Webster, N.Y., formerly of Bensenville, died suddenly May 10, in Webster, N.Y., after an apparent heart attack. He was employed at Eastman Kodak Co., Rochester, N.Y., with 29 years of service.

Surviving are his widow, Lydia; a son, Paul Steven of New York; two daughters, Mrs. Tanya (Lawrence) Castiglione of Jamaica, N.Y., and Catherine Mary, at home; two grandchildren; and two brothers, Donald G. of Poplar Grove, Ill., and Laurence F. of Roselle.

Memorial services were held May 13, in the United Church of Christ, Webster, N.Y.

Recreation Group Paper Drive Stated

Roselle's Recreation Association will have its second paper drive of the year Saturday. Beginning at 9 a.m., youngsters on the association sponsored baseball teams will be driving through the village picking up any paper stacked along the curb.

They will take any amount and prefer the papers bundled. If any older or disabled people have newspapers and magazines in basements or garages, the boys will pick them up on request.

Dick Wickstrom Chevrolet has donated a truck for the drive. Proceeds are used for uniforms and equipment during baseball season which begins June 4.

Paul Rodian

Funeral services for Paul Rodian, 94, of 487 N. Wood Dale Road, Wood Dale, will be held at 1 p.m. today in Geils Funeral Home, 180 S. York St., Bensenville. The Rev. Edmund P. Nieting of Calvary Lutheran Church, Wood Dale, will officiate. Burial will be in Mount Emblem Cemetery, Elmhurst.

Mr. Rodian, a long-time resident of Wood Dale, died Wednesday in the Americana Nursing Home, Arlington Heights. He was preceded in death by his wife, Frieda and is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Louise Townsend of Wood Dale; two sons, Robert and William; seven grandchildren and nine great-grandchildren.

Mrs. Ruth E. Krebs

Funeral services were held Tuesday in Bensenville for Mrs. Ruth Evelyn Krebs, 47, of 404 Princeton, Itasca, who died suddenly Saturday in St. Alexius Hospital, Elk Grove Village.

The Rev. Paul Farley of Bethany Methodist Church, Itasca, officiated. Burial was in Mount Olive Cemetery, Chicago.

Survivors include her husband, Rudy; two sons, Gary and Jeffrey, both at home; a daughter, Mrs. Kathy Tobolik; three sisters and two brothers.

Mrs. Beulah H. Wade

Funeral services for Mrs. Beulah H. Wade, 73, of 382 Seminole Lane, Carol Stream, who died Saturday in Central DuPage Hospital, Winfield, were held Tuesday in Wheaton. The Rev. Joseph Housh of St. Andrews United Methodist Church of Carol Stream, officiated. Burial was in Woodlawn Cemetery, Forest Park.

Surviving are a daughter, Mrs. Ruth Littlefield of Carol Stream; one grandson and a sister, Mrs. Colia Matson of California.

Mrs. Mae Erdman

Mrs. Mae Erdman, 68, of 2505 Wilke Rd., Rolling Meadows, died yesterday in Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights, following a short illness.

Surviving are a daughter Mrs. Florence Muller of Arlington Heights; three sons, Kenneth Dupke of Rolling Meadows, Harold Dupke of Roselle and Earl Dupke; 13 grandchildren; one great-grandchild; two sisters, Mrs. Katherine Rathgeber of California and Mrs. Elizabeth Tysdal of Chicago; and two brothers, Henry Friedle of California and Joseph Friedle of Chicago.

Visitation is today from 7 to 10 p.m. in Lauterbach and Oehler Funeral Home, 2000 E. Northwest Hwy., Arlington Heights. Prayer services will be held at 11 a.m. tomorrow in the chapel of the funeral home. Then to St. Colette Catholic Church, Grouse Lane and Meadow Drive, Rolling Meadows, for 11:30 a.m. mass. Burial will be in Irving Park Cemetery, Chicago.

Spending OKd For Equipment

Roselle's Dist. 12 board authorized the expenditure of $30,550 last week for equipment for the new junior high school.

The authorization will allow the board's building and grounds committee to select the equipment and order it without waiting for another board meeting.

Mid-August delivery dates promised for much of the equipment prompted the board to approve the expenditure thereby enabling the committee to order the equipment immediately after a review of the bids.

Equipment to be purchased includes furniture and bookshelves for the central learning area, teacher's desks, locks and lockers, gym equipment and furniture for the art and music rooms.

View Security Of Real Estate

Only your inclination and the amount of money you have limit the ways you can invest in real estate, one of the most rewarding avenues to financial security. J. Hamer, president of the DuPage Board of Realtors, stated as his board continued its celebration of Realtor Week ending tomorrow.

"Investors with as little as $50 have been known to join real estate investment trusts, although the return on their investment may not be overwhelming," Hamer said. "Trusts operate much as does a mutual fund. Instead of owning a parcel of property, the investor owns shares in a trust. The trust, in turn, handles all of the details involved, such as purchasing, leasing, selling, and so forth. These have been set up to some degree for the 'small' investor, and they are in many cases tailored to a specific area of property — multifamily, office, development land, and the like."

ADMITTEDLY, this form of investment may not be as attractive as owning a direct share of real estate, but it does offer more people the chance to invest in property. For the more affluent individual who does not wish to purchase investment property outright, syndicates offer a unique entree into real estate.

In some instances a group of people simply get together to purchase a specific piece of property for its investment potential. They have all the advantages of being owners, but by virtue of more than one individual being involved, can invest in more extensive holdings.

In other areas, a group will incorporate itself as a syndicate for the sole purpose of development of investment property or purchase of sound existing structures. There are many advantages to this type, including those related to taxes.

"Of course, one of the most popular forms of property investment remains the direct purchase," Hamer explained. Here, again, the only limits are those imposed by the investor and the amount of money he can afford to invest, he added.

FINALLY, IT IS becoming increasingly popular for the single-family homeowner to use his residence as an investment, particularly if he is transferred to another area with the prospect of returning. Another popular form of investment is in a duplex or small apartment building, with the owner living in one unit and managing and renting out the additional accommodations.

"Growing in popularity are the condominium and cooperative forms of ownership, whereby the investor either takes title to his apartment-home or owns a share of the entire complex, including grounds, he said. "Recent figures indicate that over 8 per cent of new multifamily construction in the past year was condominium or cooperative housing."

Hamer advised anyone interested in real estate as an investment to "first, consult a Realtor. He's a professional in real estate who subscribes to a strict code of ethics as a member of his state and local boards and of the National Association of Real Estate Boards."

The local board president concluded that information on investing in real estate is available from the DuPage Board of Realtors, 507 Pennsylvania Ave., Glen Ellyn.

A better idea is to contact the Realtor in your area, he said. He knows which properties are available and can refer you to a specialist in investment property if necessary.

The Lighter Side

Leak Technique Perks Dick's Ears?

BY DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Some of the local pundits are saying that the White House staff has created a communications gap within the administration by "protecting" President Nixon from his Cabinet.

That sort of thing, if it be true, is nothing new, of course. At some point during almost every administration, members of the Cabinet begin to feel isolated from the President.

When this happens, Cabinet members occasionally resort to various stratagems to try to get the President's attention. One favorite maneuver is the leak technique.

A Cabinet member will write a private memo to the President. But being fairly certain that it will be intercepted by the

Dick West

White House staff, he will leak a copy to the press in the hope that the resulting headline will catch the President's eye.

OR, IF THE Cabinet member is really desperate, he might write a note to the President, put it in a bottle and drop it in the Potomac on the chance that it will wash ashore, be recovered and delivered.

In extreme cases, a Cabinet member might even use his wife as an attention-getter. For example, he might have her telephone a newspaper at 2 a.m., or something of that nature.

And if nothing else works, Cabinet members, knowing that the youth of America always has the President's ear, may prevail upon a student leader to intercede in their behalf.

I happen to have at hand a copy of a letter that a student leader has written to the President. Excerpts follow: "... I believe this administration finds itself, today, embracing a philosophy which appears to lack appropriate concern for the attitude of the Cabinet."

"Our department heads, or at a vast segment of them, believe they have no opportunity to communicate with the President."

"Regardless of how you might feel about them individually, you have an obligation as their leader to communicate

Seeking Volunteers

"Do it the hard way this summer!" is the Hines Veterans' Administration Hospital's plea to Illinois youth.

There's more to doing your share than putting a few coins in a box or a few dollars in an envelope, hospital administrators say.

The hospital is asking for youth volunteers 15-years-old and up. Orientation and interview days are the last week in June. Anyone interested in contributing time can call Voluntary Service, 343-7200, Ext. 677.

with the Cabinet and listen to their ideas and problems ..."

IT REMAINS TO be seen whether the President will decide to confer more frequently with Cabinet members. One reason for his reluctance to consult them may be an aversion on his part to formal Cabinet sessions, which most presidents have considered a waste of time.

This traditional format, however, need not stand as a barrier between the President and the Cabinet. A series of informal discussions would serve the purpose just as well.

For instance, the next time he has trouble sleeping he might consider meeting the Cabinet at 5 a.m. on the steps of the Lincoln Memorial.

Tattletale Box Has A Birthday

by JAMES PURDY

OKLAHOMA CITY (UPI) — The parking meter, that little tattletale box on the curb, celebrates its 35th birthday this year. It should live so long!

The first parking meter ordinance was submitted to the Oklahoma City Council in April, 1935, and the world's first parking meters were installed on Oklahoma City streets in July of that year.

H. G. Theusen, a retired Oklahoma State University professor, bravely admits to being one of the designers of the first parking meter, and he has not forgotten the hostility shown by some citizens when the newborn meters were installed July 16, 1935, in Oklahoma City.

"Clustered around each parking meter," he recalls, "was a group of citizens voicing their opinions on the new device."

Theusen confesses he and the other designer, fellow professor Gerald A. Hale, "were somewhat disturbed by the resentment expressed."

Still, it was an event, and "newspaper writers and newsreel cameramen were busy taking notes and shooting scenes of those who used and talked about those first parking meters."

"For a day Oklahoma City was the source of a major news story nationally and abroad."

Theusen says the original push for a parking meter came from Oklahoma City newspaper editor Carl Magee.

Magee had become widely known earlier when as an Albuquerque, N.M., newspaper editor he played a major role in uncovering the Teapot Dome scandal which rocked Washington in the 1920s.

"Magee was on the traffic committee for the Oklahoma City Chamber of Commerce," Theusen explains. "They were having trouble with people parking in the downtown area."

Laws had been passed setting time limits for parking, but they were almost impossible to enforce, so as Theusen remembers it Magee conceived the parking meter idea.

"The big deal was not the mechanism," Theusen acknowledges. "It was the concept of charging a fee for traffic control and then to make a violator visible."

The first meters brought more than cries of outrage from the citizenry. They brought law suits, too.

"There was a legal point there," Theusen explains. "You could collect a fee for parking traffic, but you couldn't charge rental space for streets, because they were dedicated to the people. That was the first hurdle."

It took court battles in several cities before meter advocates could claim victory. They've been winning ever since.

With Memorial Day and the opening of the touring season at hand, the Chicago Motor Club touring department has compiled this list of holiday and weekend destinations for the benefit of Illinois motorists.

—Pere Marquette State Park, Ill. — Six miles west of Grafton on Ill. 100, this 2,600-acre park at the junction of the Illinois and Mississippi rivers was a campsite for Father Marquette, the explorer. Facilities include bridge paths, trails, nature museum, bounties, lodges and cabins.

—Mississippi Palisades State Park, Ill. — Two miles north of Savanna, Ill. 84, this area of 1,283 acres has rugged cliffs rising above the river, thickly wooded areas and attractive valleys. Points of interest include Indian Head, the Twin Sisters and Bob Upton's cave. Good hiking, riding and boating facilities.

—Rock River Drive and Lowden Memorial State Park, Ill. — State route 111, 2 between Rockford and Dixon is one of the state's most scenic drives. It winds along Rock River. The park, on the east bank, is known for Lorado Taft's impres-

—Morton Arboretum, Lisle, Ill. — Of 1,425 acres, the arboretum contains more than 4,800 species and varieties of popular plants. Lilac season, particularly popular, is in late May. Trees and shrubs are labeled.

—Indiana Dunes State Park, Ind. — At U.S. 12 and Ind. 49 about 10 miles west of Michigan City, 2,182 acres of shifting sand dunes with three miles of frontage on Lake Michigan. Mount Tom, 190 feet high, is the tallest dune. Swimming, bathhouse and pavilion with naturalist service are available.

—Devil's Lake State Park, Wis. — This 3,400-acre park is three miles south of Baraboo — home of the Circus World Museum — on Wis. 123. Devil's Lake, which is spring fed, is bordered on three sides by quartzite cliffs of the Baraboo Range. Bear, Lynx and Eagle Indian mounds were built by ancient tribes. Swimming, boating, horseback riding, nature trails and naturalist programs are available. The last two are available from June 15-Sept. 1 only.

—Kettle Moraine State Forest, Wis. This excellent nature area is of two sections. The northern unit, with 24,700 acres, extends for 23 miles in Washington, Fond du Lac and Sheboygan counties. The 13,470-acre southern unit includes parts of Walworth, Jefferson and Waukesha counties. Characterized by glacial hills and depressions known as "kettles," the area is known for interesting woodlands, swamps, peculiar pop-up hills and glacial geological oddities. Recreation areas offer swimming, boating and horseback riding.

—Door County, Wis. — This is one of the most unusual vacationlands in the Midwest. The Door County Peninsula hillsides are covered with more than a million cherry and apple trees that are in full bloom in late May. Twelve county parks and three state parks are within the 250 miles of scenic shoreline. Excellent swimming, fishing, golfing, and other outdoor recreation.

—Springfield, Ill. — Rich in memories of Abraham Lincoln — his home, his tomb, his church, a museum filled with Lincoln lore; Vachel Lindsay home; state capitol and office building; Illinois State Museum; Lake e Springfield and Park and other outdoor recreation areas. Nearby is Lincoln's New Salem State Park, two miles south of Petersburg on Ill. 97 and 123, which contains an authentic restoration of the old town where Lincoln lived from 1831 to 1837.

—White Pines Forest State Park, Ill. — Located seven miles west of Oregon on Ill. 2, the park contains 385 acres including moss-covered cliffs and the only virgin white pine grove in Illinois.

—Giant City State Park, Ill. — This is a rugged, hilly area of 1,672 acres, 12 miles south of Carbondale on U.S. 51. It is often called the Illinois Ozarks. Boating and fishing are available at nearby Crab Orchard and Little Grassy Lakes.

Square Dance News

MIDWESTERNERS
The Midwesterners Square Dance Club's fourth annual roundup dance will be held Saturday, May 30, at the Boy Scouts of America Building, 1622 N. Rand Rd., Arlington Heights, from 8 p.m. to midnight.

Five well-known square dance callers and the popular round dance caller, Jerry and Dot Daniels, will be on hand for your enjoyment. Calling the squares will be Doc Adams, Ed Hemple, Ken Miller, Al Schaffner and Gene Tidwell, who also will perform as master of ceremonies.

There will be refreshments and prizes and all area square dancers are invited. For further information or tickets, call 544-3839 or 449-7111.

JACKS AND JILLS
Club caller, Walt Byington will be calling the squares tomorrow night when the Jacks and Jills Square Dance Club of Dundee, meet at 8 p.m. in the American Legion Hall, 207 W. Main (Route 72), for their last dance of the season. All area dancers are invited.

The theme of the dance is "Dog Patch Days," and since square dance dress is not necessary... come dressed in "patchy" clothes and dance off with the prize for the worst dressed.

PALATINE SQUARES
Jim Stewart will be calling for the Palatine Squares tomorrow night, at the Boy Scouts of America Building, 1622 N. Rand Rd., Arlington Heights.

Squaring up time is at 8:30 p.m. immediately following the half-hour round dance workshop with Art and Ruth Youwer.

Palatine Squares will be dancing every second and fourth Saturday throughout the summer in the air-conditioned square dance room of the Boy Scouts of America Building. Guests are welcome.

FLICK REEDY CHARGERS
All area square dancers are invited to join the Flick Reedy Chargers Sunday at 8 p.m. in the Flick Reedy hall, corner of York and Thorndale roads, Bensenville, for their regular monthly dance.

The next "Swim Dance" will be July 26, from 6 to 7:30 p.m. plus the regular dance from 8 to 11 p.m. This is the dance for the Mermaid-Merman Badge.

Ralph Wakefield, caller for the Flick Reedy Chargers workshop and dance period every third Friday at the Washington School, 301 E. Washington St., Itasca, would like to see more area dancers at this event.

Several months ago someone left a pair of prescription bifocal sunglasses at one of our dances. They can be picked up at our next dance or please call, Ralph Wakefield at 678-6191.

ARLINGTON SQUARES
The Arlington Squares will host a "Vacation Holiday" dance for their last dance of the season tonight at St. Simons Episcopal Church, 777 Kirchoff Rd., Arlington Heights. All members and guests are invited.

Edna and Gene Arnfield will conduct a round dance session beginning at 8 p.m. and caller, Lenny Roos will square things up at 8:30 p.m. and dancing will continue until 11 p.m.

Refreshments will be served. Further information about the club may be obtained by calling, Bill Weber at 437-4409.

Group Shows Smokers How To Quit Habit

Northwest Suburban Smoke Watchers, which offers a group dynamics program to help smokers break the cigarette habit, will hold a free introductory lecture next Monday at Maine Township Jewish Congregation, 8800 Ballard Rd., Des Plaines, at 8 p.m.

"At the lecture," said Ralph Oberlin, director, "we will show the smoker how we turn smokers into nonsmokers easily and forever. The techniques we use are based on three factors: 1) group dynamics, in which each member helps the others, 2) members are taught to understand their habit — why they smoke, and 3) members are shown how to unlearn their habit, over a period of time."

THE ORGANIZATION states that there are more than 70 million people in the U. S. who smoke, and at least half think they should give up the habit. "The problem," said Oberlin, "is that most people do not know how to quit. They feel they will grow nervous, or put on weight, or have other ill effects — often they try to quit smoking all at once — 'cold turkey' as it is called."

"But American Cancer Society statistics show that five out of every six people who try to stop smoking by themselves soon take up the habit again."

Persons interested in joining Smoke Watchers are invited to attend the lecture. For further information regarding classes already in session at the Northwest Suburban YMCA, write P.O. Box 45, Park Ridge, or phone 439-0454 after 6 p.m.

Only 1,197 more kicks of the ball and school will be out!

Mayors Meet Is Slated For Saturday

Two authorities on community organization will address the third annual Mayor's Institute Saturday in Forest Hospital, 555 Wilson Lane, Des Plaines, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

"Mayor's Plan for Action" is the institute theme.

Edward T. Chambers, long associated with the Industrial Areas Foundation, will discuss the use of mass-based organization to accomplish a given goal, and Walter J. Monasch, president of the American Institute of Planners, will speak on using the proven political structure to attain community involvement.

SERVING AS co-chairman of the institute are Mayor Jack Pahl of Elk Grove Village, Mayor Robert Teichert of Mount Prospect, Mayor Herbert Behrel of Des Plaines, Village President Nicholas Blase of Niles, and Village Pres. Paul K. Thomas, Glenview.

The all-day institute is intended for mayors, village presidents, and municipal officials.

Chambers will deliver his address at 9:15 a.m. Saturday, and his talk will be followed by Monasch's speech. There will also be workshops.

The Mayor's Institute is one of a series of seminars held annually at Forest Hospital by the hospital's Postgraduate Center for Mental Health. Other all-day meetings are held for policemen, firemen, clergymen, and students.

Transit Bill Introduced

State Sen. John A. Graham, R-Barrington, has proposed creation of a Northeastern Illinois Transit District to serve six Northeastern counties.

Graham introduced a resolution calling for such a district this week. It was expected to be acted upon in the Senate Executive Committee late yesterday or today.

A nine-member board would govern the proposed district, with one representative each being appointed by the governor, the president pro-tempore of the Illinois Senate, the speaker of the Illinois House of Representatives and the presidents of the county boards of Cook, McHenry, DuPage, Kane, Lake and Will counties.

Graham suggested convening of the board before Aug. 1, with a report due to the General Assembly by March 1, 1971.

In the resolution, Graham said there is a strong belief that the Chicago Transit Authority, which has requested state aid this year, would ask help from the state again in 1971 to help defray an expected $150 million deficit.

"The population of the metropolitan area demands that adequate and modern transportation be provided at the lowest cost per rider, which the CTA, by its own admission, cannot provide on a pay-as-you-go basis," Graham said.

Police Trainee

Airman Jeffrey G. Funk, son of Mr. and Mrs. James B. Funk of 210 Armitage, Addison, has completed basic training at Lackland AFB, Tex.

He is remaining at Lackland for training as a security policeman.

Airman Funk is a graduate of Addison Trail High School.

Veterans' Vane

New developments in artificial limbs and their fitting are helping the Veterans Administration ease the way to recovery for many combat injured veterans, according to Walter J. Piotrowicz, orthopedic shop supervisor at the Hines, Veterans Administration Hospital.

The prosthetics and sensory aids expert, who attended a conference at the VA Prosthetics Research and Development Center in New York said that a VA-developed technique for fitting artificial limbs immediately after surgery has been widely accepted in local and international medical circles.

The new amputee, while still on the operating table, is fitted with a temporary artificial limb which permits weight bearing soon after surgery.

A NEW rubber-like synthetic, balata, used for shaping limb sockets, was demonstrated at the conference, he said. The rapid-forming material is applied directly to below-the-knee amputations to form a socket. The present system requires a plastic cast, developing a master mold and then formation of the socket.

Another advance in the field of prosthetics during the past year is the "swing and stance" knee joint for artificial legs. Adopted this year for prescription distribution to qualified veterans by VA prosthetic centers, the device permits an amputee to descend stairs and hills smoothly, walk gracefully, and greatly reduces the danger of falling.

For the blind, VA is continuing its evaluations of a laser case which warns the blind user of obstacles it "sees" by sending out laser beams. When an obstacle is detected above, below, or to either side of the user's path, the cane gives either an audible signal, or a vibrating signal to the hand, which tells the location of the obstacle.

THE LASER CANE is under test at VA's West Coast Blind Rehabilitation Center in Palo Alto, Calif. It will not be available for issue for several years, however.

Highlights of the future presented at the conference, included devices which may eventually help the patient with paralyzed arms and hands. Carbon dioxide charges and miniature electric motors run by rechargeable batteries were demonstrated which may be used in the future as "synthetic muscles" to operate hands and to brace the limbs for paralyzed patients.

The Way We See It

Anti-Drug Weapon

Drug abuse is a bigger problem than ever for police.

Mushrooming experimentation with drugs by young people has compounded the threat, and so has the increased sophistication of the methods of people who traffic in drugs for a living.

The modern police response has to be equally sophisticated and efficient. And for that reason, we're especially enthusiastic about the idea of a special drug abuse police force proposed for 26 suburban communities.

Called the Metropolitan Narcotics Dangerous Drugs Enforcement Group (MEG), it's been urged for communities from the Northwest suburbs, through the North Shore and up to Waukegan.

The plan is to form a cooperative, with each of the 26 communities contributing one man for a one-year trial period. They'd all get special training in combatting the drug problem, and members of the group would be used to deal with drug abuse on an areawide basis, and in spots where it's a specialized problem.

The cost would be largely borne by a $567,158 federal grant, provided under the Omnibus Crime Control and Safe Streets Act of 1968. The money would cover training, equipment, vehicles, office space, consultants and even drug "buys" used to get evidence against pushers.

It's a plan very similar to one getting under way in DuPage County. First proposed to the county's Chiefs of Police Association, the plan now seems to be catching fire. A dozen communities — including Bensenville, Wood Dale, Itasca, Roselle, and Bloomingdale — already have pledged men and time to the task force.

Cooperation clearly is the key in making either assault work, and, in fact, is a necessity if any federal funds are to be forthcoming.

With full cooperation of several contiguous towns, small communities not equipped to handle the drug problem will benefit from an areawide force. And there will not be any gaps allowing the drug problem to drift from a community where "the heat is on" to one where there is no coordinated attack.

Hoffman Estates has taken the lead among Northwest suburban communities, formally pledging to join MEG if other towns sign up. Arlington Heights and Wheeling are definitely on record supporting the plan, but haven't taken formal action.

The general attitude toward the plan from other communities has been favorable, but to wait and see what develops. That isn't good enough. The idea is a sound one, and our communities should take the initiative in getting it moving.

Addison Arena

Love Affair Blossoms

by BARRY SIGALE

I'm beginning to fall in love with Addison.

And why not? It has all the attributes of a healthy and well-proportioned beauty contest winner.

It has the statistics. Now there are 23,000-plus persons lodged within the village limits. The books show a healthy financial situation. Future outlooks point to a population of 78,500 people by 1990 and just as strong a financial picture.

IT ALSO HAS THE brains. It certainly has one of the most competent groups of government officials in the area. There's youth and smarts and initiative to boot. Long hours of study and work and many lengthy committee meetings have shown the way toward progress.

It has the physical stature, too. When the monstrous north side sewage treatment plant is opened in early June, the village will have one of the most modern, complete and competent tertiary treatment facilities in the United States. Streets, utilities and other services furnished to residents are more than adequate.

Additionally, it has the guts of a municipality trying to move up. It's not every community that feels so sure of itself as to set its sights on being chosen one of the 10 best cities in the country per the All-American Cities competition.

Village officials also have the benefit of the varied opinions of active local civic and service organizations that pour their energies into projects of worth to the community. There's the large Addison Industrial Association, the Kiwanis, Jaycees, VFW, Moose, Woman's Club, the list goes on and on.

The village isn't pushing forward without the expertise of its master planner or some of the more knowledgeable of the local builders and entrepreneurs.

THE PLANNER, Thomas Dyke, has for the most part pleased village officials with his two-year study of the expectations and problems facing the community in the next two decades. There are differences of opinion on some of the conclusions he came up with but in the main the plan is quite acceptable and should prove an accurate gauge of the future.

Prominent citizens from the private sector, such as Lenny Borisof, a local builder, offer the wisdom they have gained through years of business ventures. Borisof attends most board meetings, partially to protect his interests in the village. But he also has provided some expert advice to officials, especially while they ponder a new high rise ordinance.

The point is that people are working together toward a goal that will make a name for the village. It's an ambitious undertaking, one that should prove exciting on the way toward the super achievement.

And being there when it happens is the real enjoyment. Working with fair-minded, dedicated men is quite an experience. Seventy-eight thousand, five hundred persons are going to be pretty happy twenty years from today.

It's too bad they won't know the names of people today who are going to make it possible.

Reconsider Abortion Reform Law

Despite the defeat of two bills which would have reformed abortion laws in Illinois, women who are desperate will continue to find ways to have unwanted pregnancies terminated.

They may do this by traveling to other states, many of which have recently changed abortion laws, or they may do this by submitting themselves to medical quacks, charlatans and butchers in back alleys and basements.

One of the purposes of the two abortion reform bills introduced into the Illinois House of Representatives this spring, and passed by the House Judiciary Committee, was to eliminate the latter practice.

Abortion in Illinois is going to continue, whether legally or illegally.

A major objection to abortion reform in Illinois and other states is based on moral and religious beliefs. Certainly these beliefs must be respected, but the people who hold these beliefs do not have a right to impose them on others.

We believe the Illinois House of Representatives erred in defeating the proposed bills. A woman should have the right, within a reasonable period of time, to decide that she does not want a baby that may have been forced upon her or would not be brought into a desirable family situation.

Abortion reform legislation is almost certain to be introduced during the next session of the legislature. It should be approved.

The Political Beat

Legislators Grasp for the Buck

by CHARLES E. HUFNAGEL

We are hearing a lot these days about the "crisis in confidence" and the "credibility gap" in both instances having to do with the relationship between the elected official and his constituents. Just how and why this era in which we live is different in those areas of confidence and credibility than previous ones no one has gone to any great pains to point out.

The reason may be that loyalty to some of the old values is breaking up under the pressures of the tensions in modern civilization which impel the individual to seek personal survival in today's material values. How else can you explain such antics as was witnessed in the Lower House at Springfield last week when 91 members of that body voted to give themselves another pay hike of $3,000 annually bringing their pay to $15,000. Two years ago it was $9,000 when both houses voted a bill to bring the pay to $12,000 which the governor signed.

A THIRD OF THE body did not vote on the increase last week, and 25 thought it irresponsible and voted against it.

(Among Third District representatives, Republican Eugene Schlickman and Democrat Eugene Chapman, both of Arlington Heights, voted for the raise; Republican David Regner of Mount Prospect voted against. None of the 39th District representatives voted on the issue.)

It is expected that the Senate will refuse to consider it or vote it down. But the question is what impelled these 93 to vote an additional 25 per cent in pay for themselves without in any way alluding to why they deserved it?

It is well known that most of them have pretty attractive incomes outside their legislative chores. It is also well known that the country is in a critical economic situation today with poverty and welfare on the rise, joblessness on the increase and with most families struggling to keep their budgets in balance.

Illinois taxpayers are also aware that they are being tapped for the biggest tax take in the state's history and there are rumors that more is to come. Right now there is controversy whether the state bookkeeping will show a surplus or a deficit.

But the $3,000 Illinois legislator pay hike was sought when the Nixon administration is calling on labor and business to hold the line on wages and profits in the interest of stopping inflation and curtailing a recession.

A LOT OF THESE legislators seeking an easy and extra $3,000 at the burdened taxpayer's expense are calling for a clampdown on the rebellious campus kids by giving them a good dose of "law and order." But this is precisely the kind of thing the campus rebels are kicking about. Instead of dedicated government devoted to people welfare the campus kids charge "phonyism."

In this crisis of confidence and credibility which warns of rough weather ahead it is noted that it can be found at the highest levels of government. And the same factors are involved which place the accent on material values, on money. It's nearly an axiom that to get anywhere in politics today you have to have money or access to money, lots of it.

So lawmakers at Washington, whose pay is $42,500 per annum plus expense allowances, find it alluring and profitable to hit the "speaking circuit" where they earn vastly more than their jobs as lawmakers provide. These are some of our noted national leaders recognized for their high thinking and fine rhetoric. But money lures them on as it does the most materialistic among us.

Sure they quote poetry, read the saints, and woo us to follow them on the high road to health, wealth and happiness. They seek only the welfare of all. All of this is the art of politics. Of course this has always been the art but because of today's tensions and concerns of everyday living it has become more pronounced and more obvious. This is the age of space technology, polluted environments and undeclared wars. It's challenging the old values. But if the self-styled leaders are afflicted with the same blindness as those they ask to follow them how can the blind be led?

TO SAY THAT there is a crisis in confidence is to say that there is a confusion about values. In a rough way Marx pointed out that if he knew how a society made its living — its technology and economic practice — he could spell out its culture, name its values. This is materialistic determinism.

But a group of revolutionaries led by

The Fence Post

Student Speaks on Strike Unrest

Being a concerned member of the community of Arlington Heights and an honors graduate of its high school in June, 1969, I write this letter as a plea for community commitment to end the war in Indo-China and quell the internal unrest that fostered the tragic deaths at Kent State University last week. I feel that it is my duty and yours to become aware of and informed about a situation of such grave importance that 429 of the most respected colleges and universities in this nation have chosen to strike. President Nixon's unfortunate decision to extend the already senseless destruction of the Vietnam War into Cambodia — repercussions of which will be felt in the remainder of the Indo-Chinese peninsula — requires every person in this country to give some serious thought to the price of this rather dubious method of attaining peace. Those college students who have supported campus strikes, myself included, share the sense of outrage expressed by five U. S. Senators when they wrote earlier this week, "The recent invasion of Cambodia and the resumption of bombing of North Vietnam are only the latest in a long series of actions that mean more anguish and destruction on all sides."

THOUGH IT IS much more pleasant for me to attend regular class meetings and pursue an education in the normal

routine of my campus, I have been walking the streets of the community distributing literature and soliciting telegrams of protest to the President and Congressmen. More than anything else these campaigns into the community have emphasized to me how uninvolved and uninterested many people are. It is my conviction that life can only be complete in so far as my relationship to people everywhere is complete. My world includes Cambodia, Vietnam and the ghetto, not just a safe dormitory room in Appleton, Wis. or a suburban home. Shouldn't yours?

I can't tell you how proud I am to be a part of the anti-war movement here — a movement that is getting people to think, to send telegrams, to write letters. I stress that "anti-war" doesn't have to include burning ROTC buildings or stopping traffic. Here at Lawrence University we have proven that student protest can be effective and non-violent. I regret that each one of you did not have the opportunity to attend our memorial service for the four students killed at Kent State and to witness the following silent, candlelight procession of 1,400 people.

Students don't have to be violent if the public is intelligently well-informed and interested in communicating with them. Your involvement only means that you care about the senseless slaughter of peasants in Southeast Asia, the destruction of a once productive ecologic system, the annihilation of a way of life centuries older than our own. I'm tired of hearing, "I'm sorry, honey, I don't know how I feel," or "I haven't thought about the war because my husband isn't home," or "I fought in Korea so you should fight to," or "My country right or wrong — you college kids are all Communists."

IF A SINCERE LOVE of country and faith in God qualify me and my friends as Communists, then that is what we are. Know that it hurts to have a door slammed in your face because you've asked someone to think about a situation that forces him to seriously examine his conscience. A decision to oppose the war may be a difficult one to make, but this is no excuse for ignoring the issue. I remind you that times have changed since Germany and Korea. The social, economic, and political implications of this war, at home as well as abroad, extend far beyond the old I'm-all-for-President-Nixon-because-he's-fighting-Communism routine.

An Administration can be wrong. It is composed of fallible men. I emphasize that it is not undemocratic to disagree with its actions. It is the beauty of the democratic system that channels of dissent are available. Use them. Help this nation's young people create a more peaceful world. We students have taken time and effort to learn the facts about Cambodia, Kent State and Vietnam. What's stopping you? All we're asking is give PEACE a chance.

Story Worth Play?

I question the importance which Herald has shown to the Kesters' protest, the front page issue. A flag is a symbol of the country, of its liberty. Anyone who desecrates or disgraces it is like a parasite that eats the host on which it lives. People who disgrace American flag are not worthy to be called Americans, only an enemy of the country can do it. I am sure that after your big publicity there will be many who will follow this thoughtless and evil example, to the joy of the Communists.

Janina Babris
Arlington Heights.

(Editor's Note: Kester first flew the flag upside down, a symbol of distress over Cambodia. After police spoke to him about it, he flew upside down a "family" flag with a design reminiscent of the American flag.)

His Kisses Are Real Smackers

by GEOFFREY MEHL

Some people think love is the cure to most of the world's ills, but take heed it can be dangerous.

Glen M. Clark of Dayton, Ohio, a true romantic, decided to use a spotlight to advantage, while red, he leaned over to plant a kiss on his girlfriend. Bad luck Glen, however, managed to stomp on the car's accelerator. The vehicle lunged forward, smashing into a police car.

The policeman — not romantic at all — planted one on Glen in the form of a ticket for careless driving.

AND OVER IN Slough, England, the town council is divided about a larger-than-life sculpture of a couple making love. Seems the problem is that one alderman wants city funds to be used to buy the work for a new town center. Another said it made him "feel like a peeping Tom."

Certain reserve has been maintained by the Ministry for the Arts.

A spokesman said "Act of Love" would be "considered in the normal way."

Case has since banned frogs from the club after the lovelorn youths began using them to start romances. Seems the boys caught frogs in a nearby canal, used them to scare girls and then started a friendship by comforting them.

"I want them to use more gentlemanly methods for introductions," Case said.

Animals seem to know everything. From Finland comes a report that six moose crossed the border (probably without passports) from Sweden to Finland, ogled a construction crew at work, and then wandered off into surrounding woods.

Not unusual?

Well, it seems that just an hour earlier it was announced on Finnish radio that moose would be protected game for two years.

Harper Originals

Fashion on Parade

by GENIE CAMPBELL

Beneath the library at Harper College in a transformed studio with brown wrapping paper guarding the curtainless windows, one might expect to see a sign . . . "Quiet, fashion geniuses at work."

Inside, however, the scene bustles with the hum of sewing machines, fashion lingo and occasionally a squeal of laughter.

Fifty-five students are enrolled in Harper's two-year program in fashion design. Begun this fall through the prodding of Mrs. Richard Gialdini, fashion design coordinator for the two year spectrum of courses, the program has already been qualified an instant success and termed "fantastic" by those involved.

Presently Harper College is the first and only junior college in Illinois to offer a complete program in fashion design. Students completing both years graduate with an associate degree in applied science.

BUT EVEN MORE important, they leave the college campus armed with enough training and knowledge to enter any number of fields in fashion including designing, illustrating, pattern making or retailing.

As a representation of one year's work, and a halfway marker, the future designers are presenting a fashion show tonight at 8 o'clock in the Student Lounge of Harper (Building A). It is open to the public.

The garments to be modeled were made from scratch. No commercial patterns are used in class. During the first semester, students learn to draft and drape material. They then apply their learning in making up and cutting their own original designs into patterns.

Mrs. Gialdini of Palatine, who holds a B.S. from the University of Cincinnati and a Master of Fine Arts from the Art Institute of Chicago, said the projects appearing in the show are samples of what the individual students liked and enjoyed doing most. There were no boundaries set to stunt creativity.

HAVING HAD her first sewing lesson while still in junior high school, Mrs. Gialdini professionally entered the world of fashion as a buyer for I. Magnin & Co. in San Francisco. She followed a stint in retailing by designing for Junior House in Milwaukee. Then upon moving to Palatine, she opened a studio in her home and did custom designing on her own.

It's not surprising that most of the girls enrolled in the program also have an extensive interest and background in home sewing.

One who has always been captivated is Linda Battaglia. Putting the finishing touches on suede gaucho pants and a snake skin vest, the tall blonde said of her classes, "I love them. Someday I hope to hold a position in a fashion design house preferably in New York City or Los Angeles."

PAULINE KOKENOS, who has designed an ensemble with a tie-dyed body stocking, commented honestly on the longer length. "The midi doesn't look good unless it's on a taller person," said the somewhat shortie who admitted she herself would never wear one. "People should wear what looks good on them, not merely what's fashionable."

Yet many of her classmates feel differently, and the show tonight will have its fill of longuettes and midis.

Like any Carnaby Street boutique, crocheted beach ensembles, batiked gowns and anything not readily found on State Street in Chicago will be on the program.

Ann Guarnaccio, who has been sewing since the age of eight and is following in the footsteps of her grandmother, a professional seamstress, will feature a "flip top dress."

Consisting of a brightly colored crocheted mini to be worn over a body stocking, the dress is made with hundreds of spray painted flip tops collected from cans.

"I've been having trouble finishing the dress because I keep running out of tops," she laughed.

The design program is not solely dominated by women. Almost maybe, but not quite.

JIM JUSTIS and Jim Riley joined the program this semester. Only enrolled in fashion illustrating, they have not as yet done much with the needle and thread.

"At first I did feel slightly out of place," commented Justis about being one of a minority of two. However, some day I hope to open my own clothing store and I think these courses will serve as an excellent background."

Jim Riley, who will be the commentator for tonight's show, admits, "Yes, I do have trouble sewing." An art major who first decided to enroll in fashion illustration when he could not get into a painting class of his choice, Jim has since become interested in the design program.

Although not required to have any garments appear in the show, Riley has been busy on his own time making a pair of suede and fabric pants which will be modeled.

The corner of Algonquin and Roselle Roads may not be pinpointed on the fashion atlas. Yet Coco Chanel and St. Laurent did not begin in red-carpeted salons either, now did they?

NANCY JANSSEN will wear a coordinating knicker ensemble in the student fashion show tonight at Harper College. The outfit was made and designed by Phyllis Kerrigan of Palatine.

ALL SET FOR THE RAIN, Phyllis Hartmann is suited in a white vinyl sailor-styled midi coat with matching accessories. The coat was made and designed by Phyllis Kerrigan.

SUBURBAN LIVING

A MOUNT PROSPECT resident, Christy Skuban, designed a three-piece crocheted beach ensemble which she will model in the show. The midriff top and short pants are worn under a matching flowing coverup.

USING AN OLD ARTIST process, Marcy Janis batiked the blouse which she will model tonight.

SPARKLING CLEAN AUTOS await those who visit Don's Clark Station on Irving Park Road, Roselle, Saturday, where Nu Rho Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi will be washing cars, pumping gas and checking oil and water as a fund raising project from 9 to 5. Getting in a lick of practice are Mrs. Clem Siemer, Mrs. Paul Dorda, and Mrs. Lother Hueneke.

Corn Belt Toastmistresses Meet

Three Three C's — convince, converse, corral — are the theme of Corn Belt Region of International Toastmistress Clubs for the annual conference opening today at Arlington Park Towers. Registration begins at 4 p.m., but the conference officially opens tomorrow morning and continues through Sunday.

Miss Irene Jackson of Arlington Heights will be one of the hostesses, along with others from Council 5 and 6.

Theme for the hospitality party tonight is "Filly Frolics." Mrs. Leonard Cain of Bensenville will participate in the "Odd Style" show.

SATURDAY workshops will cover leadership training, listening, new club development, practical inventiveness, programming, parliamentary procedure and speech construction. Participants include Mrs. William Bravine and Miss Hideko Tamana of Addison, Mrs. James Wimsatt of Bensenville and Miss Elizabeth Hart of Arlington Heights.

Highlight of the conference is a speech contest at Saturday's banquet, with participants all winners of the six councils in the Corn Belt Region. Saturday's winner will compete in the international contest in Portland, Ore.

Toastmistress clubs are for women who wish to gain poise and confidence when speaking to a group. Terrace Toastmistresses meet the second and fourth Tuesdays of the month in Reserve Savings & Loan, Elmhurst. All women in the DuPage area are welcome.

Mom Rocks Two Cradles

The girls now outnumber the boys in the John Panek home at 1029 Beverly Drive, Wheeling. However, until May 5 it was the other way around.

With only four days' notice, that was the date twin girls joined the family.

Shannon Leigh, 7 pounds 4 ounces, and Sheryl Lynn, 7 pounds 10 ounces, were born in St. Alexius Hospital, Ronald, 8, Shelley, 5 and Johnny, 2, are thrilled over the baby sisters, but Johnny is still a bit mystified, running from one crib to another when they cry, reports Mrs. Panek.

Grandparents of the twins and the older Panek children are the Lester Grays of Wauconda and the Ted Paneks of Batavia, former Arlington Heights residents.

Gala Night For Memorial Family

A gala evening is in store for members of the Memorial Hospital Family and special guests next Tuesday as they gather in the Grecian Room of Stevens Restaurant in Elmhurst for the board of governors' spring benefit dinner. Festivities will be under way with cocktails at 6:30.

Host Chriss Stevens and his staff will welcome the several hundred guests to the black-tie party, all of whom will be making generous donations to the Hospital Building and Development Fund. With all expenses underwritten by Stevens, every ticket dollar will be a gift to the hospital.

Comedian Don Rice III will provide late evening entertainment, following a formal dinner with wine. Featured star at Chicago's Palmer House on many occasions, Rice has had four recent appearances on the Dean Martin Show and other television specials.

ALL PLANNING details have been co-chaired by Stevens and P. William Simoning as members of the hospital board. A. Raymond Ewers is board chairman.

The June Coudhillion presented by the Council on Understanding Learning Disabilities (C.O.U.L.D.) will be held Saturday, June 6 at the Plum Grove Club, Rt. 62 and West Frontage Road, Palatine, at 9 p.m.

Music will be by the Merry Men of Mount Prospect, and a midnight buffet will follow.

Proceeds from the benefit dance will help pay for scholarships and will provide for researchers, educators, and other professional speakers on the subject of teaching disabled children.

C.O.U.L.D.'s meetings are open to the public and held at Prospect High School, Mount Prospect September through May.

Mothers-Others Lunch Together

The Campus Life Mothers 'n' Others luncheon will be held Tuesday at 12:45 p.m. at the Scandia House, Central and Rand Roads, Mount Prospect.

Clayton Baumann, director of Campus Life will guide a panel of local high school students on a discussion of contemporary problems, such as dating, parents, rebellion, etc.

Tom Essenburg, Campus Life club leader at Hersey High School, Arlington Heights, and Gary DeClute, staff leader at Barrington, Elk Grove, and Prospect High Schools, will entertain with guitar and vocal.

Child care is available. No reservations are necessary. Campus Life clubs work with high school students to develop balanced Christian lives.

Further information is available by calling 269-5144.

Further information regarding ticket information on C.O.U.L.D. activities is available through Mrs. C. McIntire at 824-0210 or Mrs. N. Tierney, 392-4044.

Deanery Studies Communications

A program on communication, "Let's Talk-Let's Listen," will be presented next Tuesday at the DuPage-Kendall Deanery Institute being held at St. Joseph's Franciscan Seminary, Oak Brook.

Speaking to the Council of Catholic Women will be Clete Steward of The Gabriel Richard Institute, who will emphasize human relation skills that make for a more successful group life.

Mrs. Edward Fortier of Roselle, conductor of one of the five workshops, will cover the subject or Organization Services Commission. Mrs. William Freund of Itasca is president of the Deanery. Registration is at 9:15 a.m.

Quaker Life Review At May Luncheon

"Except for Me and Thee," Jessaymyn West's nostalgic chronicle of 19th century American Quaker life, will be reviewed by Mrs. George Crossland at the May luncheon of the Palatine Presbyterian Women's Association.

The luncheon, to be held at Scandia House, 1018 Mount Prospect Plaza, is scheduled for 12:30 next Wednesday, May 27. Tickets should be purchased by Sunday from circle chairmen or by calling Mrs. Albert Cunningham, 359-2264.

Guests are invited, and may utilize baby-sitting service which will be available at the church.

Scholarships for Three

Linda Darge

Gail Greaves

Donna Sronkoski

Linda Darge, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Canary, 51 Grange Road, received the music camp scholarship. The camp is located on Bloomington Lake, Bloomington, Ill., where musical activities permit students to participate in any two of three large ensemble groups, band, orchestra and chorus. Linda's vocal talent will enable her to join the chorus and take advantage of private instructions.

The music and art camps are made available by the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs. Each year the Elk Grove Juniors give these two camp scholarships along with a college scholarship which are available to Elk Grove High School students. Students who live in Elk Grove Village and surrounding areas are eligible to apply for these scholarships.

This year's art camp scholarship was presented to Gail Greaves, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Greaves, 10 Evergreen. She will attend Allerton Park Art Camp at Monticello, Ill., during the summer.

THROUGH THIS art school she will have the opportunity to experience a week of intensive art study. Classes are conducted in four areas of art: painting, drawing, design and sculpture. Students are chosen not only for their artistic talent but for their desire to study.

Elk Grove Village Junior Woman's club scholarships were presented to three Elk Grove High School students at the annual meeting held recently at Salt Creek School.

Donna Sronkoski, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Sronkoski, 513 Laurel St., received a $500. college scholarship. Donna, who graduates in June, summa cum laude in French, ranks in the upper 10 per cent of a class of more than 500 students. She is active in Girl Scouts, a member of "Pastels Trio," Tri-M and choir. She will attend Eastern Illinois University where she plans to major in English literature.

Garage Storage

Storage space can be found in even the smallest garage. Build cupboards of western pine and suspend them from the ceiling joists against the back wall, above the car's hood. Doors will keep stored items from falling on the car.

Miss Hubbard, a '66 graduate of Palatine High School, will graduate this June from Principia College at Elmhurst, Ill., with a double major in English and Education and a minor in Fine Arts History. She is a member of Phi Alpha Eta honorary.

Her fiancé, a '67 graduate of Forest View High School and a '69 graduate of Mrs. Martha Chevance, 18 E. Belmont, Bensenville, is announcing the engagement of her daughter Yvette to Max Dills, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Dills of Albany, Mo. The couple, both graduating seniors at the University of Missouri, are planning a fall wedding.

The bride-to-be is in the university's School of Social Work and Mr. Dills is in the School of Business and Public Administration as an accounting major.

Harper Junior College, is a junior at Northern Illinois University at DeKalb. Gary, a production management major, plans to continue at Northern next fall.

Announcing their daughter Annette Elaine's engagement to Dr. J. Thomas Johnson of Des Plaines are Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Herness, 238 Oakwood Drive, Wood Dale. The wedding is planned for July 11 in Wood Dale Community Church.

Dr. Johnson, son of the Carl Johnsons of Rockford, is a graduate of the University of Illinois and its School of Veterinary Medicine. He works at North Shore Animal Hospital, Evanston.

Miss Herness was graduated from Fenton High School and Elmhurst College. She teaches a combined second and third grade class at Carol Stream.

A Dec. 19 wedding is planned by Lakeland College (Sheboygan, Wis.) sophomores Ruth Elizabeth Gieseke and Robert Leroy Rank.

A graduate of Arlington High School, Ruth Elizabeth is the daughter of Frederick W. Gieseke Jr. of Naperville, a former area resident, and the late Mrs. Gieseke. Mr. Rank is the son of Mrs. William Rank of Chicago and the late Mr. Rank.

Mr. Gieseke is announcing the couple's engagement and approaching marriage.

Frieda Andres

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Andres of Roselle announce their daughter Frieda's engagement to Michael Wiatler of Harwood Heights. The couple are planning a September wedding.

Miss Andres is a '66 graduate of Lake Park High School and is studying journalism at the University of Illinois. Her fiancé, who also attended the U of I, has an associate degree in production management.

A Blue and White Wedding

Sharyn Ann Kelly's three sisters and her brother were all included in the bridal party when she became the bride of David William Shepard on April 18. Sharyn, daughter of the Robert Edward Kellys, 2303 Kirchoff Road, Rolling Meadows, and David, son of the Ted Shepards, 206 E. Evergreen, Mount Prospect, were married in a 3 p.m., blue and white ceremony in St. Colette Church in Rolling Meadows.

Fr. Eugene Falcher officiated at the double ring service in a setting of blue mums and gladioli.

The blue and white color scheme was also used for the bridesmaids' gowns of blue dotted swiss accented with white daisies and the groom's attendants in matching blue coats.

DENISE MARIE Kelly of Rolling Meadows was her sister's maid of honor; Janine Kelly was a bridesmaid and 9-year-old Lauren Kelly was one of the junior bridesmaids. Other bridesmaids were the bride's sister-in-law, Peggy Kelly of DeKalb, a cousin, Janet Taylor of Cicero, and Diane McDonald of Carbondale.

The other junior bridesmaid was the groom's cousin, Karen Wood of Cary. John David Zaparka, 3, a cousin of the bride from Buffalo Grove, was ring bearer.

The maid of honor and bridesmaids' empire gowns were fashioned with long, full sleeves. Their headpieces were blue velvet bands with white daisies and their bouquets were white daisies with yellow tea roses.

White dotted swiss gowns with borders of blue daisies were worn by the junior bridesmaids, and their bouquets were of blue daisies and yellow tea roses. The ring bearer was in a white tux suit.

Mr. and Mrs. David W. Shepard

Also in blue were the mothers of the bride couple. Mrs. Kelly chose a coat and dress ensemble of silk shantung while Mrs. Shepard chose a silk blend print dress and jacket ensemble.

SHARYN, WHO WAS given in marriage by her father, chose a white organza shirtwaist gown with white ribbon and Venice lace trim. A band of white flowers accented with pale blue bows held her veil, and she carried a cluster of white roses with daisies and stephanotis.

Best man to the groom was his cousin, Dave Worek of Chicago, and ushers were the bride's brother, Thomas Kelly of DeKalb, two cousins of the bride, Ralph Modlin of Chicago and Richard Taylor of Cicero, and Steven McDonald of Carbondale.

Following the reception for 150 guests in the Venice Banquet Hall in Chicago, the newlyweds left on a 10-day honeymoon in Miami Beach, Fla.

The new Mrs. Shepard, a graduate of Sacred Heart of Mary High School, is employed by Western Electric. The groom, a graduate of Granite City Senior High in Granite City, Ill., attends Harper College and is employed by Charles Bruning Co.

The newlyweds are making their home in Buffalo Grove.

Mr. and Mrs. Kurz Wed 50 Years

It was 50 years ago today, in Hannover, Germany, that William and Paula Kurz were married.

A design engineer, William came to the United States in 1923 and was followed in 1925 by his young wife. The couple settled in Chicago, moving to Elk Grove in 1967 and then to Arlington Heights in 1969. Their only child, Augusta Lacker, also lives in Arlington Heights with her husband, Jack, and their children. Besides their four grandchildren, Mr. and Mrs. Kurz also have a great-grandson.

William, 74, and Paula, 71, will be observing their golden anniversary with close friends and relatives in their home at 718 N. Salem, and perhaps they will be reminiscing of the days in the old country when they were first introduced through William's sister.

Prospect B&PW Installs Board

The Sun Finally Shone

GETTING AN EARLY START. Robert Scott, a four-year-old budding artist, is a little late to enter this year's show, but there is always next year. His mother, Ethel Scott, was one of the 51 exhibitors.

by GENIE CAMPBELL

The sun didn't shine very kindly on the Hoffman Estates Women's Club Art Festival last weekend. That is, not until Sunday.

Saturday, artists took cover from the intermittent showers beneath the arcade of the Golf Rose Plaza where the show was being held. Many were seated, wrapped up in blankets and warding off the chill with steaming cups of coffee.

Joining the artists were browsing shoppers and art buffs who meandered down the row of exhibits stopping occasionally to admire a painting or ask about a price. They had plenty to look at.

Altogether 51 artists from suburbs and Chicago exhibited their work which spanned a diverse media of art.

WHILE NOT ALL pieces could receive ranks of professionalism, there were sincere artistic attempts in everything displayed. Decoupage, watercolors, hand-painted rocks, oil on velvet, collages and ceramics were just a few of the items available in the rows of booths.

Betsy Harrigan of Arlington Heights somewhat stole the show, taking best of show and first place in graphics and drawing for one of her etchings. She also took first place in the category of oils.

Other first place winners were Stan Dudek of West Chicago for one of his watercolors and Marcie Long in the category of crafts for her exhibit of silver jewelry.

The show opened Saturday morning and continued until 4 p.m. when the judging then took place.

JOHN KNUDSEN, an art faculty member at Harper College, and Bruce Pree and John Doyle, both art instructors at Forest View High School, served as judges.

"I was pleased with the show," said Mrs. Charles Hanlon, fine arts chairman for the woman's club. "There were a number of people walking through the exhibits browsing, particularly on Sunday."

One day of sunshine is better than none at all.

Des Plaines Theatre Guild will hold auditions for the musical "Little Mary Sunshine" to be staged in cooperation with Music On Stage next September.

Tom Ventris, who directed "Funny Thing Happened On The Way To The Forum" for the two northwest community theater groups last fall, will again be at the helm for "Little Mary Sunshine."

Ventris will be casting 22 singers, dancers and actors to play the stock character roles for the romantic opera, a warm-hearted spoof of the Jeanette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy type musicals of the 30's.

The cast must be young or able to project youth except for Fleet Foot, the old Indian guide.

Trips to Hawaii

Beginning June 6 and continuing each Saturday, Cartan, a division of Carte Blanche, offers new low group fare savings on the G.I.T. fare from Chicago to Hawaii, via Northwest's Royal Aloha Jet service.

To qualify for the low rate, travelers are required to go and return together.

With the introduction of this plan, Cartan Travel Agents can offer their clients tour programs and low travel costs.

The Potting Shed

by MARY B. GOOD

Lawnmanship — it falls in the same category as common sense.

A columnist in another local paper last week told readers he had the worst lawn in the neighborhood. If I were him, I wouldn't tell anybody; it's no distinction. Bad lawns are in the majority.

And that's a shame considering how little effort it takes to have a decent lawn. If you can't grow a good blade of grass, there isn't much hope for you on the trickier flowers and vegetables.

Again, a few basic guidelines — I tell the people every spring, but hopefully "The Potting Shed" attracts a different group of lawn neophytes:

Start with a good seed bed. I'm convinced the first month for the seeded lawn or the first two weeks after sodding makes the big difference between a good lawn and one that is good for a baseball diamond.

I KNOW TWO PEOPLE, neighbors, who sowed at the same time with opposite results. One nursed his lawn with a generous supply of water — never let it dry out — that first fortnight — the other watered once or twice, with a lawn that looks like it two years later.

Another lady, a seeder, has the best merion blue lawn in Rolling Meadows, also the biggest water bill, but stretched over a period of 25 years homeownership, she did her lawn cheaply.

Why is it that a fastidious gardener invariably lives next to the "town neglect"? It never fails. You'd think some of it would rub off on them. But remember, all you dandelion breeders, Mrs. Neat next door is glaring at you over your thigh-high weed bed. Hey, neighbor, have you ever considered offering the "town neglect" a can of Erase as a subtle suggestion?

FERTILIZE WITH organics once a month except July and August, never water before July 1, and keep the grass length up to three inches and you won't be bothered by crabgrass. (That lawn weed won't tolerate shade, which is what it gets from three-inch turf). Wait at least two days after a rain or until the

INVITATION

Dear Mr. and Mrs. Homeowner

You are cordially invited to visit our coffee bar at our offices for free coffee and sweet rolls any time between 8:00 a.m. and 5:00 p.m.

Here you will see with your own eyes the workings of an experienced heating and air conditioning shop with all the various trades operating under one roof, with all the necessary tools and equipment to do your work in the most professional manner to protect your investment for years to come.

Today the home owner is a sophisticated and discerning buyer, and, he always takes at least two or more estimates. THAT IS NOT ENOUGH. The buyer should know his contractor and inspect his place of business to be able to decide if this contractor is capable of doing or fulfilling his contract in the proper manner.

THEREFORE, Mr. and Mrs. Homeowner, to be a good judge you must get all of the facts and determine the background and the capabilities of the contractor who is estimating your work, then when satisfied, place your order. Please call for free estimate.

Very truly yours,

AMERICAN COMFORT HEATING & COOLING, INC.

A Paddock Review

Guild's 'Horn' Gets Laughs

by GENIE CAMPBELL

Guild Players ended the season on a successful note Saturday evening with its opening performance of Neil Simon's hilarious comedy, "Come Blow Your Horn."

From a slow and somewhat faltering beginning, the play picked up both speed and audience interest. Turning point was the entrance of Mr. Baker, played by Nate Levin. He and his wife Sarah, who also is his wife in the play, were center attractions and indisputable the evening's best performers.

Nate Levin stole the show when he first appeared on stage during the middle of the first act to protest his son's unpredictable deplorable behavior.

HIS WIFE WAS best at the beginning of the second act when, alone on stage, she became overwrought and entangled in trying to remember several telephone messages at once for Alan. The scene when correctly done is exceedingly funny, and Sarah Levin didn't miss a trick.

The setting for "Come Blow Your Horn" is a bachelor pad in Manhattan. The action revolves around two brothers, Alan and Buddy Baker.

Alan is a fun-loving, job allergic young man whose work in his father's plastic fruit company is less than consistent.

"Nothing but a bum," his father constantly bellows. "You work hard two days a week, need five to recuperate."

MR. BAKER's one appeasement is his younger son Buddy, a retiring quiet soul, the complete opposite of big brother Alan. Yet, Buddy finally exerts his independence, forsakes his poor Dad and moves in with Alan to get a taste of what life is really like.

Pandemonium immediately follows with the outcome completely rearranging the lives of both Buddy and Alan.

Richard Harris is the wandering wayward son, Alan. Buddy is played by Raymond Allan Broms.

At times their performances were irreproachable, but they were not consistent. In dialog between the two, especially in the first act when the characters are in the process of being developed, there was often an absence of sincerity. Their words, sometimes garbled or muffled, were not quite convincing. They were actors on stage, not people.

A LACK OF rapport also was noticeable with Fran Pitchford as Connie Dayton, Alan's future fiancée. It was a big decision giving up her immediate plans for a career to concentrate on taking Alan out of circulation. Yet, her feelings remained unknown to the audience.

And while not causing a crisis, it would aid appearances if Fran stepped out of her high heels. The short affectionate scenes looked a trifle awkward.

Also on stage as the feather brained hoping-to-be-discovered blonde was Patti Ventura. As Peggy Evans, the girl upstairs, Patti was good. Most importantly she looked and dressed the part.

"Come Blow Your Horn" will be presented again this Friday and Saturday at Bristol Theatre of Arlington High School.

Local Art Fair To Be in June

Area artists are invited to exhibit their work at the Mount Prospect Plaza's eighth Annual Art Fair June 6 and 7.

Oil and water color paintings, charcoal drawing and sculpture, will be included. All work exhibited will be for sale.

Artists will also be available to do on the spot charcoal and pastel portraits. Admission is free. Awards and $200 in prizes will be presented Sunday, June 7.

The deadline for applying to exhibit is May 29. Applications are processed on a first-come, first-served basis.

Further information is available through Mrs. Adele Jeschke, 255-0644 (day) or 255-0644 (5-9:30 p.m.).

A new restaurant unlike any other. Top of the Towers.

Nothing quite like it anywhere.

You'll enjoy a bird's eye view of our golf course, and beyond it. Arlington Park Race Track, where thoroughbreds run all spring and summer.

Your gaze will take in a stunning interior, a feast of color wherever you look.

Then, when you call for the menu, another feast begins. Entrees from around the world, with the accent always on fine dining.

During dinner The Notables play old and new tunes for dancing. Starting at 9:30, they blend music, song and comedy and turn Top of the Towers into a supperclub.

In the Towers Lounge, Cees Beart plays guitar and sings in seven languages. A most entertaining background for cocktails.

Spend an evening at Top of the Towers. There's nothing quite like it anywhere.

“Restaurant of the Week”

Beef 'N Barrel

The new Beef 'N Barrel Restaurant on Algonquin Rd., one mile west of Route 53 in Schaumburg, opened its doors to the public February 9 and has been a busy, busy place ever since. Area residents familiar with Beef 'n Barrel in Elk Grove and Lombard welcome this latest addition to the northwest community.

The motif is western — all the way — from the cowgirl and Indian waitresses to the sliding barn doors which frequently divide five separate dining rooms for private parties.

Beef 'n Barrel is famous for its specialty, The Belt Buster — a giant hamburger, cooked to perfection; or for lesser appetites there is the Belt Buster, Jr. The children will like this. You will also want to try their El Toro, a superb Mexican meatball sandwich, which we found delicious. Cocktails are also served.

“For Adults Only” is the Rustler's Loft, overlooking the restaurant up a flight of stairs and featuring a huge fireplace.

With the warm weather approaching, be sure to visit the inviting outdoor Terrace Garden. Bring the whole family - Beef 'n Barrel is a treat for all!

Prospect Club Closes a Busy Year

The scholarships have been awarded, the foreign language records have been presented to Mount Prospect Library and checks have been sent to the police and fire departments as Mount Prospect Woman's Club chalks up another fruitful year.

Although the club year has drawn to a close, the fruits of members' efforts will long be remembered. Mount Prospect Historical Society has also been remembered by the club, as has the park dis-Brain and Cancer Research and the Fourth of July parade. A scholarship still awaits an Indian student.

Many of the funds for the financial donations were raised from the club's annual antique fair, proceeds of which exceeded expectations.

Mrs. Donald Long, president, and her board of directors were in attendance at the recent Illinois Federation banquet at which Mrs. Kay Miller, a past president, received an education award from 7th District.

A potluck luncheon on May 11 closed the season for the club's Veteran Service Department. Under the chairmanship of Mrs. R. H. Adams, the group made 84 scuffles, 11 afghans and collected numerous books and magazines for veterans and servicemen.

Presbyterians — Focal Point For Dissident Groups

by JAMES VESELY

The minister and the hippie were standing toe to toe.

The hippie was talking and gesturing passionately and the lines of emotion creased his face a hundred ways.

The confrontation was a small one that lasted for only a minute in the crowded corridor of the Conrad Hilton Hotel, but, in a small way, it typified a nationwide confrontation that is occurring between a society in turmoil and 3.2 million members of the United Presbyterian Church.

The Presbyterians are the focal point for dissident groups this week because of the 182nd United Presbyterian General Assembly now underway in Chicago.

THE ASSEMBLY IS the major yearly meeting of elders, clergy and officials of the church and it draws participants from across the continent.

And drawn, too, are members of the church from the Northwest suburban communities to meet and discuss the urgent problems of black and white, rich and poor, young and old, the clean and the polluted in a secular world.

Suburban participants in the week-long session range from full delegates to the General Assembly to lay persons who helped with tasks such as serving during a huge communion ceremony.

Named as a commissioner to the assembly with full voting powers was Rev. Roger Boekenbauer of Southminster Presbyterian Church, Arlington Heights.

BOEKENBAUER IS A young, slim man active in the community with a variety of projects. This is his first assignment as a commissioner.

Standing in the back of the long, cavernous room at the Hilton that housed the assembly delegates, Boekenbauer talked about the tone of the Presbyterian conference and the issues that it would face.

"It seems that we are faced with a multiplicity of problems," he said. It's not just the single issues of racial questions or drug problems, or the problems of communicating with young people, it's all of these and somehow they become inter-related with one a part of the other.

Boekenbauer said at the opening session of the assembly that he was "sort of" pledged to support The Rev. Abraham Lincoln Reynolds to the post of moderator.

THE CHOICE OF moderator, the high elective office of the church, was the first serious order of business for the membership and The Rev. Reynolds, a black minister from Chicago, was endorsed by the Presbytery of the Chicago region.

Boekenbauer agreed with many other suburban Presbyterians that Reynolds would be an excellent moderator for the entire membership. The Rev. Thomas Hinkin of the Itasca Presbyterian Church endorsed Reynolds for the post before the assembly convened and said he would work for his election.

Facing the delegates to the assembly was whether the new leader of the United Presbyterians would be a layman or a clergyman, a black or white man, a man from the cities or a man from ministries in small and middle towns of rural America.

AFTER DEBATE, balloting and what amounts to a serious political campaign, the assembly chose William Laws, D.D. of Indianapolis, a man whose ministries have included work in Indiana and Kentucky.

Laws' backers distributed pamphlets about their candidate which portrays him as a moderate, distinguished man. The cover photograph shows Laws sitting informally on the corner of a desk and the introduction to the man reads . . . "Meet Bill Laws . . ." In fact, much more of the Presbyterian Assembly had the full flavor and trappings of a political convention.

Groups within the conference of delegates caucused almost immediately after the orientation session Wednesday.

YOUTH DELEGATES, members of the church who had a voice in the discussions but could not vote, buttonholed commissioners or planned courses of action outside the meeting hall.

Members of the "Submarine Church" met and talked and debated the very existence of formalized religion.

Members of the submarine church question the whole attitude of formal religious bodies meeting in a General Assembly. "Forget the rhetoric, get out into the streets with the people . . ." one of them said. "This is a waste of time."

But to most clergymen, the assembly is anything but a waste of time.

DELEGATES to the 182nd General Assembly began their session with questions about the form and content of the meeting.

The Presbyterians have on their agenda discussions and subcommittees dealing with drug abuse, Vietnam, ecumenicalism, the environmental crisis and the racial issue.

THE AGENDA before the start of the assembly looked like a catalog of current events. It brought the maelstrom of a country divided into the quiet committee rooms and conference halls of reverend clergymen.

It opened the door to politics and confrontation and the whole thing was summed up the first day by a man named William P. Thompson.

Thompson is a Texas lawyer who is the stated clerk of the United Presbyterians. He is like the executive director, the chief administrative officer and the head of the paid staff.

In outlining the rules of the assembly, Thompson early set the stage for the private and public confrontations which would take place throughout the week's session.

"We in the predominantly white Presbyterian Church are used to talking," Thompson said. "But when we enter a confrontation perhaps it would be well for us this time to listen . . . to listen and learn."

WILLIAM THOMPSON, stated clerk of the United Presbyterians: "We of the predominantly white Presbyterian church . . . would do well to listen."

'No Person...a Stranger'

The Sullivan Theater on Congress Street is an ornate work of art that recalls the best of Chicago and this country at the turn of the Century.

It is a frescoed parlor where one sits to watch a stage performance and finds his eyes roaming to murals and elaborate pillars and deep red rugs.

Wednesday evening the Sullivan Theater was filled to capacity by thousands of Presbyterians who came to take communion, to sing together and to climb the marble stairs toward a mural of heaven.

And among those throngs, helping to serve the communion bread and wine, was 64-year old Miss Geraldine Cosby of Palatine who said she rejoiced at what she saw there.

Miss Cosby is a member of the Session at Palatine Presbyterian and a charter member of that church.

She volunteered to help with the preparations for the General Assembly meeting in Chicago and found herself assisting in the communion ceremony.

"It was really a beautiful thing," she said later. "It was so impressive to hear thousands of people singing together in the worship service and then to help when they took communion."

Miss Cosby said she got to the Sullivan Theater and didn't volunteer right away when they asked for young people because those were sent to serve communion at the very top of the auditorium.

She finally did go to the second floor of the hall and helped serve communion amid the plush red carpets and the muted lights of the hall.

"At first I saw the heavy silver trays and cups and I thought I'd never be able to carry so much, but they turned out to be as light as a feather for me."

As a member of the governing board of Palatine Presbyterian, Miss Cosby said she hoped that Rev. Reynolds of Chicago would be elected moderator of the United Presbyterian Church.

"I would have loved to see Reynolds elected," she said. "As a black man he has so much to share with us." Miss Cosby was also favorably impressed with the interpretive modern dance which preceded the communion.

"At first I had to think about the dance," she said, "but then I thought that I sing in the church choir and maybe if I was young, I would want to worship with my whole body instead of just my voice and my heart."

"It was all so beautiful," Miss Cosby said. "I met so many people from all parts of the country. They were strangers to me, but after all, no person is really a stranger."

He Asked And Got St. Peter's Keys

by PETER J. SHAW

LONDON (UPI)—The Bible says ask and ye shall receive. Stanley Abrams asked for and got the keys to St. Peter's.

The Vatican had never allowed a commercial movie maker inside St. Peter's Basilica to film its history, based solely on fact.

Before Stanley Abrams came along, nobody had asked.

Abrams is the producer of "Upon This Rock," a 90-minute feature length color movie filmed almost entirely inside Roman Catholicism's most famous church.

With Pope Paul VI's direct permission, actors were allowed to use St. Peter's in a professional capacity for the first time. Never before had a feature length film been made inside the Basilica.

"The Vatican asked only that the script stick to the truth—to historical fact," Abrams said in London during a private screening of the film. "The whole thing, from beginning to end, is fact."

It took 40 days and 40 nights of filming to recount the construction and the glory of St. Peter's through the words of history and the eyes of men and women who shared its fate.

Orson Welles plays Michelangelo, Dame Edith Evans is Queen Christina of Sweden, Dirk Bogarde is Bonnie Prince Charlie and Sir Ralph Richardson stars as narrator and King James III.

"Strangely enough, the Vatican told me it was the first time anybody had asked to do a feature film with actors on the true history of St. Peter's," Abrams said.

The New York-born producer said Pope Paul's only request was that the film show the Basilica "as a living church, not just a tourist attraction." The film includes five minutes of the pontiff's 1969 Christmas Mass.

Shooting outdoor scenes during the day and working inside the Basilica from 6 p.m. to 6 a.m. so as not to disturb daytime routine, the "Upon This Rock" crew took 75,000 feet of color film—enough for 12 hours of viewing.

Abrams submitted the script, authored by Emmy-winning writer Harry Rasky, and the names of the cast to the Pontifical Commission for Social Communications last August. Approval was given two months later with two conditions.

—The film will be translated into all the world's significant languages.

—It will be made available in 16mm form as well as the contemporary 35mm version so countries with less modern projection systems can screen it.

Even the Russians have asked for a copy, Abrams said.

Abrams was inspired to film the history of St. Peter's after reading several architectural books on the engineering feats involved in its construction.

The film cost "in excess of $500,000" to produce, he said.

5 Area Bowlers In All-Star Test

Five area bowlers, four with Paddock Classic Traveling League backgrounds, will compete in the 28th Annual Bowling Proprietors Association All-Star Tournament May 22-29 at Strike 'N Spare Lanes in Northbrook.

Bill Smith of Arlington Heights, Al Jordan of Rolling Meadows, Les Zikes Jr. of Palatine, and Peggy Harris and Ken Hilb of Des Plaines will be among 320 of the nation's leading professional and amateur bowlers who will be vying for $65,000 in prize money.

Smith, Jordan, Zikes and Miss Harris are Paddock Classic Bowlers, and Zikes is a regular on the professional tour.

The All-Star tourney is sponsored by the Metropolitan Chicago Area BPA Promotion Council.

Tickets will be available at the door for the afternoon and evening sessions at the Northbrook establishment.

Defending champions Billy Hardwick of Louisville, Ky., and Dorothy Fothergill of North Attleboro, Mass., will be leading the bowlers who earned their All-Star spots by winning local and state qualifying tournaments or by their outstanding performances in BPAA, ABC, WIBC, PBA and PWBA bowling events.

Included in the field are six past men's All-Star champions and eight past women's champions. The men and the years they won the crown are Hardwick, 1969; Les Schissler of Denver, Colo., 1967; Harry Smith of Fresno, Calif., 1960; Jim Stanich of Joliet, Ill., 1968; Bill Tucker of St. Louis, Mo., 1961 and Dick Weber of Florissant, Mo., 1962, 1963, 1965, 1966.

Past women's champions are Joy Abel of Lansing, Ill., 1968; Gloria Bouvia of Portland, Ore., 1967; Anita Cantaline of Detroit, Mich., 1965; LaVerne Carter of St. Louis, Mo., 1964; Miss Fothergill, 1968 and 1969; Shirley Garms of Chicago, Ill., 1961; and Ann Slattery of Salt Lake City, Utah, 1965.

Falcons Win Over Wheeling

Forest View's tennis squad closed out their 1970 campaign with their sixth straight conference dual victory when they subdued a hosting Wheeling team, 4-1.

Ron Fedyski and Wayne Fish were the only Wildcat winners, coming from behind to fell Scott Vaughn and Dick Martin at first doubles 3-6, 6-2, 6-2. In the other doubles fray Bill Joyce and John Placek of the guests stopped Dave McAllister and Tom Fielder 6-2, 6-3.

The Falcons completely dominated singles play. Don Martin won at the No. 1 slot after a 6-1, 5-7, 8-6 skirmish with Bob Lemke. Fred Melone breezed past Vern Fish at second singles 6-1, 6-1 and Kirk Buckholz toppled Ron Cuff 6-1, 6-0 in the No. 3 contest.

The decision had Forest View finishing up with an 8-1 conference mark and a 15-3 overall dual slate. The 'Cats wound up owning a 2-7 loop mark.

The visitors also captured the freshman meeting, 5-0.

Great Olympic Losers

It is a bit ironic, but a pair of the greatest distance runners of all time have never won an Olympic gold medal. Jim Ryun, who holds the world record in the 800-yard run and mile run, and Ron Clarke, who holds the world record at two miles, three miles and six miles, have never won an Olympic first place

George L. Busse Moves Into 3rd

Illinois Range bounced back into sole possession of first place in the Mount Prospect Twilight Golf League after posting a relaxed 7-3 victory over last place Striking Lanes in Tuesday night's action at Mount Prospect Country Club.

Carter Music Shop, last week's most earnest contender, dropped 3½ points off the pace after absorbing a 6½-3½ setback by Kirchhoff Insurance, who were on the rebound after last week's shut-out.

Geo L. Busse eased past Keefer's Pharmacy 6-4, moving into undisputed third place and in strong contention for second place while Mt. Prospect State Bank dropped well off the pace after a 9-1 shellacking administered by Licht's Paint Store.

Louie's Barber Shop moved up a few notches in the standings after squeezing by Kruse's Tavern 6-4, but Keefer's Pharmacy remained unchanged despite a similar 6-4 victory over Busse-Biermann Hdwe.

The Country Club fairways were in excellent playing condition but the well-watered, lush rough added strokes to every score. Low gross honors were awarded to Don Snyder after a 43 over the first nine. Low net went to Roland Miller with a 46 gross 31 net.

Birdies were reported by D. Snyder and C. Peterson No. 3, B. Salzman No. 7 and 9, R. Miller No. 11, C. Pelhne No. 13, R. Becker No. 14 and E. Pociask No. 18.

Team standings May 19:
Illinois Range 28

Sherman Sinks 153-Yarder

Nobody would believe it; however, there were three reliable witnesses to prove it.

Harry Sherman, playing in a foursome in Union Oil Men's Golf League Tuesday evening sank a 153-yard approach shot on the 11th hole at Palatine Hills Golf Course. The hole is a par 4 with three bunkers, three sand traps and a slightly elevated green.

Shooting blindly but with great accuracy from the fairway, Sherman's ball disappeared over a bunker but was located in the cup after some glancing around the green. Reports are that despite this brilliant shot, Harry halved the hole.

Sherman's club selection for this shot was an ancient chipper rarely used by him prior to "the" shot.

Another difficult shot was made by Ingle the same evening. Blasting out of a trap on the long par 5 No. 3 hole, he holed out.

LEST THE REPUTATION of the League receive undue commendation, it must be noted that many of the golfers are still shooting some 10s and 11s. "Joining the club" this week were several outstanding golfers who hacked away on the par 4 ninth hole, allegedly for the first time.

Monday night bracket leaders are 1, Sharboro, 7 points, 2, Calloway, 7 points, 3, Brooks, 8 points, 4, Wagner, 7½ points.

Tuesday night bracket leaders are 1, Mehl, 7 points; 2, Babbs, 7½ points; 3, Sherman, 7 points, 4, Lyons, 7 points.

Top Quality Instruction Scheduled for Cage Camp

Just a month from today — June 22 — those area youngsters who have signed up for the Illinois All-American Basketball Camp will be starting to reap the benefits of top quality instruction.

The 10-day, two-week camp — which will run from 9:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. at the Forest View High School gym in Arlington Heights from June 22 to July 3 — will have such great basketball names as Jerry Sloan, Sherrill Hanks, Dick Campbell and his head coach — Harv Schmidt.

Schmidt, who will appear during one of the sessions as will the other three men, has an excellent record and top-flight credentials. In his brief period as the head man at the University of Illinois, he has earned nationwide recognition as one of the bright young men in collegiate coaching.

This past season, Schmidt directed Illinois to a 15-3 record and a third place tie in the Big Ten Conference. He also finished fourth in the national Coach-of-the-Year balloting.

Schmidt took a team which had been ravaged by the "slush fund scandal" and molded it into a winner. His three-year record now stands at 45-27, but the best seasons look to be in the 1970s as he has one of the most talented freshman teams ever.

"Defense" is one of Schmidt's favorite words and he'll show and explain just how to do it to those lucky boys who sign up. He'll be revealing the keys to making the popular man-to-man pressure style defense work to perfection.

Schmidt was also a fine player besides being an excellent coach. He prepped at Kankakee and then became a full-time starter his junior year with the Illini. His senior year he was team captain, ranked fourth in the conference in scoring and was named the most valuable player.

Following graduation, Schmidt played for three seasons with the Denver-Chicago Truckers in the National Industrial Basketball League and was also a member of the U.S. AAU squad that toured Russia in 1958.

Before his assignment at Illinois and his assistant coaching job at New Mexico, he was a successful high school coach. He spent two years at West High in Davenport, Ia. and one season at Moline High School.

So Harv Schmidt has had a very well rounded background in basketball which makes him one of the top men to speak to area boys on how to play the game and succeed at it.

Area boys from the fourth through ninth grades (the latter must be connected with the junior and not senior highs) will be eligible to attend for the very moderate price of $35 for a two-week session.

The camp will be limited to just 100 boys so that each youngster will be able to receive plenty of individual instruction.

For his $35, each boy will receive 30 hours of instructions, individual movies taken of each camper to improve his shooting, group sessions to improve all the skills of each player and movies of the greatest college and professional players in action.

If area boys went out of town for such a camp, it will cost at least $100 for only one week.

Along with the four well-known men previously mentioned, will be coaches from high school, junior high and grad schools. They all will be under the guidance of Camp Director Elmer "Bud" Bornman.

Bornman points out that all the junior high coaches in the District 214 area have information and brochures for area boys to fill out. However, if they should run out of the sheets, boys should contact Bornman at 394-2485.

Prospect Net Team Wins, 4-1

Prospect rolled to a surprisingly easy 4-1 victory over Elk Grove in the final tennis meet of the season for both teams. Coach Ken Rundquist's Grenadiers finished with a 6-3 conference record and 11-5 overall (including a quad victory).

Prospect claimed easy wins in the first two singles spots. Steve Collins defeated Pat Massey 6-1, 6-3 in No. 1 singles and Rob Zimmanck downed Chris Lesniak 6-1, 6-0 at No. 2. Elk Grove's only point came in No. 3 singles, with Ken Siebold beating Chuck VandenBosch, 6-0, -61.

At first doubles, Prospect's Chris Sales and Jeff Muradian outpointed Dave Griffith and Mark Hopkins, 6-2, 6-4. The Knights' second doubles team, Jim Witt and Kevin McIntosh, also prevailed, 4-6, 6-3, 6-3 over Al Lewandowski and Mark Greenberg.

The Knights also whipped the Grenadiers 4-1 in frosh-soph action.

Canada Dominates NHL

Since 1955 only two teams, other than those from Canada have won the Stanley Cup in the National Hockey League. Boston won the Cup in 1970 and Chicago won the Cup in 1961. In every other year since 1955, either Montreal or Toronto has won the Cup.

Nationals Dominate

The National League has won every All-Star baseball game played since 1963.

Schmerler Ford's Entry Impresses in Two Races

With Bob Wood behind the wheel, Schmerler Ford's "Boss 302" stock car has been the class of the field in the two races in which it has run.

In the first outing, Wood and his machine whipped some good competition at the Rockford Windsor Park Raceway, finishing fourth out of 100 cars and finishing first in their classification.

Two weeks later the Schmerler Race Team, based in Elk Grove Village, won at the Rockford Speedway to give the "Boss 302" a two-for-two record in the win column.

Wood has been working as a mechanic for the Schmerler Ford dealership for two and a half years when not racing. Wood began racing at the age of 18, which gives him 10 years of racing experience.

Wood began his apprenticeship under star racing driver Bryant Tucker, who

Fun Fair Fun Despite Rain

Wet weather didn't dampen the Roselle Lincoln School fun fair Saturday and first estimates by principal Mrs. Delores Spain are the festivities earned the school between $400 and $500.

The bicycle maneuvering contest was the only event seriously in danger of being eliminated by the weather but judges Don Bossey and Mrs. Norbert Cichon braved the wet weather and watched as the entries rode their bikes through an obstacle course.

Six winners in two age groups won separate engraved trophies. Tim Johnson, first grade, Bruce Bonfield, second grade, and Terry Rozko, third grade, won first, second and third prize respectively in the first through sixth grade category.

Carl Kloppenborg, sixth grade and Richard Kempeki and Steve Knapp, both fifth graders, won first, second and third prizes in the fourth through sixth grade category.

Village Firemen Set Annual Spring Dance

Addison firemen believe in calling it close. They are planning their spring dance just days before the official beginning of summer.

The 12th annual spring dance is scheduled June 13 at Driscoll High School, 555 N. Lombard Rd., Addison. Music will be provided by The Novel Men.

Free corsages will be given to the first 150 ladies in attendance. Refreshments will be available.

Starting at 9 p.m., the dancing will continue until through the evening. A donation of $1 per person is being asked.

Tickets are available from firemen or at the fire station at 666 S. Vista Ave., Addison.

Summer Hours Set By Village Offices

The Bloomingdale village clerk and building commissioner offices will change to summer hours effective June 1, according to clerk Mrs. Kay Funk.

Offices will be closed May 29 and Memorial Day (May 30) for the holiday.

Summer hours will be as follows: closed Monday, 9 a.m. to noon on Tuesday, Thursday and Friday, 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Wednesday and Saturday.

Mrs. Funk said the new hours will be in effect until after Labor Day when the regular hours resume.

Moose Convention Set

Gov. Marvin Mc Vane and Sec. James Janet of Addison Moose Lodge No. 2207 will serve as delegates to the 82nd annual international convention of the Loyal Order of Moose to be held at Mooseheart on June 14 and in Chicago June 15-18.

They will be among more than 8,000 Moose men and women attending the convention and the conference of the Women of the Moose.

The official opening of the convention will take place at 3 p.m., June 14 in the field house on the Mooseheart campus. Following the opening ceremonies, commencement exercises will be held for the 38 members of the Class of 1970 of Mooseheart High School.

OTHER EVENTS scheduled for Sunday are the dedication of the J. Jack Stoeck-Big Seven Memorial at 1:30 p.m. followed by dedication of the Carolina Building. Conventioners will be invited to view the facilities improved in the one million dollar Mooseheart Modernization Program and schools and shops will be open so visitors may inspect them.

The convention and the women's conference will shift to the Conrad Hilton Hotel in Chicago on Monday morning. Business sessions will be held from Monday through Thursday with panel sessions scheduled for the first three afternoons.

Social activities will include the Pilgrim breakfast Monday morning, quartet competition and civic affairs program Monday evening, fellowship breakfast Tuesday morning, 25 Club party Tuesday evening and the grand ball on Wednesday night.

THE LODGE will hold its Second Annual Friendship Dance on Sat. June 6, at Driscoll High School, 555 Lombard Rd., Addison.

Music will be furnished by the Knights of Rhythm. Prizes for the dance include a weekend at Pheasant Run. Donation is $1 per person. Tickets are available from members.

Doughnut Day Leader Named

Mrs. Gene Olson, 1106 Westwood Trail in Addison, will serve as chairman for The Salvation Army's Doughnut Day, June 12. The Addison Welcome Wagon Newcomers' Club has adopted Doughnut Day as an official club project and will assist Mrs. Olson in tagging activities.

Over 9,000 volunteers will sell familiar paper doughnut tags on street corners in 135 suburban communities in the surrounding area. The income goal for the 1970 Doughnut Day is $197,000. The funds will help benefit the anticipated 200,000 men, women and children in the area who will be helped during 1970 through the social welfare services provided by The Salvation Army.

Through the 46 institutions, departments and neighborhood centers of The Salvation Army, a multitude of services are provided each year to people in need.

These religious and social service programs include casework and counseling for families and individuals; a home-maker service to prevent family disintegration during problem periods; an emergency lodge for victims of personal and community disasters; a day care center for the children of working mothers; an outstanding rehabilitation program for alcoholics which offers religious, medical, psychological and material support in the process of returning these men to society; emergency canyons at disaster sites; work therapy programs for the handicapped and homeless; a home and hospital for unwell mothers, children and senior citizens; a dental clinic for people of substandard income; weekly religious meetings; and other activities which bring comfort and direction to those in need.

Tagging activities on June 12 will begin at 6 a.m. and extend through the early evening hours. This is the 32nd consecutive year for Doughnut Day in the Chicagoland area and Chicago is the only metropolitan area where Doughnut Day is conducted.

Nottke Doesn't Mind This Name

Wilbert Nottke has been called a lot of names in his political career and Monday he received the best one yet — "grandfather."

Born to Scott and Vicki Nottke at St. Alexius Hospital was William Mark who tipped the scales at 9 pounds 4 oz. and was 21 inches long.

William Mark is the first grandchild for both grandparents Henry and Thelma Keyworth and Wilbert and Patricia Nottke.

Although he didn't pass out cigars, Itasca's president did flow with praise-filled rhetoric on the occasion.

Father Scott inscribed "It's A Boy" sign on his home window for his wife who expects to return home today.

Jaycees Officers Will Be Installed

Newly elected officers of the Roselle Jaycees will be installed next month at the June 17 meeting. Tom Conroy is president; Mike Brusco, internal vice-president; Ralph Geissen, external vice-president; Randy Stearns, secretary; and John Leeper, treasurer.

Also elected at Wednesday's meeting were Bruno Solwinski, Bob Brown and Marshall Roulette as board of director members.

The Jaycees discussed plans for a clean-up Roselle campaign and their circus on Aug. 3, a new event sponsored by the group.

Keeneyville Church Sets Gospel Film

The Kenneyville Bible Church will show the gospel film "Fast Was No Where" Sunday at 7:30 p.m. in the church hall.

There is no admission and the public is invited.

The film is a candid look at the short-circuited morality of the "lively ones," according to the Rev. Dan Roop.

For further information call the church at 231-6453.

Teenagers Push for Rock Dances

What was originally a speech project at Lake Park High School may turn into a summer recreational program for teenagers in Itasca and surrounding area.

That's the hope of three Itasca students who seek use of a school gymnasium for rock dances on weekends through the sponsorship of the park board.

"We want more recreational stuff," spokesman Willie Campbell said. "For this summer we want dances."

Campbell, a junior at Lake Park, and fellow students Chuck Little and Kevin Lloyd are earnestly trying to give youngsters "something to do" over the summer vacation besides getting into trouble. They are dissatisfied with the lack of suitable recreation for teenagers in Itasca and the area.

"KIDS ON FRIDAY and Saturday night do go out and most of the time have booze in the car because there is no place to go and nothing to do," Campbell says.

Campbell's dilemma is common and not isolated to Itasca youth who have no entertainment places to visit except the local root beer stand or snack shop. It is no wonder that summer vacation is the peak of student vandalism throughout the area.

While road rallies, movie drinking, and a trip through the local drive-in constitute the primary modes of entertainment for the area youth, others have found inactivity an opportunity to exploit "pot parties" and vandalism.

And when teenagers walk out of the house and they are going "out" — the truth is self-evident because there is no place else to go.

THE CLOSEST movie is miles away and social dancing means a journey to "The Cellar" in Arlington Heights.

"We just drive around trying to find something to do," Campbell admits. "We waste a lot of gas that way."

Driving around looking for something often brings troubles as a result. Itasca, Wood Dale and Roselle youth have no theaters to attend or places for teenagers to dance.

Itasca's village board, although receptive to the youth's discontentment proposals, have told the students that entertainment is developed by private enterprise which has not chosen Itasca and the surrounding area as a "money-maker."

"WE'RE CONCERNED with recreational facilities for the area," Wilbert Nottke, Itasca village president affirmed. "Most of the things you're looking for should come from the park district."

Campbell and his youth committee will seek Itasca Park Board approval and sponsorship for weekend dances for one of the village's vacant gymnasiums Monday night at 8 p.m. in the village hall.

The students want a rock band and feel the needed entertainment that will be provided will curtail student unrest and vandalism over the summer.

"It will stop a lot of kids from drinking and road rallying," admits Campbell.

"If there is a dance with a good group playing, a lot of kids will come," student Little asserts. "It definitely will keep the kids off the street and out of trouble."

TROUBLE IS ONE thing all the students hope to avoid if their plan is to be accepted by the park board and school board. And to keep everything socially acceptable, the students have established their own self-imposed code of rules to govern weekend dances.

The student committee has decided to enforce proper dress rules and will tolerate no drinking or rowdiness on the premises. Soda and snacks will be available and a membership card may be purchased for $1 to cover rent and refreshment expenses.

"The kids in this area are pretty good," Campbell stresses. "I don't see much trouble developing."

If Campbell's words are violated by immature students, Itasca police have volunteered supervision of the weekend dances.

A LEAD SINGER for an Itasca rock band called "421 Madison Street," Kevin Lloyd, has indicated his group would be glad to play the first few dances free of charge.

Trouble-seeking students aren't the chief concern of the students. They are worried by critical parents who find complaining about long hair easier than supporting a positive program for the village's youth.

The Lake Park students want to limit the dance attendance to students from the high school and surrounding area.

"A lot of kids would show up if it was well publicized," admits singer Lloyd.

A lot might just show up because they are getting tired of doing nothing and there is no place else to go.

Urge Action On Park Site

John Varble, Bensenville Village president requested the park board Wednesday night "commence action" on the proposed park site in east Bensenville.

"I hope you won't wait another year," Varble said. "This park would provide a buffer zone for whatever industry is constructed in that area."

The East Bensenville Homeowners Association has been prodding the park board to speed their action on the proposed park.

The park board has indicated difficulties in securing ownership of land at the proposed park site has slowed down the development.

Varble said he has "talked to many people" who feel the park site is sorely needed on the east side of the village.

THE EAST Bensenville Homeowners Association has cited the inaccessibility to other park recreation sites as one of the reasons for the priority need of the proposed park in their area. The citizens claim York Road cuts them off from many village facilities and unless an overpass or some other safety feature is installed on the "improved" York Road, the availability of such facilities will diminish.

Two weeks ago the park board indicated a "deal was in the making" with a property owner to secure land for the proposed park site. The board would not reveal the name or location of the property under negotiation for fear of jeopardizing the sale. Donald Carroll contends premature publication of the park site might hamper negotiations.

Wednesday night the board indicated plans for the purchase of the park site were moving along, but they refused to release the property owners name or the location of the proposed park.

The board assured Varble plans for the proposed park site were being worked out and soon the more specific details of the proposed park could be released.

Borrowing of Money OK'd

The School Board of Education of Bloomingdale at their recent meeting authorized the borrowing of money from the working cash fund to the educational fund so the current payroll can be met.

Officials said this is in keeping with the transfers that have been made from this fund for the past several years. As of the end of April the board of education bookkeeper as well as the treasurer indicated there was a cash balance less than $1,300 in the educational fund with $5,000 presently invested coming due near the end of May.

Since the usual expenditure from the educational fund is in the neighborhood of $30,000, the cash assets in the educational fund would not be sufficient. For this reason, the board of education authorized the loan from the working cash fund of up to $50,000. At the end of the fiscal year and as soon as tax money is received, the educational fund must repay the money borrowed.

The board of education appointed Mrs. Margaret Swindells as the district treasurer for a two year period starting July 1. She has been the district treasurer for more than 10 years.

The board accepted the resignation of the principal at the DuJardin School, Dale Kewitz, who has already left the employ of Dist. 13. The board also accepted the resignation of the band director, Richard Pelonero, who will leave the area in June, and Mrs. Sandra Carpenter, the vocal music instructor, who has already left to go to South America.

Supt. Ralph Loeper was authorized to deal where necessary for saving money through a state purchasing agent as part of a move to consolidate the five school districts under Lake Park High School.

Mrs. Roberta Dimpsey of the Bloomingdale board was appointed as the board member for Dist. 13 to work with the Consolidation study committee.

Special Rite, Special Music

With guitar accompaniment, the Christian Minstrels of Walther Lutheran High School will provide much of the music for the special Trinity Sunday Service at Roselle Trinity Lutheran Church this Sunday.

"We believe non-members, along with our own congregation will find this an unusual and interesting service," Pastor Eugene Trieglaff said, "and the community is certainly invited to share it with us."

Walter Horn, director of the folk-singing young people from Walther promises

"an exciting worship experience for those who are interested in finding new ways to sing praises to God and enjoy this style of music."

Trinity's assistant pastor Robert Kretzschmar, will deliver the sermon and accompany congregational singing on the guitar.

The contemporary service with Holy Communion begins at 11 a.m. in the church at Park and Elm Streets. Traditional services will be held at the regularly scheduled hours of 8 and 9:30 a.m.

Top Posters On Exhibit

The entrance to the Bensenville Village Hall closely resembled an art museum this week.

On display 21 winning bicycle safety posters artfully created and designed by Bensenville youngsters to commemorate Bicycle Safety Week in the village.

Each poster portrays some facet of bicycle safety. Examples of the captions include "Wear light clothes when you drive your bike at night" or "Don't show off." One captioned poster, appropriately illustrated, reads "Look Mom, no hands. Look Mom no feet. Look Mom, no teeth."

Poster winners from the W. A. Johnson School are Guy LaLessa, Cindy Baier, Melody Muzik, David Schreier, Jeff Richter, Jul Niles, James Samaras and Maureen Baier.

Mohawk winners were Diane Lump, Chuck Schroeder, Annette Vasconcelas and John Bush.

Dawn Lunlau, Vicki McGann, Ceaser Montez Jr. and Mary Hurley were the winners from Tioja.

St. Charles Borromeo winners were J. Incondola, Joe Allruscato, Lauriann Cernero and Sharon Kotche.

Chippewa's poster winners were Gayle Egide and Jane Kerr.

Student Gets Award In Poster Contest

A Bensenville St. Charles Borromeo school student was recently awarded honorable mention in the Northern Illinois Gas Company's School Safety Poster Contest.

Gregory Andre, of 945 Daniel Drive, was among several local children to receive an award citation.

The poster contest, highlighting art work and safety slogans, was open to students in elementary grades one through four. There were nearly 3,000 posters entered in the competition.

Judges of the contest included experts from the National Safety Council and the Walt Disney organization.

Maple Street Parking Sought

Itasca's new Antique Shop, 125 W. Orchard Street, is seeking additional parking for its customers on Maple Street.

Antique Shop representative Peg Belli sought village permission Tuesday to utilize Maple Street for parking but Trustee Roy Johnson, street commissioner, indicated that parking was restricted because of the narrowness of the street and the excessive commuter parking.

While Antique Shop personnel said they would supply the stone for sidewalk parking, Wilbert Nottke, Itasca village president, urged them to approach Realtor Westley Luehring for use of his property for parking.

Luehring's property is located behind the antique business but Nottke admitted that the Realtor has rejected former parking proposals for the property.

Athletic Banquet Slated For June 5

The Addison Trail Booster Club is inviting mothers and fathers of athletes to attend its fourth annual spring athletic banquet to be held June 5 at 6:30 p.m., in the Addison Trail High School cafeteria.

Tickets for the dinner will be $3.50 per person. A limited number of tickets are available and reservations must be made no later than June 1. Tickets are available through the school athletic office.

Coach Frank Hulka will be guest speaker for the banquet and special recognition will be given to seniors and varsity letter winners.

Notice of Public Hearing

ON AN ANNEXATION AGREEMENT BETWEEN THE VILLAGE OF ITASCA, ILLINOIS

Public Notice is hereby given that the corporate authorities of the Village of Itasca, Illinois, will hold a public hearing on Tuesday, June 16, 1970, at 8:00 P.M. in the Village Council Room located on the second floor of the Itasca Village Hall, located at 100 North Walnut Street, Itasca, Illinois, to consider a proposed Annexation Agreement between the Village of Itasca, a municipal corporation, Aetech, Inc., and Harris Trust and Savings Bank, as Trustee under Trust No. 33608, pursuant to the provisions of Division 13.1 of the Illinois Municipal Code of 1961 (Ill. Rev. Stat. 1967, Ch. 24, Sec. 11-15.1-1 et seq.).

Said proposed agreement provides for the annexation to the Village of certain territory lying North of Thorndale Avenue, South of Crest Avenue and East of the East of Main Road (of extended South), and approximately 2600 feet West of Route 53, being legally described as:

PARCEL 1
The South East corner of the North West quarter of Section 1, Township 40 North, Range 10 East of the Third Principal Meridian, in DuPage County, Illinois.

Lots 8 and 9 in Butler's Modern Terrace, Unit No. Three, a subdivision of part of the Southwest Quarter of Section 1, Township 40 North, Range 10 East of the Third Principal Meridian in DuPage County, Illinois.

Said proposed agreement provides for the development of the property to be annexed, aggregating a total of approximately 16 acres, in accordance with a master plan. Approximately 15 acres would be zoned "R-3 General Residential District" upon annexation, subject to a Planned Development Ordinance. The remaining 1 acre would be zoned "M-1 Limited Manufacturing District" upon annexation. The Planned Development would consist of 481 apartment units and 648 parking spaces and includes five five-story buildings.

The "M-1 Limited Manufacturing District" would be developed as a small industrial park, separated from the residential property along Thorndale Avenue by a buffer zone of multiple family residence buildings arranged around a six-acre lake.

Said agreement further provides for procedures for subdivision of the property, including guarantees for the installation of public improvements, provisions for water and sewer facilities, adoption of the Chicago Building Code, and the continued enforcement of certain existing village ordinances as applied to said property. Said agreement will be in full force and effect for a period of five years from the date of its approval and execution by the Village, as provided by law. A copy of the proposed Annexation Agreement is on file at the office of the Village Clerk in the Itasca Village Hall and may be examined during office hours.

All persons desiring an opportunity to be heard at said Annexation Agreement will be given an opportunity to be heard.

WILLIAM B. MICHALCZYK
Village Clerk

Habit-forming.

When you stack one U.S. Savings Bond on top of another, it becomes a habit that's tough to break and hard to beat. That's because it's so painless. Just tell your employer or banker to set aside a regular amount from your paycheck before you have a chance to spend it. Sign up today.

NOW—Higher Rates!

Savings Bonds now pay 4.25% when held to maturity—and Freedom Shares (sold in combination with E Bonds) pay a full 5%. The extra interest will be added as a bonus at maturity.

And now you can buy the Bond/Freedom Share combination any time—no monthly commitment necessary. Get the facts where you work or bank.

U.S. Savings Bonds, new Freedom Shares

How to be LITTLE... and get big attention!

Advertising must attract attention to be successful . . . if people don't see an ad, they can't read it . . . if they can't read it, they won't react to it.

There are many ways to make an ad attractive . . . color, provocative headlines, fancy illustrations or just plain big ads that can't be missed.

There is, however, one kind of ad that gets attention without being big or colorful . . . the CLASSIFIED AD.

They are small but powerful and they move virtually millions of items each year. They help the jobless, they locate homes and home buyers, advise people on current events, sell cars and generally perform a necessary service in countless ways . . . day in and day out.

No . . . you really don't have to be big to get attention. A little classified ad in the Herald and Register will get your message to more than 39,000 interested families in a big way.

REWARDING

Immediate openings in our phone room for ladies who have lots of enthusiasm, a will to learn and a desire to talk with people. You'll be working for an advertising director and a company who really cares about people. It could be the most rewarding and enjoyable position you've ever had. Sound interesting? You bet it is! This 5 day per week position involves handling established advertising accounts and developing new ones. Previous experience in sales, public contact or phone work helpful but not necessary. A pleasant, outgoing personality, a little determination and the ability to type is what it takes. We'll train you to do the rest.

SALARY PLUS INCENTIVES

Wage review guaranteed after first 3 months, then regular increases on merit. This is not a commission-type job but added incentives mean you can easily make more than the set wages. Your extra earnings will largely depend on how well you personally perform. Many liberal company benefits including paid vacations and holidays, sick leave, profit sharing, hospitalization, disability insurance and company paid life insurance.

You may be just the person we're looking for and we may be just the company you're looking for. One way to find out — come in and fill out an application. Ask for Walt Tetting, Classified Advertising Manager.

Appeal to Nixon: Halt O'Hare Expansion

Twenty suburban communities will appeal to President Nixon to stop expansion of O'Hare Airport.

Members of the O'Hare Area Noise Abatement Council will ask the President to deny a land conveyance of 365 acres from the Department of Defense to the City of Chicago.

The tract, part of a military reservation at the northwest corner of the airport near Mannheim and Higgins roads, is the site of a third northwest-southeast runway and an international terminal building, said council representatives this week.

George Franks, a resident of Wood Dale and chairman of the council, said Tuesday the municipalities are formally protesting the expansion of the "world's busiest airport." Included are Addison, Bensenville, Wood Dale, Roselle, Itasca, Bloomingdale and several Cook County Communities.

FRANKS SAID the city plans to obtain the acreage for $1 from the Defense Department. The land is valued at $123 million, he added.

Without the conveyance, O'Hare will not be able to expand," he said. "We want the President to deny the request to convey the federal land."

Franks said the expansion of O'Hare would affect the lives of residents of 30 surrounding municipalities — approximately 1.5 million people.

He said a public meeting next Wednesday in Bensenville's Fenton High School will be held to allow residents to express themselves on the issue. Sen. Ralph T. Smith, R-Ill., may appear at that meeting, he said.

He predicted 2,000 residents would attend the meeting. "The turnout will tell us what our next action will be," he said.

WARREN EDWARDS, a commercial pilot and resident of Elk Grove Village, said the city plans to add three more runways to O'Hare as funds become available. The additional runways would affect all communities, he said.

O'Hare would have nine major runways in all. It currently has five, with one under construction.

A northeast-southwest runway requiring the relocation of Irving Park Road near Bensenville is presently being built. It is the object of a suit by Park Ridge officials, who contend it was approved by the city without adequate notice to suburban communities.

Park Ridge is expected to be part of another suit, joining Schiller Park and Bensenville in asking that the city curtail further expansion until proper noise and air pollution devices are devised for jets.

The suit is expected to be filed in Republican DuPage County, where the court may be more sympathetic than if filed in Democratic Cook County, where Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley is a strong proponent of airport expansion.

Board Nixes Shopping Site

A recommendation against zoning for a possible community-type shopping center along Roselle Road was made by the Roselle Zoning Board of Appeals Wednesday night.

The board voted unanimously against the request by Irene A. Kisselburg to rezone three lots north of the post office from R-2 residential to a B-2 community business district.

Approximately 40 residents from the area attended the public hearing opposing the rezoning.

The request will be submitted to the village board who has the final authority to grant the zoning.

Noting the village board's alleged tendency to ignore zoning board recommendations, zoning board member Lorne Long presented a list of his objections "at the risk of being redundant" but in the hope "the village board might be influenced by them."

CHARLES Neal, the attorney for Mrs. Kisselburg told the board the property might be used as a community shopping center with about five stores or it might have just one large store.

Some of the types of stores Neal said could be built included an ice cream parlor, an antique shop, an art supply store and a food store.

Neal also felt the high traffic flows on Roselle Road, the future Elgin O'Hare expressway, suited the area to commercial development and predicted the residential area to the north would eventually be sold as commercial.

Most area residents and zoning board members disagreed and felt small business would only devalue the homes and deteriorate the small park directly behind the property.

RICHARD ZAMPA, 314 N. Roselle Rd. also felt a business would hurt Turner Park, across the street and create a traffic hazard for the children in the neighborhood.

Zampa presented a petition with about 200 names opposing the zoning but it wasn't certified by the village clerk.

Illustrating the problems food stores can cause for homeowners, John Kollar, 100 W. Granville Ave., brought a bag of litter from his lawn generated from people using the 7-Eleven store.

"I don't live near the property in question but I know the trouble this type of store can be," Kollar said.

Louis Narcisi, another area resident told the board the Kisselburg property, the small park and the adjoining residents to the west "are in fact all one entire terrain . . . the stores they are proposing will be part of the view of the homeowners."

NARCISI explained the homes are higher than the Kisselburg property and are in effect overlooking it.

A plan commission member, Narcisi, voted against the zoning request at the May 7 meeting of the plan commission.

Dr. Edward G. Fortier, 304 N. Roselle Rd., favored the zoning calling it "the most natural and normal zoning progression . . . that would create a balance in the village."

Fortier said the traffic problem exists already and is a separate matter. He also denied claims that property would be devalued.

Long and other board members opposed the zoning as a form of financial relief to Mrs. Kisselburg, stating the area was and should remain a buffer zone between the commercial south of Hattendorf Avenue and the residential to the north and east.

In other action, the board also recommended against a special use permit to T&H Construction Co. to install a special 3,000 underground gas tank and build a garage storage building.

THE BOARD also voted 5-1 against recommending a special use permit be granted to the Lake Shore Oil Co. for a car wash on Irving Park Road and Maple Avenue.

The car wash would be built on the site of the existing laundry and would be adjacent to another car wash already in operation.

Harry Robb, real estate manager for Lake Shore Oil, testified the car wash "would be a replacement for a brush, pail and an arm," and could service approximately 25 cars per hour. Gasoline would also be sold on the site.

Long was the only member in favor of granting the special use permit because "it was going to become something anyway and how can we know the traffic created will be more than what the petitioner is proposing?"

Increased congestion in the area and the proximity of the other car wash were the main reason for the five opposing votes.

First Step: Architect

by JIM FULLER

The Lake Park High School Dist. 108 school board approved a motion to hire the architectural firm of Berger-Kelley-Unteet-Scaggs and Associates this week as the first step in its plan to expand the district's high school facilities.

Based on the final report of the Citizens' Advisory Committee (CAC) submitted last month, the board had unanimously agreed earlier that if the district's high school facilities were ever to be expanded, a landscape architect would have to be hired and a site survey conducted as soon as possible.

The CAC had recommended the purchase of a 60-65 acre site and the construction of an additional high school in the western part of the district. The recommendation was largely based on growth expectations. The committee predicted the present number of 1,730 district high school students would lead to 4,142 students within five years.

"THE ARCHITECT will assist us in a site search," said Supt. Carl Forrester. "We need professional studies on land access and soil, whether or not there are peat bogs in the area, or gravel pits.

Without these topographical studies construction costs can become very high."

Forrester compared the chore of choosing a possible site with looking into a crystal ball. "For example, Roselle has 1,000 acres under preannexation for an industrial park," he said. "If that area goes residential instead, then we should take this into consideration so we can situate the school where it can best handle the students coming out of area."

"Sewer and water also become critical items," he continued. "If these items are not readily available for hook-up, or will not be available in the future, we may have to build our own treatment plant, which would be an expensive project."

Dist. 108 covers an area of about 21 square miles and includes the communities of Itasca, Medinah, Roselle, Bloomingdale and Keeneyville.

THE ARCHITECTURAL firm's fee, which will be determined strictly on construction costs, will be based on a rate of 5.6 per cent of the final construction cost.

"They built the last addition to Lake Park High School," Forrester said, "and we think we get more from them for the rate we pay."

Forrester also mentioned a possible fall referendum for the new building and site.

In other action at the monthly meeting, the board approved the purchase of an up-to-date aerial wall map of the high school district from Sidwell Studio for the sum of $290. According to Frank Strle, administrative assistant, the old map, which hangs on the wall of the board room, is used almost daily by people coming into the district, but often their homes cannot be found on the map since it dates back to 1961.

The board also approved the purchase of three IBM electric typewriters at a cost of $350 each and several items of classroom furniture for a sum of $2,871.24.

THE 1970-71 school year calendar was approved by the board. The calendar is virtually identical to one which has already been adopted by the Itasca, Bloomingdale, Wood Dale, Bensenville Elementary, and Fenton High School boards. Decisions have not yet been made in Medinah, Roselle and Keeneyville.

The calendar declares special holidays on April 15 and 16 in order to provide the usual Easter vacation period. The board also gave the superintendent permission to declare May 29, the day before Memorial day, as a holiday if the majority of the other schools in the district decide to do the same.

The board declared July 20 as the date the tentative budget for the fiscal year 1970-71 would be presented to the board. The board will hold a public hearing on the budget sometime in September.

Girl, 10, Saves Life Of Infant

Lori Calderon, of 212 Gladys Ave., Addison, is 10 years old. She was riding in a car holding her aunt's baby when suddenly the car collided with another car driven by a drunk. Lori held on tightly to the baby.

Following the accident, the baby was hurt, but Lori had lost three permanent teeth and suffered some severe cuts on her face.

"If she hadn't held on to the baby, she would probably have been killed," a policeman said afterwards.

Lori, a 3rd grader and honor roll student at Ardmore School, 644 S. Ardmore Ave., Addison, is a member of the DuPage County of Campfire Girls, and Wednesday night she received the organization's National Life-saving Award for her heroic performance on the afternoon of the accident.

"THE NATIONAL Life-saving Award is a very rare award," said Mrs. James Calderon, the campfire guard for the Addison group. "It has been given out only once before in DuPage County, and it is the highest honor for the Campfire Girls."

The award ceremony took place Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. at Willowbrook Community High School, 1250 S. Ardmore Villa Park.

Other campfire girls from the 11th grade at Ardmore School received rank 10 certificates which they had earned throughout the year. They were given the rank of Trail Seeker at the end of the year for one year in the future.

The Ardmore School group calls itself "WAKOYASIN," an Indian phrase meaning "determined to stick together."

ard Wilson, volunteers, and Mae Korn, a home resident, bring the traveling "drugstore" to some of the residents.

The Big House Reopened

The Big House Tavern Restaurant, 211 E. Lake St., Addison, was open for business as usual Wednesday following a two-week shut-down ordered by the DuPage County Health Department.

The Big House has been juggling violations since like hot potatoes for the last two months, precipitated chiefly by the Addison Fire Department and the county health department.

"We revoked their license on May 6 because it failed to meet the minimum requirements of the food handling ordinance," said Gary McCullough, chief sanitarian of the county health department.

McCullough said the revocation was based on several violations that related to maintenance and upkeep, but would not specify what the violations were.

"WE REINSTATED the restaurant's license at about 2 p.m. today,"

McCullough said, "because they corrected the violations we had listed."

McCullough stated that the law required the health department to inspect all the restaurants in DuPage County a minimum of twice a year, but that some had to be inspected more frequently, some as often as once a week.

An Addison fire department official, who asked not to be identified, said that the department issued the restaurant a violation notice on several delinquent items back in July, 1969.

"The restaurant has been receiving extensions to correct the violations at 30 day intervals," the official said.

According to Stuart Buffington, part owner of the Big House Restaurant, there were several things at the restaurant which needed correction because repairs were put off too long.

"THERE WERE some things," he said. "For one thing, we had no self-enclosed dumb waiter, that is, it had no doors. None of the violations were very complicated." This was the only violation Buffington would mention.

"I'm waiting to see what happens now," Buffington said. The owner stated that he would be meeting with officials of the village of Addison within the next few days to discuss "other problems" that might be brought up in the future.

Attend Church Synod

Pastor Robert R. Leshner, of St. Matthew Lutheran Church, 7N055 Catalpa St. in Itasca, will be among the 600 delegates expected to attend the eighth annual convention of the Illinois Synod of the Lutheran Church in America, May 22 in Rockford.

The convention sessions will be held at Zion Lutheran Church in Rockford. The Rev. Dr. Gerald K. Johnson, Synod President, will preside at the sessions and preach at a combined Ordination and Communion service scheduled for Sunday, May 24, at the First Lutheran Church in Rockford.

A Register Editorial

Vote 'Yes' For Fund Hike

Tomorrow residents of Bloomingdale School Dist. 13 will go to the polls to vote on a school board request of a 10-cent hike in the building fund rate.

The district needs financial help as evidenced in the previous unsuccessful large pleas for other tax hikes, but more classrooms are among the top problems. No one can teach or learn in cramped, crowded surroundings or improper conditions. The district's children need passage of tomorrow's referendum.

Members of the Citizen's Advisory Council have worked extremely hard to compile facts and figures on the district's needs. This issue along with an increase in the educational fund tops the list. The council hopefully has done the job of informing already tax-burdened residents of the need to dip a little further into their pockets for a good cause—their children, tomorrow's citizens.

AS VOTERS CAST their ballots from noon to 7 p.m. at Central School, hopefully their thoughts will be for the children who will have to face the world competition for jobs and security.

Also included in the vote tomorrow is a request for approval of a $480,000 bond issue. The cost to the individual taxpayer for both the fund rate hike and bond issue would be for only 11 years when both would be paid off.

If passed, the bond issue and new rate of 45 cents per $100 assessed valuation will cost the average homeowner in Bloomingdale (who has a home valued at market price of $35,000) an additional $19.25 on his tax bill. That is a reasonable cost for more educational facilities for one of the fastest growing communities in DuPage County.

Additional classroom space will help relieve the student enrollment pressure from the surrounding area which is experiencing rapid expansion. Both school board requests desire a vote of confidence from residents.

Urge Avtech Annex Delay

Lawrence Traeger Jr., Itasca village attorney, is urging the village board not to accept an annexation agreement from Avtech Development until the proper wording and procedure of the annexation agreement is clarified.

Avtech is seeking to develop a five-story apartment complex on the northwest portion of the Itasca CMD Industrial Park that will include 431 apartments on 2.9 acres of property. The Avtech property is contiguous to the industrial park.

Traeger is dissatisfied with the legal description and inadequate disclosure of the proposed apartment complex to village officials.

One of Traeger's chief complaints is that Avtech has failed to inform concerned residents in the surrounding area of its project.

"The public expects to be informed," said Traeger.

AVTECH DESIGNER, Anthony Bonavolonta, Tuesday night told the village attorney and trustees that he has informed all the taxing bodies of the apartment complex and has traveled house to house to inform residents in the area.

Traeger also objected to the language used by Avtech in its letter of credit agreement to the village. Reportedly, the letter put the village on the defensive and appeared a bit wordy and inconclusive.

Avtech also came under criticism from Traeger for its failure to have the development plans properly published for the public.

"The people should be able to examine a full copy," said Traeger in reference to the incomplete annexation agreement on file.

LEGAL IMPLICATIONS of the annexation agreement were debated among Traeger and Avtech attorney Edward Mraz. Wilbert Nottke, Itasca village president, sought some type of donation from Avtech in lieu of an annexation fee.

"There will be a donation to the Medina school Board or Itasca," stated Bonavolonta.

A $12,000 donation was mentioned by the Roselle architect as Avtech's donation for annexation approval for the project.

"I'm here to clarify anything architecturally in that document," Bonavolonta said. "We'd like to make sure there are no obstacles."

Itasca's village board agreed informally to the annexation agreement but Traeger continued to dispute the inadequate wording of the agreement as a legal measure to protect the village.

"WE ALL AGREED and then the attorneys got together and now we disagree," said Nottke. "The attorneys should guide this to a happy conclusion."

While Bonavolonta and Mraz sought some positive commitment from the board in regard to the apartment complex, village officials asked for additional time to review the project.

Village officials finally agreed to set a public hearing for the Avtech apartment development for June 16 at 8 p.m. at the village hall.

Avtech representatives, who have submitted four revised drafts of the annexation agreement to the village for approval, agreed to cooperate with any of Itasca's changes or alterations in the project.

First Step: Architect

by JIM FULLER

The Lake Park High School Dist. 108 school board approved a motion to hire the architectural firm of Berger-Kelley-Unteet-Seaggs and Associates this week as the first step in its plan to expand the district's high school facilities.

Based on the final report of the Citizens' Advisory Committee (CAC) submitted last month, the board had unanimously agreed earlier that if the district's high school facilities were ever to be expanded, a landscape architect would have to be hired and a site survey conducted as soon as possible.

The CAC had recommended the purchase of a 60-65 acre site and the construction of an additional high school in the western part of the district. Without these topographical studies construction costs can become very high."

Forrester compared the chore of choosing a possible site with looking into a crystal ball. "For example, Roselle has 1,000 acres under preannexation for an industrial park," he said. "If that area goes residential instead, then we should take this into consideration so we can situate the school where it can best handle the students coming out of area."

"Sewer and water also become critical items," he continued. "If these items are not readily available for hook-up, or will not be available in the future, we may have to build our own treatment plant, which would be an expensive project."

Dist. 108 covers an area of about 21 square miles and includes the communities of Itasca, Medinah, Roselle, Bloomingdale and Keeneyville.

THE ARCHITECTURAL firm's fee, which will be determined strictly on construction costs, will be based on a rate of 5.6 per cent of the final construction cost.

"They built the last addition to Lake Park High School," Forrester said, "and we think we get more from them for the rate we pay."

Forrester also mentioned a possible fall referendum for the new building ad site.

In other action at the monthly meeting, the board approved the purchase of an up-to-date aerial wall map of the high school district from Sidwell Studio for the sum of $290. According to Frank Strle, administrative assistant, the old map, which hangs on the wall of the board room, is used almost daily by people coming into the district, but often their homes cannot be found on the map since it dates back to 1961.

The board also approved the purchase of three IBM electric typewriters at a cost of $350 each and several items of classroom furniture for a sum of $2,871.24.

THE 1970-71 school year calendar was approved by the board. The calendar is virtually identical to one which has already been adopted by the Itasca, Bloomingdale, Wood Dale, Bensenville Elementary, and Fenton High School boards. Decisions have not yet been made in Medinah, Roselle and Keeneyville.

The calendar declares special holidays on April 15 and 16 in order to provide the usual Easter vacation period. The board also gave the superintendent permission to declare May 29, the day before Memorial day, as a holiday if the majority of the other schools in the district decide to do the same.

The board declared July 29 as the date the tentative budget for the fiscal year 1970-71 would be presented to the board. The board will hold a public hearing on the budget sometime in September.

Girl, 10, Saves Life Of Infant

Lori Calderoni of 242 Gladys Ave., Addison, is 10-years-old. She was riding in a car holding her aunt's baby when suddenly the car collided with another car driven by a drunk. Lori held on tightly to the baby.

Following the accident, the baby was fine, but Lori had lost three permanent teeth and suffered some severe cuts on her face.

"If she hadn't held on to the baby, she would probably have been killed," a policeman said afterwards.

Lori, a 4th grader and honor roll student at Ardmore School, 644 S. Ardmore Ave., Addison, is a member of the DuPage Council of Campfire Girls, and Wednesday night she received the organization's National Lifesaving Award for her heroic performance on the afternoon of the accident.

"THE NATIONAL Lifesaving Award is a very rare award," said Mrs. James Grossman, the campfire guard for the Ardmore group. "It has been given out only twice before in DuPage County, and it must be approved by the Campfire Girls' national office in New York."

The award ceremony took place Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. at Willowbrook Community High School, 1250 S. Ardmore, Villa Park.

Eight other campfire girls from the 4th grade at Ardmore School received rank beads and certificates which they had earned throughout the year. They were promoted to the rank of Trail Seeker after participating for one year in the Campfire Girl group.

The Ardmore School group calls itself "OWaOKiYaSin," an Indian phrase meaning "determined to stick together."

The Big House Reopened

The Big House Tavern Restaurant, 211 E. Lake St., Addison, was open for business as usual Wednesday following a two-week shut-down ordered by the DuPage County Health Department.

The Big House has been juggling violation notices like hot potatoes for the last nine months, precipitated chiefly by the Addison Fire Department and the county health department.

"We revoked their license on May 6 because it failed to meet the minimum requirements of the food handling ordinance," said Gary McCullough, chief sanitarian of the county health department.

McCullough said the revocation was based on several violations that related to maintenance and upkeep, but would not specify what the violations were.

"WE REINSTATED the restaurant's license at about 2 p.m. today,"

McCullough said, "because they corrected the violations we had listed."

McCullough stated that the law required the health department to inspect all the restaurants in DuPage County a minimum of twice a year, but that some had to be inspected more frequently, some as often as once a week.

An Addison fire department official, who asked not to be identified, said that the department issued the restaurant a violation notice on several delinquent items back in July, 1969.

"The restaurant has been receiving extensions to correct the violations at 30 day intervals," the official said.

According to Stuart Buffington, part owner of the Big House Restaurant, there were several things at the restaurant which needed correction because repairs were put off too long.

"THERE WERE some things," he said. "For one thing, we had no self-enclosed dumb waiter, that is, it had no doors. None of the violations were very complicated." This was the only violation Buffington would mention.

"I'm waiting to see what happens now," Buffington said. The owner stated that he would be meeting with officials of the village of Addison within the next few days to discuss "other problems" that might be brought up in the future.

Vote 'Yes' For Fund Hike

Tomorrow residents of Bloomington School Dist. 13 will go to the polls to vote on a school board request of a 10-cent hike in the building fund rate.

The district needs financial help as evidenced in the previous unsuccessful large pleas for other tax hikes, but more classrooms are among the top problems. No one can teach or learn in cramped, crowded surroundings or improper conditions. The district's children need passage of tomorrow's referendum.

Members of the Citizen's Advisory Council have worked extremely hard to compile facts and figures on the district's needs. This issue along with an increase in the educational fund tops the list. The council hopefully has done the job informing already tax-burdened residents of the need to dip a little further into their pockets for a good cause—their children, tomorrow's citizens.

AS VOTERS CAST their ballots from noon to 7 p.m. at Central School, hopefully their thoughts will be for the children who will have to face the world competition for jobs and security.

Also included in the vote tomorrow is a request for approval of a $480,000 bond issue. The cost to the individual taxpayer for both the fund rate hike and bond issue would be for only 11 years when both would be paid off.

If passed, the bond issue and new rate of 45 cents per $100 assessed valuation will cost the average homeowner in Bloomington (who has a home valued at market price of $35,000) an additional $19.25 on his tax bill. That is a reasonable cost for more educational facilities for one of the fastest growing communities in DuPage County.

Additional classroom space will help relieve the student enrollment pressure from the surrounding area which is experiencing rapid expansion. Both school board requests desire a vote of confidence from residents.

Urge Avtech Annex Delay

Lawrence Traeger Jr., Itasca village attorney, is urging the village board not to accept an annexation agreement from Avtech Development until the proper wording and procedure of the annexation agreement is clarified.

Avtech is seeking to develop a five-story apartment complex on the northwest portion of the Itasca CMD Industrial Park that will include 431 apartments on 2.9 acres of property. The Avtech property is contiguous to the industrial park.

Traeger is dissatisfied with the legal description and inadequate disclosure of the proposed apartment complex to village officials.

One of Traeger's chief complaints is that Avtech has failed to inform concerned residents in the surrounding area of its project.

"The public expects to be informed," said Traeger.

AVTECH DESIGNER, Anthony Bonavolonta, Tuesday night told the village attorney and trustees that he has informed all the taxing bodies of the apartment complex and has traveled house to house to inform residents in the area.

Traeger also objected to the language used by Avtech in its letter of credit agreement to the village. Reportedly, the letter put the village on the defensive and appeared a bit wordy and inconclusive.

Avtech also came under criticism from Traeger for its failure to have the development plans properly published for the public.

"The people should be able to examine a full copy," said Traeger in reference to the incomplete annexation agreement on file.

LEGAL IMPLICATIONS of the annexation agreement were debated among Traeger and Avtech attorney Edward Miraz. Wilbert Nottke, Itasca village president, sought some type of donation from Avtech in lieu of an annexation fee. "There will be a donation to the Medinah school Board or Itasca," stated Bonavolonta.

A $12,000 donation was mentioned by the Roselle architect as Avtech's donation for annexation approval for the project.

"I'm here to clarify anything architecturally in that document," Bonavolonta said. "We'd like to make sure there are no obstacles."

Itasca's village board agreed informally to the annexation agreement but Traeger continued to dispute the inadequate wording of the agreement as a legal measure to protect the village.

"WE ALL AGREED and then the attorneys got together and now we disagree," said Nottke. "The attorneys should guide this to a happy conclusion."

While Bonavolonta and Miraz sought some positive commitment from the board in regard to the apartment complex, village officials asked for additional time to review the project.

Village officials finally agreed to set a public hearing for the Avtech apartment development for June 16 at 8 p.m. at the village hall.

Avtech representatives, who have submitted four revised drafts of the annexation agreement to the village for approval, agreed to cooperate with any of Itasca's changes or alterations in the project.

Appeal to Nixon: Halt O'Hare Expansion

Twenty suburban communities will appeal to President Nixon to stop expansion of O'Hare Airport.

Members of the O'Hare Area Noise Abatement Council will ask the President to deny a land conveyance of 365 acres from the Department of Defense to the City of Chicago.

The tract, part of a military reservation at the northwest corner of the airport near Mannheim and Higgins roads, is the site of a third northwest-southeast runway and an international terminal building, said council representatives this week.

George Franks, a resident of Wood Dale and chairman of the council, said Tuesday the municipalities are formally protesting the expansion of the "world's busiest airport." Included are Addison, Bensenville, Wood Dale, Roselle, Itasca, Bloomingdale and several Cook County Communities.

FRANKS SAID the city plans to obtain the acreage for $1 from the Defense Department. The land is valued at $123 million, he added.

Without the conveyance, O'Hare will not be able to expand," he said. "We want the President to deny the request to convey the federal land."

Franks said the expansion of O'Hare would affect the lives of residents of 30 surrounding municipalities — approximately 1.5 million people.

He said a public meeting next Wednesday

in Bensenville's Fenton High School will be held to allow residents to express themselves on the issue. Sen. Ralph T. Smith, R-Ill., may appear at that meeting, he said.

He predicted 2,000 residents would attend the meeting. "The turnout will tell us what our next action will be," he said.

WARREN EDWARDS, a commercial pilot and resident of Elk Grove Village, said the city plans to add three more runways to O'Hare as funds become available. The additional runways would affect all communities, he said.

O'Hare would have nine major runways in all. It currently has five, with one under construction.

A northeast-southwest runway requiring the relocation of Irving Park Road near Bensenville is presently being built. It is the object of a suit by Park Ridge officials, who contend it was approved by the city without adequate notice to suburban communities.

Park Ridge is expected to be part of another suit, joining Schiller Park and Bensenville in asking that the city curtail further expansion until proper noise and air pollution devices are devised for jets.

The suit is expected to be filed in Republican DuPage County, where the court may be more sympathetic than if filed in Democratic Cook County, where Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley is a strong proponent of airport expansion.

Catholic Dissidents Promised Aid

More than 50 buses and several hundred people from the Joliet and Chicago dioceses traveled to Springfield Wednesday to button hole senators and confront Gov. Richard Ogilvie in their demand for a school aid to private education law.

"It was a very, very good turnout," said Sister Mary Colette, principal of St. Joseph Catholic Elementary School in Addison. "Governor Ogilvie spoke to us from the steps of the capitol and said that taxes would definitely have to be raised if aid to parochial schools didn't come through."

The governor also told the large crowd of principals, parents, and parishioners that the money for school aid was already allotted in the budget, and that the people should be sure to talk to their senators.

ABOUT 2,000 people attended the demonstration, representing all six Catholic dioceses in the state of Illinois. The demonstrators spoke to their various senators and sat in on a discussion being conducted by the Senate Education Committee.

"The trip was worthwhile and encouraging," said the Rev. Francis McDonald, chaplain and counselor at Driscoll Catholic High School in Addison. "Gov. Ogilvie was very optimistic, and felt that this aid should be given because there would be an enormous increase on the tax bill without it."

Rev. McDonald said that the Joliet dioceses school board held a special meeting last Monday and decided that if state aid were voted down, the board would unite with other diocesan school boards in the state and take action on either one of two alternatives: they would either eliminate several grades in every parochial school in the diocese, or they would close down every school for the months of September and October.

"If this occurred, then the responsibility and cost of educating these children would fall on the public," said Rev.

McDonald. Right now, 35,000 children are enrolled in Catholic schools in the Joliet diocese. There are 75 elementary and 10 secondary schools.

Signs Of A Drug User

Does your teenager smoke marijuana? Do you know the symptoms?

That's the title of a booklet distributed at Tuesday's luncheon meeting of the Addison Kiwanis by two members of the Villa Park Police Department who deal almost exclusively with the problems of drug abuse.

Detective William Posik and Sgt. Dennis Miller, who resides in Addison, stressed at Tuesday's presentation that an education program is needed to acquaint both young people and adults with the dangers of using narcotics.

Among the facts needed to be known by parents, the booklet states, is how the teenager acts after smoking marijuana.

AMONG THE SYMPTOMS of the marijuana user the booklet says is a runny nose, and cough, but no cold, dizziness at times, a fast pulse rate, a lower than normal body temperature rate, an increased appetite, a happy or sad action, impatience, laughing at things that aren't funny, a special appreciation of art and music, nightmares and a problem with vision.

Other signs to look for in the marijuana user, the booklet adds is if money or saleable items are missing, how allowances are spent, how school grades are affected, if possessions of the teenager are being sold off or if "roll your own" cigarette paper is discovered in the house.

The booklet suggests that the parent, if he is concerned, not ignore the symptoms. It also suggests to call the family physician, who in turn will advise that you either confront the teenager, consult an attorney or, though seemingly cruel, go to the police.

Of the symptoms, the booklet stresses that the teenager may have many of the ones listed and still not be a user.

Sticky Contact Causes Backup

If you found yourself on Army Trail Road Wednesday and cursing a blue streak, it may have been because of a malfunctioning traffic light at the intersection of Lincoln Avenue and Army Trail.

A sticky contact or relay caused the red light to remain red and the result was a headache-producing traffic jam on Army Trail.

THE FAULTY traffic signal had just been put up at the intersection recently. "There was no fault in the design," said Joe Pavia, village consulting engineer for the firm of Ralph F. Gross & Son Pavia, Inc. "The contractor has been notified and is supposed to be out there this afternoon to repair the light."

The light was back in working order on Thursday.

Students' Bills Paid

Students at Driscoll High School have paid their bills.

Money needed to pay two bands that performed a few months ago for a benefit dance to provide money to the Catholic school was earned last Friday night at another benefit dance sponsored by the student council.

Between 400 and 500 teenagers attended the rock concert, which featured 421 Madison Street and the Crabs.

Boy Goes To Big City

Gregory Lipner is back home. But before the runaway youngster returned to his home he had frightened his parents, stirred up a neighborhood and unleashed a search through every corner of the village.

The 11-year-old boy, who lives at 320 S. Iowa Street, in Addison, left home early Monday on his way to Fullerton School but wound up fleeing the village enroute to a wild excursion of his own.

The boy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Lipner, told juvenile officer Greg Wilmer of the Addison police department that he hitched a ride into Chicago Monday morning and walked around the big city most of the day.

The next day he decided to return home, hitching rides on his way back. But he ended up in Melrose Park and was discovered by the police there while sleeping in the doorway of an apartment building.

His parents then picked up the boy in Melrose Park for the return trip to Addison.

GREGORY, A FIFTH grader, did not return home for lunch Monday afternoon, according to Mrs. Lipner. When she police and neighbors combed the area.

"We searched until we were senseless," said one neighbor who helped in looking for the boy. "We were out until 3 a.m. looking. Everyone was quite anxious until they found out that Greg was safe. It's a great relief."

Police throughout the area were alerted to look for the youngster while called the school they told her the boy did not show up for morning classes.

The children of Wesley Elementary School in Addison were greeted with the arrival of a very special visitor this week. He wears several shining medals, commands 200 men, jumps out of airplanes, and flies a Cobra along the treacherous DMZ of Vietnam.

"We were pretty proud to be next to the captain," exclaimed Rosalie Benassi, a fifth grader at Wesley. "You have to be brave to fly a Cobra; and he has to take care of 200 men. I was very proud to be next to him."

"I was pretty happy," said Robert Whitehead, another fifth grader. "For a captain in Vietnam to come to Wesley School — that was really nice of him."

The visitor was Capt. Louie Loggins, operations officer of D Troop, First Squadron, First Air Cavalry, 123 Aviation Battalion stationed at Chu Lai, 34 miles south of the DMZ.

RAISED ON THE south side of Chicago, Capt. Loggins is a career officer serving his third tour of duty as a helicopter pilot in Vietnam. The captain visited Wesley School, 111 Wesley Drive to talk to about 200 children in the 4th, 5th and 6th grades, and to answer any questions they might have about the war or the country.

"He really impressed the children with his knowledge of helicopters," said Stewart Liechti, the school principal. "He knew them right down to the half pound."

It all began when Miss Patricia Mallick, the 5th grade social studies teacher, asked her class to write letters to the men of Capt. Loggins' unit in Vietnam.

"A friend of mine had a picture of Capt. Loggins," Miss Mallick said, "and on the back was written, 'Mail's Come!' My friend said that they really get excited about mail over there — that it was the only thing they had to look forward to."

Another reason for the letters was an attempt by Miss Mallick to make the war appear less impersonal, and to dispel the children's misconception of the war as a purely "shoot 'em up, bang-bang" sort of thing.

"THE REACTION was tremendous," she said triumphantly. "The children sent out about 225 letters. Most of the letters asked for some advice or guidance, such as, 'My sister spends three or four hours in the bathroom putting on makeup — what could I do about this?' or 'My big brother is always beating up on me — how should I handle him?'"

In one unusually touching letter a small boy wrote, "Hi, guy! What do you look like? Do you wonder what I look like? I'll send you a picture next time."

Capt. Loggins, who has returned from Vietnam on a 30-day emergency leave promised the children that all their letters would be answered. He said the letters would be passed out to the men in his unit who never received much mail.

"I felt proud," said Gina Aubert of the 5th grade, following the visit of Capt. Loggins. "He served for nine years to help out in Vietnam, and he went of his own free will. He said he was nervous in front of us, because he was used to talking to 200 men; he was very kind and nice."

"I thought it was just a bunch of fighting over there," said Patrick McCafferty. "But he told us how it wasn't all fighting. I was pretty glad that I got his autograph and that I got to shake his hand."

"I think Negroes are great," said Rosalie Benassi, wearing a big smile. "You think he might not want to come to a white school. He was so kind — I never knew Negroes were so kind."

THE 5TH GRADERS plan to send Capt. Loggins' men pictures of themselves and three baked cakes. "They have a very poor mess hall over there," one boy said. "You can't just let 'em starve."

"I'm here to clarify anything architecturally in that document," Bonavolonta said. "We'd like to make sure there are no obstacles."

Itasca's village board agreed informally to the annexation agreement but Traeger continued to dispute the inadequate wording of the agreement as a legal measure to protect the village.

"WE ALL AGREED and then the attorneys got together and now we disagree," said Notke. "The attorneys should guide this to a happy conclusion."

While Bonavolonta and Mraz sought some positive commitment from the board in regard to the apartment complex, village officials asked for additional time to review the project.

Village officials finally agreed to set a public hearing for the Avtech apartment development for June 16 at 8 p.m. at the village hall.

Avtech representatives, who have submitted four revised drafts of the annexation agreement to the village for approval, agreed to cooperate with any of Itasca's changes or alterations in the project.

Appeal to Nixon: Halt O'Hare Expansion

Twenty suburban communities will appeal to President Nixon to stop expansion of O'Hare Airport.

Members of the O'Hare Area Noise Abatement Council will ask the President to deny a land conveyance of 365 acres from the Department of Defense to the City of Chicago.

The tract, part of a military reservation at the northwest corner of the airport near Mannheim and Higgins roads, is the site of a third northwest-southeast runway and an international terminal building, said council representatives this week.

George Franks, a resident of Wood Dale and chairman of the council, said Tuesday the municipalities are formally protesting the expansion of the "world's busiest airport." Included are Addison, Bensenville, Wood Dale, Roselle, Itasca, Bloomingdale and several Cook County Communities.

FRANKS SAID the city plans to obtain the acreage for $1 from the Defense Department. The land is valued at $123 million, he added.

Without the conveyance, O'Hare will not be able to expand," he said. "We want the President to deny the request to convey the federal land."

Franks said the expansion of O'Hare would affect the lives of residents of 30 surrounding municipalities — approximately 1.5 million people.

He said a public meeting next Wednesday in Bensenville's Fenton High School will be held to allow residents to express themselves on the issue. Sen. Ralph T. Smith, R-Ill., may appear at that meeting, he said.

He predicted 2,000 residents would attend the meeting. "The turnout will tell us what our next action will be," he said.

WARREN EDWARDS, a commercial pilot and resident of Elk Grove Village, said the city plans to add three more runways to O'Hare as funds become available. The additional runways would affect all communities, he said.

O'Hare would have nine major runways in all. It currently has five, with one under construction.

A northeast-southwest runway requiring the relocation of Irving Park Road near Bensenville is presently being built. It is the object of a suit by Park Ridge officials, who contend it was approved by the city without adequate notice to suburban communities.

Park Ridge is expected to be part of another suit, joining Schiller Park and Bensenville in asking that the city curtail further expansion until proper noise and air pollution devices are devised for jets.

The suit is expected to be filed in Republican DuPage County, where the court may be more sympathetic than if filed in Democratic Cook County, where Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley is a strong proponent of airport expansion.

3,000 Seek Overpasses

The State Highway Commission has received about 3,000 signatures on petitions or letters from Bensenville and Wood Dale residents asking for pedestrian overpasses be constructed over the proposed Rte. 83 improvement through the two villages, according to John Bell, member of the state bureau of planning.

Tuesday night Bell told the Bensenville Chamber of Commerce the Village of Bensenville has also gone on record as recommending overpasses be included in the improvement plans.

Earlier this month, the state held a public hearing to allow area residents to voice their recommendations for the proposed improvement between Memorial Street and Thorndale Avenue.

AT THAT TIME private citizens and civic organizations recommended the pedestrian overpasses be constructed at Second Avenue, Grove Street and Hillside Street and a special pedestrian structure be constructed over the Milwaukee Railroad tracks. Citizens were given ten days after the hearing to offer other recommendations to the highway department in Elgin.

Tuesday was the deadline for citizen to formally react to the Rte. 83 proposal. "We have two problems in getting the results. We do not have enough people in the offices to work on this and we have not received the transcript from the hearing," Bell said. He added the transcript would probably be submitted by the end of this week.

In the meantime, Bell said the highway engineers were willing to meet with any homeowners, or citizens organization to explain the proposed improvements.

"We will speak with any person anytime," Bell said.

BEFORE THE FINAL plans are made, Bell said the staff would have to submit its recommendations (compiled from engineering surveys, reports and public recommendations) to the Springfield Bureau of Public Works for approval. It would be four to six months before final plans could be announced, Bell said.

"We respect your opinion," Bell told the Chamber members. "All of you are highway engineers because you have driver's licenses."

Other plans the highway department has for improvements in the area include resurfacing of Rte. 19 (Irving Park Road) through Wood Dale. Bell indicated initial plans did not call for the widening of Rte. 19, but "if we can get the village (Wood Dale) interested we will improve the intersection at Wood Dale Road and Rte. 19."

BENSENVILLE'S BLACKHAWK Junior High School student council presented a console sewing machine and a weaving loom to the Bensenville Home Society Wednesday. The gifts were bought by the student council with funds raised in a magazine sale. From left, Tom Mueller, John Wassinger and Mrs. Clara Mensching could not wait long to test the machine.

Fenton High School Dist. 100 in Bensenville received a two prong assault Tuesday night with the announcement of a possible loss of accreditation status with the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools and with the resignation of Kenneth Carroll, assistant superintendent of business affairs for Bensenville public schools.

The administration indicated the negative repercussions of the educational curtailment program attributed to the accreditation prompted board members to recommend measures to upgrade the high schools status with the association.

"The board wishes to upgrade the standards of Fenton — this should be our position," Board Member Arthur Richter said.

The administration recommended "the board of education, the administration and a Citizens Advisory Committee develop a plan of action to regain full status."

Fenton, which has been accredited by the NCA since 1937, has been allowed one year to upgrade the educational program to meet the association's standards.

"THE PROFESSIONAL staff feels this is very serious," said Martin Zukerman, superintendent of Bensenville public schools. This situation is like a doctor being dropped from the American Medical Association. I would think twice about visiting him.

"We need to get the support; we need to provide a more adequate education."

"It is interesting as well as frustrating and disappointing to have this happen just when the junior high school received accreditation from the NCA."

Although the NCA notification indicated a lack of community support as a possible reason for the downgrading of Fenton's status, Zukerman cautioned "nobody can point the finger at anybody else. I'm merely stating this is a very difficult situation."

BOARD MEMBER James DiOrto is concerned the public might interpret the possible loss of accreditation as a "threat" to get an educational referendum passed in the district. Four consecutive Dist. 100 educational referendums have been defeated in the past two years.

"In anticipation of the possible accreditation loss, we purposely kept the subject out of the last two referendums," DiOrto said. "If we emphasize the accreditation loss, then the public may feel we are threatening them."

"DuPAGE COUNTY is the fastest growing county in the state," Bell said. The major factors contributing to the problems of the county are "people, cars and travel."

"In 1960 313,000 people lived in DuPage County, in 1968 there were 426,000. From 1950 to 1960 the number of cars in the county increased from 57,000 to 141,000. There were 232,000 cars in 1968. The daily travel in DuPage County is three billion cars over 800 miles of roads or over 11,000 vehicles for every mile of pavement."

IT MAY LOOK difficult at first, but Edith Weaver, right, son caught on to the skill in using the arts-crafts weaving loom donated to the Bensenville Home Society by the Blackhawk Junior high school student council. Alexandra Wardzala, represented the school's student council at the presentation.

Industrial Fight Backed

by DICK BARTON

Members of the Mohawk Terrace Homeowners Association voted unanimously Tuesday to endorse their board of directors in pursuing the fight against the industrialization of their area by Elk Grove Village developers.

After being told by a local Realtor that their homes, presently valued at $35-45,000 and up, would be worth no more than $25,000 if industrialization surrounded them as proposed by developers, the members indicated they would take the matter to the U. S. Supreme Court if necessary. The only trouble will be legal fee costs, but the members will hold various fund-raising events such as an Antique Sale on June 6 from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. at Central and Devon avenues to raise the money.

MOHAWK ATTORNEYS have said it would cost at least $20,000 to take the matter to the highest court in the land.

Members decided Tuesday to only commit themselves to fees up to the expected Cook County court decision on the recent fight with Elk Grove Village and Trummel Crow Co. of Des Plaines who intends to buy all the land around them for industrial use in line with the Elk Grove master plan.

A decision on the trial which ended two weeks ago is expected in late June or July.

The Mohawk suit challenges the industrial zoning and annexation to Elk Grove of 268 acres of land to the west of the subdivision along Devon Avenue, west of

Industrialization Fight Is Supported

Rte. 83.

BESIDES FIGHTING the industrialization in court, the group is thinking about getting an owner of a nearby piece of land to zone his property commercial and annex to Wood Dale or Bensenville in an effort to block the encirclement by Elk Grove.

If the area was eventually completely surrounded, the homeowners feel the developer would start buying individual lots on the perimeter of the subdivision until the area was less than 60 acres of unincorporated land. If that happened, Elk Grove could force annex the area and the "death of the residential area" would be near, according to residents.

The groups feels no matter what the court decides, an appeal by one side or the other will follow. The additional court costs will have to be approved by the membership following that decision before the group will proceed.

Drama Department Slates Three Plays

A Russian farce, a Dylan Thomas voice-play and a play satire will be featured on Bensenville's Fenton High School stage tonight and tomorrow night.

Three one-act plays, "The Boot" by Anton Chekov, "Under the Milkwood" by Dylan Thomas and "Aria de Capo" by Edna St. Vincent Millay, will be presented by the Fenton drama department in the Little Theatre at 8 p.m.

Tickets are available at the door and are $1.25 for students and $1.75 for adults.

The Big House Reopened

The Big House Tavern Restaurant, 211 E. Lake St., Addison, was open for business as usual Wednesday following a two-week shut-down ordered by the DuPage County Health Department.

The Big House has been juggling violation notices like hot potatoes for the last nine months, precipitated chiefly by the Addison Fire Department and the county health department.

"We revoked their license on May 6 because it failed to meet the minimum requirements of the food handling ordinance," said Gary McCullough, chief sanitarian of the county health department.

McCullough said the revocation was based on several violations that related to maintenance and upkeep, but would not specify what the violations were.

"WE REINSTATED the restaurant's license at about 2 p.m. today,"

McCullough said, "because they corrected the violations we had listed."

McCullough stated that the law required the health department to inspect all the restaurants in DuPage County a minimum of twice a year, but that some had to be inspected more frequently, some as often as once a week.

An Addison fire department official, who asked not to be identified, said that the department issued the restaurant a violation notice on several delinquent items back in July, 1969.

"The restaurant has been receiving extensions to correct the violations at 30 day intervals," the official said.

According to Stuart Buffington, part owner of the Big House Restaurant, there were several things at the restaurant which needed correction because repairs were put off too long.

"THERE WERE some things," he said. "For one thing, we had no self-enclosed dumb waiter, that is, it had no doors. None of the violations were very complicated." This was the only violation Buffington would mention.

"I'm waiting to see what happens now," Buffington said. The owner stated that he would be meeting with officials of the village of Addison within the next few days to discuss "other problems" that might be brought up in the future.

Attend Church Synod

Pastor Robert R. Leshner, of St. Matthew Lutheran Church, 7N055 Catalpa St. in Itasca, will be among the 600 delegates expected to attend the eighth annual convention of the Illinois Synod of the Lutheran Church in America, May 22 in Rockford.

The convention sessions will be held at Zion Lutheran Church in Rockford. The Rev. Dr. Gerald K. Johnson, Synod President, will preside at the sessions and preach at a combined Ordination and Communion service scheduled for Sunday, May 24, at the First Lutheran Church in Rockford.

Accreditation Ball, Chain

by LINDA VACHATA

What effect would the loss of the North Central Association's accreditation have on college bound graduates of Fenton High School serving Bensenville and Wood Dale?

Fenton administration officials contend the loss of accreditation might hamper Fenton students' efforts in getting college admissions.

Most universities and colleges in the United States list among their requirements for admission "graduation from an accredited high school."

Wednesday the Register contacted several university and college admission counselors in the area to determine what difficulties, if any, a senior graduate from a non-accredited high school might face.

MOST OF THE admissions counselors agreed the lack of accreditation at Fenton might result in "negative connotations," but they added the schools they represent would most likely admit such students if the general admissions requirements were met.

"There are a number of high schools in the Chicago area like Chicago Latin that are not accredited, but that does not mean the students don't learn anything there," said Helen Navolio, admissions counselor at the University of Illinois, Chicago Circle Campus. She added students from a non-accredited high school might be asked to take the GED (General Examination Degree) test, but those are "very simple."

GED tests are usually administered to people who have not graduated from high school and the test can be validated as a diploma from high school, she said.

"As long as the student scores above 24 (slightly above average) on his ACT (American College Testing) test and meets other admissions requirements we will accept him," said Kathleen Dice, admissions counselor from Northern Illinois University (NIU). She added the GED test might be required for graduates of non-accredited high schools.

While the College of DuPage maintains some of the most liberal admissions requirements in the state, Northwestern University has the strictest.

"WE WOULD GO ahead and admit students from a non-accredited high school," said James Williams, admissions counselor at the College of DuPage. "The College of DuPage does not require a high school diploma, so this would not affect us."

At the College of DuPage, anyone who is 18-years-old or over is eligible for admissions, according to Williams.

Since the College of DuPage, NIU and the U of I are public schools, their admissions policies are expected to be more lenient than a private institution.

At Northwestern University, only students rated in the top tenth of their class are usually eligible for admission, according to Mrs. Peggy Walter, associate director of admissions. Mrs. Walter indicated a graduate from a non-accredited high school "might" be considered for admission, but this would depend upon "why the school lost its accreditation."

IT WOULD APPEAR graduates from non-accredited high schools would have little difficulty entering a college or university in Illinois, but the selection could be cut considerably if the student chose to go out of state.

"This could have a serious effect on students going out-of-state," said Fenton counselor Richard Gorham. "I'm not sure what impact this would have on in-state schools."

The reason for the difficulty in entering out-of-state schools is the stricter selectivity they apply to out of state students than in-state applicants. State schools in Wisconsin, for example, have hiked their admissions requirements and almost doubled their tuitions in the past few years to discourage out of state students. The Wisconsin State University Board of Regents have contended they must first educate the students in the state and whatever room is left over can be appropriated to out-of-state students. Many other states have applied these same principles to their admissions programs.

Dist. 100 Dealt a 1-2 Punch

night included the acceptance of Carroll's resignation. He has served six years as the high school and elementary district's business manager. His position was recently renamed assistant superintendent of business affairs.

"I think Kenneth Carroll will be sorely missed," Zuckerman said. "It will be difficult to get another applicant."

MARTIN ROMME recommended the board hold off action on Carroll's resignation until a joint meeting could be held between the elementary and high school district boards. Romme indicated Carroll might be induced to stay if the boards could jointly work out an agreeable solution to the reason for his resignation.

"I don't think we are talking about salary," Board Pres. Morton Wright said. "He has already accepted a position today."

When asked to comment on the reasons for his resignation, Carroll replied, "The present board situation precludes my staying."

Carroll told the Register Wednesday he has accepted a position as business manager with a Skokie school district.

In other action, the board accepted the appointment of Ray Soden as chairman of the newly formed Citizens Advisory Committee.

Soden, who is past commander of Bensenville VFW Post 2149 and an active member in the VFW on a state and national level, will begin working on the formation and organization of the citizen's committee.

The citizen's committee will presumably study the financial status of Dist. 100 and make recommendations to the board.

'Oiga Amigo' Airing Set

A half-hour show on WLS television tomorrow at 12:30 p.m. will review last winter's housing controversy involving several Mexican-American families in the Elk Grove Village area.

The program, Oiga Amigo (Listen Friend) is a weekly telecast concentrating on the Spanish-speaking people in the Chicago metropolitan area.

The show will include interviews with Rev. David Crail of the Elk Grove Wesleyan Church; Jack Pahl, Elk Grove Village mayor; Louis Archbold, of Neighbors at Work (NAW); Clyde Brooks, manpower director of the Cook County Office of Economic Opportunity; Santana Gonzalez, who has been living in a church for several months because he is unable to find a place to park a mobile home; Rev. David Sanchez, of St. Dominic's Catholic Church, Chicago; and Allen Hulett, Elk Grove Village fire chief.

Dist. 59 the site will be at Elk Grove High School, Arlington Heights Road and Elk Grove Blvd., Elk Grove Village, from 12 to 3 p.m. And in Dist. 26 it will be at River Trails Junior High School, 1000 Wolf Rd., Prospect Heights, from 12 to 3 p.m.

Be Alert, Avoid Mower Accidents

by DAVE PALERMO

An 8-year-old girl, playing in the front yard of her Northwest suburban home one summer afternoon, decided it would be fun to ride dad's power lawn mower, which was left idling while dad was in the house.

The girl innocently climbed onto the tractor, not knowing that her little brother was sitting behind it playing in the grass.

The machine suddenly jerked backwards and rolled over the infant, severing his foot.

There are many accidents attributed to power lawn mowers, many of them serious and sometimes fatal.

A power mower can be as dangerous as it is convenient.

All too often somebody rolls the mower over a foot or sticks his hand underneath the machine. The causes are always carelessness on the part of the person using the mower and the result, invariably is a trip to the hospital emergency room.

JACK RYAN, public relations director for Northwest Community Hospital in Arlington Heights, remembers one July day two years ago when the emergency room handled seven persons in one day.

The actual amount of injuries attributed to power lawn mowers is difficult to tabulate, for as Ryan says, "The emergency room is more concerned with treating the injury than the cause of the injury."

The records at Northwest Hospital may read, along the column reading cut hand or foot, "lawn mower." But there are many times when it is not scribbled in.

McCormack Wednesday announced that he plans to retire from Congress after his current term which ends in January. He has served as Speaker of the House, the position that is second in line in Presidential succession, since 1962.

THE NEXT SPEAKER is likely to be a Democrat since the Democrats control the House and the majority party controls the election for Speaker.

Crane, however, said he thinks Republican chances to gain control of the House of Representatives "are very good."

He said he did not have a favorite candidate among the Republicans in the event that the GOP does gain control, although he did say Rep. Leslie Arends, a Republican from downstate Melvin, Ill., should be considered for one of the GOP leadership positions.

Crane himself has been mentioned as a potential Speaker of the House.

Rep. Edward Derwinski, R-4th, in the Southwest suburbs of Chicago, predicted last December that Crane would be one of the next Republican Speakers of the House, following Republican Rep. Gerald

Ford of Michigan, currently House minority leader.

About 200 of Crane's constituents heard the prediction, which was made at a luncheon in Washington, D.C., the day Crane formally opened his Congressional office.

LAST OCTOBER, during Crane's campaign against Democrat Edward Warman, a Herald reporter asked him what his long-range plans were and he said he would like to become Speaker of the House. That announcement was made at a Crane rally in Palatine Township.

Crane, a former history professor at two Midwestern universities, was elected to his first term in the House of Representatives in a special election last November called to fill the vacancy created by the resignation of former Rep. Donald Rumsfeld.

CRANE WILL SEEK a full two-year term this November, running against Warman again.

The Republicans have held the Congressional seat since 1919 when the district included most of the Northeastern corner of Illinois and parts of Chicago.

It currently consists of the townships of Wheeling, Elk Grove, Palatine, Schaumburg, New Trier, Evanston, Niles and Northfield.

Barrington and Hanover townships and Chicago's 50th Ward were part of the district until the mid-1960s.

by JUDY COVELLI

Dist. 59 teachers are remaining firm over a proposed "teach-out" to begin next Wednesday, while administrators are withholding comment until later today.

"Information regarding the teach-out will be sent from my office to the homes with the students after school Friday," Al Waltman, acting superintendent said.

Meanwhile, teachers are continuing with plans decided at a Teachers Council meeting held Wednesday.

The teachers decided they would walk out of classes at noon Wednesday and Thursday and not come to classes Friday if teacher salary negotiations were not near completion by this Monday.

THEY COMPLAINED at the meeting that negotiations had lasted more than three months with no headway.

Thomas Lundeen, council president, said Thursday, "This is what they decided. This is what we'll do."

Dave Robert, the teachers negotiating committee chairman, said Thursday, "We received calls from the National Education Association (NEA) and Illinois Education Association (IEA) this morning. They will be backing us."

Robert added, "The entire state is sort of looking towards us now."

He continued, "We have discussed with them how best the situation should be handled, but are waiting to see what the board's next step will be."

The Dist. 59 Teachers Council is a member of the NEA and IEA.

ROBERT EXPLAINED he had called Waltman after the meeting Wednesday to inform him of the situation and that Waltman said a meeting could possibly be scheduled between the board, administrators and teachers' negotiating team.

Robert said, "I'm hoping that we can meet with them because I don't think any of us want to walk out if it can be settled otherwise."

When discussing what they would do, the teachers determined the strategy of leaving the classroom early and then decided to call it a teach-out because they would be leaving the classroom to walk out into the community and "teach" parents about their dilemma.

They said they would have an all-day teach-out Friday because they should have been given that day off as a national holiday anyway.

MORE THAN HALF the 502 district teachers were present when they voted Wednesday to hold the teach-out if no progress was reported.

Several of the points they voiced concern for at the meeting were:

—Negotiations are slow, and might be held over the summer, which they do not want.

—A negotiation meeting scheduled for this week was canceled by district negotiators and not rescheduled.

—The district's last offer of $7,300 did not come near what they considered their cost of living in the suburbs and their expected salary raise to $8,000 base pay with benefits.

—They feared class sizes were being

Principals' Salaries Up 10 Per Cent

Principals' salaries approved recently by the Dist. 59 board of education included an average increase of 10 per cent, according to Richard Vlasak, assistant superintendent in charge of personnel.

Vlasak said the $346,160 budgeted figure approved by the board for administrative purposes included principal salaries for next year and the summer portion past July of this year's contracts.

He presented the top salary of $18,600 with summer school and the low salary of $15,100 without summer school. The high and low salaries this year were $17,300 and $14,500.

HE EXPLAINED that fringe benefits were also the same as last year, including a $350 expense account for each principal.

The expense account is to include in-and-out-of-district mileage, educational books, memberships, seminars and incidental educational expenses.

Vlasak also explained that the $346,160 figure included $8,160 for carry over for summer contracts.

The total figure compared to last year's budget increased $6,000.

This year's figure, however, did not include sabbatical leave pay for any principals. Last year's $340,000 total was included.

This year it includes the salaries of 18 principals plus supervisory pay for Ronald Glovetski who has been named supervisory principal for Dan Cook School. It also includes the administrative portion of Mrs. Pat Marshall's salary. Mrs. Marshall will be administrative assistant at Dan Cook, while teaching part-time.

It was decided at a past executive session that if a situation such as a teacher walk-out arose, the board members would make no comments and direct inquiries to Board Pres. Richard Hess, according to one board member. Hess was not available for comment.

Crane: McCormack Chair to Albert

Democratic Rep. Carl Albert of Oklahoma seems the best bet to succeed Speaker of the House John McCormack, U.S. Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-13th, told the Herald yesterday.

McCormack Wednesday announced that he plans to retire from Congress after his current term which ends in January. He has served as Speaker of the House, the position that is second in line in Presidential succession, since 1962.

THE NEXT SPEAKER is likely to be a Democrat since the Democrats control the House and the majority party controls the election for Speaker.

Crane, however, said he thinks Republican chances to gain control of the House of Representatives "are very good."

He said he did not have a favorite candidate among the Republicans in the event that the GOP does gain control, although he did say Rep. Leslie Arends, a Republican from downstate Melvin, Ill., should be considered for one of the GOP leadership positions.

Crane himself has been mentioned as a potential Speaker of the House.

Rep. Edward Derwinski, R-4th, in the Southwest suburbs of Chicago, predicted last December that Crane would be one of the next Republican Speakers of the House, following Republican Rep. Gerald

Ford of Michigan, currently House minority leader.

About 200 of Crane's constituents heard the prediction, which was made at a luncheon in Washington, D.C., the day Crane formally opened his Congressional office.

LAST OCTOBER, during Crane's campaign against Democrat Edward Warman, a Herald reporter asked him what his long-range plans were and he said he would like to become Speaker of the House. That announcement was made at a Crane rally in Palatine Township.

Crane, a former history professor at two Midwestern universities, was elected to his first term in the House of Representatives in a special election last November called to fill the vacancy created by the resignation of former Rep. Donald Rumsfeld.

CRANE WILL SEEK a full two-year term this November, running against Warman again.

The Republicans have held the Congressional seat since 1919 when the district included most of the Northeastern corner of Illinois and parts of Chicago.

It currently consists of the townships of Wheeling, Elk Grove, Palatine, Schaumburg, New Trier, Evanston, Niles and Northfield.

Barrington and Hanover townships and Chicago's 50th Ward were part of the district until the mid-1960s.

raised to 35 to 40 students due to cuts in staffs in many schools.

Dist. 59 teachers are remaining firm over a proposed "teach-out" to begin next Wednesday, while administrators are withholding comment until later today.

"Information regarding the teach-out will be sent from my office to the homes with the students after school Friday," Al Waltman, acting superintendent said.

Meanwhile, teachers are continuing with plans decided at a Teachers Council meeting held Wednesday.

The teachers decided they would walk out of classes at noon Wednesday and Thursday and not come to classes Friday if teacher salary negotiations were not near completion by this Monday.

THEY COMPLAINED at the meeting that negotiations had lasted more than three months with no headway.

Thomas Lundeen, council president, said Thursday, "This is what they decided. This is what we'll do."

Dave Robert, the teachers negotiating committee chairman, said Thursday, "We received calls from the National Education Association (NEA) and Illinois Education Association (IEA) this morning. They will be backing us."

Robert added, "The entire state is sort of looking towards us now."

He continued, "We have discussed with them how best the situation should be handled, but are waiting to see what the board's next step will be."

The Dist. 59 Teachers Council is a member of the NEA and IEA.

ROBERT EXPLAINED he had called Waltman after the meeting Wednesday to inform him of the situation and that Waltman said a meeting could possibly be scheduled between the board, administrators and teachers' negotiating team.

Robert said, "I'm hoping that we can meet with them because I don't think any of us want to walk out if it can be settled otherwise."

When discussing what they would do, the teachers determined the strategy of leaving the classroom early and then decided to call it a teach-out because they would be leaving the classroom to walk out into the community and "teach" parents about their dilemma.

They said they would have an all-day teach-out Friday because they should have been given that day off as a national holiday anyway.

MORE THAN HALF the 502 district teachers were present when they voted Wednesday to hold the teach-out if no progress was reported.

Several of the points they voiced concern for at the meeting were:

—Negotiations are slow, and might be held over the summer, which they do not want.

—A negotiation meeting scheduled for this week was canceled by district negotiators and not rescheduled.

—The district's last offer of $7,300 did not come near what they considered their cost of living in the suburbs and their expected salary raise to $8,000 base pay with benefits.

—They feared class sizes were being

Propose Vocational Center

A $10 million vocational education center being proposed for DuPage County may help solve the labor shortage in suburban industrial parks, according to John R. Gibson, director of the DuPage Area Vocational Education Authority.

He spoke recently before the Centex Industrial Park Association (CIPA) in Elk Grove Village.

Gibson said the center would be unlike a high school, but would be attended by some 3,000 to 8,000 high school juniors and seniors from the 10 high school districts in the county.

THEY WOULD attend half-day classes at the center, an occupational training facility, where they would have a choice of being trained in 70 different occupations ranging from an automobile mechanic to a data processing programmer. Instruction would be 90 per cent laboratory experiences resembling actual employment conditions with training by a staff of experts in various fields.

A federal and state matching fund program will make the center possible, he said. Sixty per cent of the cost will be provided by state and federal funding, while 40 per cent will be provided locally, he said. The average cost to a homeowner will be $5, he said.

THOUGH A SITE for the center has not been announced, Gibson said construction will begin in spring, 1971.

Gibson appealed for industry, government, educators, and labor to cooperate in the program.

He told the industrialists, "You have to tell us the skills and attitudes needed as well as the instructional methods to be used."

Rummage, Antique Sale Starts Today

The Elk Grove Village Lions Club three-day rummage and antique sale opens today from 7 to 9 p.m. in the high school, Arlington Heights Road and Elk Grove Boulevard.

The sale will continue tomorrow and Sunday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. and 10 a.m. to 3 p.m., respectively.

Gibson earlier backgrounded the need for such a center by saying that many students go directly into the job market right after high school.

"WE'RE NOT DOING enough for those who want to go to work," he said.

Gibson also said too many people look

Lawn Mowers Can Be Deadly

safer because it makes fewer passes in a short period of time and a hand is removed with less damage.

But a reel mower is unfortunately more expensive than a rotary and ineffective in cutting high grass.

Another possible solution to the hazards of lawn-mowing is a rubber blade now on the market called the Delco Flexible Mower Blade.

The blade, which costs about $9, has reportedly been tested at 3,600 rotations per minute and developers claim it will not cut a sturdy object. The blade may break a toe or finger, but it isn't supposed to cut it off.

SOME POWER mower dealers have accepted the new rubber blade, which can be attached to fit any mower, and offer it to their customers. One place where it can be purchased is Kerstings Mower Shop, 621 N. Main in Mount Prospect.

On the other hand, there was a different opinion of the new blade.

"We don't stock it because we don't think it's worth two cents," said a young man behind the counter at Charles Gray Sales and Service, 110 E. Rand Rd., Mount Prospect.

"For one thing, anything that rotates that fast has got to cut," he went on. "It costs twice as much as a normal blade and it can't be resharpened like other blades."

About the best advice is to be careful and keep the kids away from the power mower.

And then there's always the old but safe push mower.

Housing Group Collects $500

More than $500 has been collected by the Northwest Suburban Housing Coalition for their emergency housing fund. However, coalition members hope to raise a much greater amount to help disadvantaged people in the area solve their immediate housing problems.

"We are disappointed that we haven't had a bigger response," said Rudy Hazucha, member of the coalition's board of directors.

Hazucha noted that one local church has contributed $140 to the emergency loan fund and that a women's club has donated $100 to it.

"But, by and large, the idea hasn't taken hold," he added. "There have been only a small number of individual contributions, but the requests for help are coming in at an alarming rate."

HAZUCHA SAID THE group has appealed for funds to organizations directly connected with social welfare, and will now begin to contact various area service groups, such as Rotary and women's clubs.

At a recent coalition meeting, members voted to contribute $125 worth of loans to assist two Des Plaines families who were routed from their homes during a fire several months ago.

The loans will be used to pay for security deposits on a house and an apartment.

All requests for loans are screened by the staff of the Illinois Migrant Council in Palatine and the Northwest Opportunity Center in Rolling Meadows.

The Northwest Suburban Housing Coalition was formed last winter from six existing organizations which seek better housing for the area's disadvantaged.

MEMBER GROUPS include Norwesco, New Communities, Inc., The Northwest Opportunity Center, the Illinois Migrant Council, the Schaumburg-Hanover Local Opportunity Council and the Palatine Community Effort Organization.

Eight other organizations hold associate memberships in the coalition.

Meetings are held the first and third Mondays of the month at the Northwest Opportunity Center.

All donations or questions may be sent to the Northwest Suburban Housing Coalition, P.O. Box 866, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.

Skeeters Still Face Spray

by MARTHA KOPER

Under fire from almost every suburb in the area, Wilbur Mitchell, director of the Northwest Mosquito Abatement District (NMAD) held fast to the district's current methods of controlling the stinging insects.

He was asked to speak to members of the Northwest Municipal Conference Wednesday night because of several questions about the district's operations from local municipalities.

Don Thompson, president of the conference, asked the difference between fogging and misting mosquitoes.

In March, NMAD announced it would discontinue fogging and use only misting to kill the mosquito in accordance with an anti-pollution program.

"The same chemical will be used, but we're eliminating the oil," Mitchell explained.

THE BASIC product for both is malathion. The mist is 97 per cent water and 3 per cent malathion. The fog is 97 per cent oil and 3 per cent malathion," he added.

Mitchell explained misting can also be done during the days while fogging only was effective after sundown.

Mrs. Clayton Brown, chairman of PEP (Pollution and Environmental Problems) asked if misting would be dangerous to children playing in residential areas during the daytime.

"Oh, we won't go into residential areas with lots of children. We'll stay on the outskirts until evening," Mitchell explained.

"Furthermore, we won't mist, if it's not needed," he added.

"We'll be continuing our efforts to kill the larva, so the mosquitoes won't even become adults," Mitchell said.

However, he admitted, oil is used to vacate ponds and standing water.

"Is anything being done toward permanent control?" Mrs. Brown wanted to know.

"WE'RE STILL working on drainage," Mitchell explained. "But we don't like to do drainage without the consent of the property owner."

Standing-water is a natural breeding place for mosquitoes and a permanent control method is to drain areas of stagnant pools of water.

It was asked if broken field tiles are repaired and Mitchell explained some work has been done in unincorporated areas and farmland.

Thompson, village president of Buffalo Grove said, "Yes, but while you're making a farmer happy in an unincorporated area, you're making the taxpayers, which we represent, unhappy because they can't see anything being done."

Kagay: 'Multi-Family? No!'

by SANDRA BROWNING

"We feel that low-income housing can be put in the right location and accomplish its goals rather than result in a wholesale devaluation of adjoining property," said Howard Kagay, president of the Arlington Estates Homeowners Association.

The homeowner's group is opposing the use of St. Vitorian land for low-income housing. The zoning on the land would have to be changed from single-family to multiple family, and that's what the homeowners object to.

Kagay said that changed zoning would set a precedent in the village. No large tracts of land already in the village have been changed from single to multi-family zoning, he said.

"People rely on this when they buy," he said. "I don't think the village fathers are going to change their minds."

RESIDENTS OF the Vitor school area would object to any type of proposed multiple family dwellings, whether it would be townhouses, luxury apartments or low-cost housing, Kagay said.

Personally, Kagay would rather see government subsidies used to allow people to purchase homes scattered throughout the village and other areas. His philosophy is that permanent subsidies destroy incentive.

Kagay suggested it would be a better idea to help people get on their feet by offering subsidies for a period of time, perhaps five years. Then the subsidy would be cut off and "they could pay what everyone else does."

THE HOMEOWNERS group is presently waiting to see the results of the St. Vitor committee, formed recently to study the proposal.

"The committee is making a study of the facts which we feel will benefit us," Kagay said.

At this point, the group has done nothing more than send letters to St. Vitor officials and make a few phone calls. If the committee's report is favorable to the low-cost housing proposal, then the homeowners plan to protest with phone calls, petitions and letters.

Kagay said he agreed with the general outline of how the St. Vitor committee will study the proposal and said "I think they're going to find after gathering the facts that based on past precedent alone, this is the wrong place for it."

THE BASIS OF the protest is the concept of multiple family zoning. Kagay places great faith in the village past zoning policies and said "One of the greatest things in Arlington Heights is that there is no wrong side of the tracks. In any area, you can find $20,000 homes right next to $80,000 homes."

Kagay has gotten calls from people who would like to join the protest, including individuals and representatives of homeowners' groups. Arlington Estates Homeowners' Association is welcoming the support but mainly consists of homeowners in the area bounded by Euclid Street, Oakton Street, Drury Lane and Gibbons Avenue.

There are no racial overtones to the issue, Kagay feels.

"Anyone in the same location and of same background would make the same decision to protest," Kagay said.

Mormons Set Open House

"An Evening with the Mormons," an open house to be held in conjunction with dedication services, is scheduled for Saturday at the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.

The program will focus on the family unit and how the Mormons hold onto their young people. The open house will be held at the church's new chapel, 2035 N. Windsor Drive, Arlington Heights, which will be dedicated Sunday.

"Man's Search for Happiness," a film made famous at the New York World's Fair, will be shown during the open house Saturday at 7, 7:30, 8 and 8:30 p.m. The film portrays the story of "Where Did We Come From, Why We Are Here and Where We Are Going?"

Any interested persons have been invited to attend the open house and the dedication services on Sunday. The services will begin at 5 p.m. in the recently completed $300,000 chapel.

The building will house two separate congregations of more than 700 members living in the Northwest suburbs.

Industrial Fight Backed

by DICK BARTON

Members of the Mohawk Terrace Homeowners Association voted unanimously Tuesday to endorse their board of directors in pursuing the fight against the industrialization of their area by Elk Grove Village developers.

After being told by a local Realtor that their homes, presently valued at $35-45,000 and up, would be worth no more than $25,000 if industrialization surrounded them as proposed by developers, the members indicated they would take the matter to the U. S. Supreme Court if necessary. The only trouble will be legal fee costs, but the members will hold various fund-raising events such as an Antique Sale on June 6 from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. at Central and Devon avenues to raise the money.

MOHAWK ATTORNEYS have said it would cost at least $20,000 to take the matter to the highest court in the land.

Members decided Tuesday to only commit themselves to fees up to the expected Cook County court decision on the recent fight with Elk Grove Village and Trummel Crow Co. of Des Plaines who intends to buy all the land around them for industrial use in line with the Elk Grove master plan.

A decision on the trial which ended two weeks ago is expected in late June or July.

The Mohawk suit challenges the industrial zoning and annexation to Elk Grove of 208 acres of land to the west of the subdivision along Devon Avenue, west of Rte. 83.

BESIDES FIGHTING the industrialization in court, the group is thinking about getting an owner of a nearby piece of land to zone his property commercial and annex to Wood Dale or Bensenville in an effort to block the encirclement by Elk Grove.

If the area was eventually completely surrounded, the homeowners feel the developer would start buying individual lots on the perimeter of the subdivision until the area was less than 60 acres of unincorporated land. If that happened, Elk Grove could force annex the area and the "death of the residential area" would be near, according to residents.

The groups feels no matter what the court decides, an appeal by one side or the other will follow. The additional court costs will have to be approved by the membership following that decision before the group will proceed.

Drug Addiction Seminar Sunday

A two session seminar on drug addiction will be presented May 24 and 31 in St. Simon's Episcopal Church, 717 Kirchoff Rd., Arlington Heights.

Discussion leaders for the program, planned to inform and warn parents of possible addiction problems, will be drug experts, counselors, ex-addicts, an attorney, a medical director and other professionals from St. Leonard's House in Chicago, a halfway house for ex-addicts in Chicago.

Topics to be discussed are Your Community and Drugs, Youth and Drug Abuse, A Dialogue with Ex-Addicts and Narcotic Counselors and Legal and Medical Aspects of Drug Addiction.

This Sunday's session will begin at 7:30 p.m. and is expected to last until 9:30 p.m. Admission will be $3 for adults and $1 for students. All donations will benefit St. Leonard's House.

Day-Care Classes Set Up for Children

A primary day-care class for 6, 7, and 8 year olds will be held this summer at the Elk Grove Wesleyan Church, 545 Landmeier Road.

The class calls for a maximum of 10 children who will be in the care of public school teachers. It will be similar to a day camp with outdoor recreational activities. Cost is $22 a week for one child and $36 for two children.

The church also announced it will continue to operate its pre-school center this summer for 3, 4, and 5 year olds.

Commencement Talk Slated

by TOM WELLMAN
Rev. Nicholas Holt is going to bring the problems of Chicago's ghettos to Harper College in Palatine on Friday, June 5.

Holt, however, is not coming to provoked a riot or to bring the poor to Palatine. Rather, the minister who is associate director of the Chicago Center for Urban Projects will be the commencement speaker at Harper.

He's not exactly a wild-eyed radical, either, as he has committed himself to change through the existing system in Chicago. And his contribution to the system is leadership in a program which graphically exposes the problems of urban life to top business leaders from such firms as the Chicago and North Western R.R. and Carson Pirie Scott and Co.

The affable and dark-tanned Holt visited Harper on Wednesday afternoon, and explained just how the leadership of Chicago's business elite are brought face-to-face with Chicago's problems.

BUSINESS LEADERS are "loaned" to the program for six months. They go through a two and a half week training program, and are then given six-month jobs with various city and Federal agencies, such as Urban Renewal, the Small Business Administration or Model Cities.

And they return to their businesses said Holt, with a deeper understanding of what it means to live and work in Chicago, and with a commitment to change some of it. In a few cases, they suffer "the frustration of the bureaucratic system," he said, as they try to accomplish change.

With the backing of Mayor Daley, Thomas Ayers of Commonwealth Edison and Newton Minow, former head of the Federal Communications Commission (FCC), the program was launched two years ago. It has worked closely and successfully with the political establishment ever since.

And Holt has seen Chicago's political patronage system at work. He noticed it when secretaries were assigned to his office, and after a week, they were not producing. The problem was they took orders from their precinct captain, not from Holt. It required, for some of the secretaries, a box of candy every two weeks.

"YOU'VE GOT TO be able to ride with what it takes to make it in the Daley scene," Holt said.

Holt believes that the "fastest, broadest, deepest change" can come from the system as it stands. And Mayor Daley's political machine, which he said does deserve criticism, can bring about the necessary change.

Holt said that Chicago has the best big-city economy, transportation system and other firsts — but often at the expense of people. He is attempting to change that.

On Friday, June 5, he'll speak at Harper about social change. He realizes that he's "as close to middle America as possible at Harper."

Graham Will Vote No On Parochiaid

Despite pressure from Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie, State Sen. John A. Graham, R-Barrington, said Thursday he will not vote in favor of state aid to nonpublic schools during the current session of the Illinois Legislature.

"I cannot support the measures now pending in their present form," Graham said.

He said the refusal of proponents of state aid to nonpublic schools to accept any amendments to two state aid bills will result in his continued opposition.

Legislation granting as much as $29 million in state aid to nonpublic schools during the next fiscal year was passed by the Illinois House of Representatives earlier this month, but was given only a slim chance of passing the Senate.

However, Gov. Ogilvie this week said he would continue to push for passage of the legislation through "arm-twisting" of Republican senators.

Year-Round Plan Closer to Reality

by TOM WELLMAN

A four-quarter school year — with attendance optional any one quarter — or a longer school day may become closer to reality after a committee of educators and citizens from High School Dist. 214 meets this morning.

The group is the eight-man executive committee of Comm 75, a committee of 75 teachers, administrators, students, board members and citizens studying ways of expanding educational opportunities in the seven-community district, which is the second largest school district in Illinois.

The executive committee, composed of subcommittee chairmen, will be presenting reports on what the district should do in the future. And it is clear that several of the committees will lean strongly toward four quarters of school.

DONALD FYFE, an assistant principal at Elk Grove High School and head of the curriculum, staffing and scheduling subcommittee, did not say what his group's recommendation would be. However, he stressed whatever plan is adopted must be adopted in stages, in order to encourage public understanding of the program.

His subcommittee has been closely studying some form of four-quarter or year-round program, and it is believed his recommendation will concern that plan.

Two other sub-committees will lean toward four-quarter plans. The physical facilities committee, headed by Harold "Red" Best of Arlington Heights, has rated the four-quarter plan as most economical for the district, with an extended day program next in line.

The extracurricular activities subcommittee, chaired by Gene Sackett of Wheeling, will probably back the extended ed school year or four-quarter plan for the district.

Three of the subcommittees, however, will not submit a recommendation. The finance subcommittee, chaired by Robert Weber, the district's Assistant Superintendent for Business Services, will await the reports of other subcommittees before issuing recommendation.

THE INTERFACING committee, chaired by Gene Artemenko of Rolling Meadows, will submit a report but will await the other reports before making a recommendation. The human factors subcommittee, chaired by Mrs. Joyce Milner of Arlington Heights, will list the community's reaction to a schedule change.

Finally, the community resources subcommittee, led by Herbert Laubenstein, a counselor at Prospect High School, report on possibilities for community education under a four-quarter plan. The transportation subcommittee, which Martin Hering of Mount Prospect leads, will report on transportation possibilities under various plans.

At this morning's meeting, the committee, headed by board member Richard Bachhuber, will discuss the reports. The full Comm 75 will meet at 8 p.m. next Wednesday to go over the executive committee's action.

After a decision is reached by Comm 75, it will be forwarded to the full seven-man Dist. 214 board for final action.

The question of change to allow fuller use of school buildings is becoming increasingly critical for the district, as it must begin to consider an eighth high school for the district. The district's seventh high school, in Rolling Meadows, is under construction.

COMMITTEE MEMBERS are aware that, if the district decides to adopt a radical scheduling change, the public must be convinced to support it. Also, it will take the district some time to readjust to such a program.

Earlier this spring, the district's board approved a tuition-free summer school program. The success of the program this year may be a yardstick to indicate support for an expanded school year.

None of the plans under consideration would force a student to attend school 12 months a year. Rather, they would stagger the number of students in school at one time, thus using the empty summer-time classrooms. Officials have stressed that students would not be forced to take a vacation at any particular time of the year.

Sino-U.S. Talks Soon

by CHARLES R. SMITH
HONG KONG (UPI) — Diplomatic talks between the United States and Communist China have been interrupted for two years but prospects for a resumption of the discussions are brighter now than in months.
An agreement to resume the talks may be announced within the next month if not sooner.
The talks between Washington and Peking date back to August, 1955, but the last time the diplomats met was in Warsaw on Jan. 8, 1968.
Diplomats of China and the United States were all set to resume the meetings last Feb. 20. But just two days before the meeting, China denounced "the current anti-China atmosphere" it said was created by the United States.

"It is obviously most unsuitable to hold the 135th meeting of the Sino-U.S. ambassadorial talks on Feb. 20 as scheduled," the statement said.
The only example the Chinese gave of what they were talking about was the detention of a Chinese diplomat in the Netherlands. The diplomat was granted political asylum in the United States.
Diplomatic sources said this was a pretext and the reason for the cancellation was China's own unsettled internal situation and inability to formulate new policies.

In the following months, the United States made written approaches to the Chinese for a resumption of the talks. Last November, U.S. Ambassador Walter J. Stoessel approached the Chinese delegation's Polish interpreter at a fashion show and suggested the discussions resume.
On Dec. 11, Stoessel called at the Chinese Embassy for an hour long meeting with Lei Yang, Chinese charge d'affaires. It was in response to a Chinese invitation.
That was the last move in the efforts to get the talks going again. Diplomatic sources said there have been other developments since that to increase prospects for a resumption soon.
The United States recently relaxed its trade restrictions with China and Vice President Spiro T. Agnew told Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek the United States has embarked on a policy of friendly overtures toward Mainland China, although it would stand by commitments to Taiwan.

Summer School Is Free

High School Dist. 214 has released the schedule and details on its 1970 tuition-free summer school program.
The free program, to go into effect for the first time this summer, will allow in-district students to attend summer school without paying tuition. The school board approved the decision this spring.
Both six and eight-week courses will be offered, with the full courses gaining full credit. The regular six-week courses will open June 22, the first semester will end July 10 and the second semester will end July 31.
In the driver training and the eight-week summer school session, the first session will begin June 15 and end July 10. The second session will start July 13 and end August 7.
CLASSES ARE scheduled from 8 a.m. to noon in the regular six-week program, and from 8 a.m. to 11:30 or noon in the eight-week program. A few courses will be offered at other times, including evening hours.
Students should consult their school counselors in registering for the program. Mail registration will be open until June 16 for the six-week program and until June 10 for the eight-week session. After that, registration must be made at one of the high school counseling offices.

Courses required for graduation will be graded as usual. However, for courses not required for graduation the student may choose pass-fail grading.
A wide variety of courses are offered, both for entering freshmen, for the student who wishes to make up a course or for the person who desires some additional education.
FOR INCOMING freshmen, courses offered include art, band, biology, general business, homemaking, mathematics I and physical education.
In all fields a broad selection of courses is available. For example, under industrial education, courses are offered in mechanical drawing, electronics, power mechanics, woodworking and general electricity.
In social science, the selection is also wide. Courses are offered in anthropology, American problems psychology, comparative religion and world history.
THERE ARE ALSO such courses offered as consumer problems, enrichment journalism, forensics, German, computer-oriented mathematics and science seminar - population biology.

Finally, the driver training course, which draws a large number of students, will be conducted at all six of the district high schools. The four-week-long courses consist of laboratory and driving phases, taken at the same time.
For further information, contact the summer school office, 799 W. Kensington Road in Mount Prospect, at CL 3-1700.

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's. X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

The Way We See It

Anti-Drug Weapon

Drug abuse is a bigger problem than ever for police.

Mushrooming experimentation with drugs by young people has compounded the threat, and so has the increased sophistication of the methods of people who traffic in drugs for a living.

The modern police response has to be equally sophisticated and efficient. And for that reason, we're especially enthusiastic about the idea of a special drug abuse police force proposed for 26 suburban communities.

Called the Metropolitan Narcotics Dangerous Drugs Enforcement Group (MEG), it's been urged for communities from the Northwest suburbs, through the North Shore and up to Waukegan.

The plan is to form a cooperative, with each of the 26 communities contributing one man for a one-year trial period. They'd all get special training in combatting the drug problem, and members of the group would be used to deal with drug abuse on an areawide basis, and in spots where it's a specialized problem.

The cost would be largely borne by a $567,158 federal grant, provided under the Omnibus Crime Control and Safe Streets Act of 1968. The money would cover training, equipment, vehicles, office space, consultants and even drug "buis" used to get evidence against pushers.

It's a plan very similar to one getting under way in DuPage County. First proposed to the county's Chiefs of Police Association, the plan now seems to be catching fire. A dozen communities — including Bensenville, Wood Dale, Itasca, Roselle, and Bloomingdale — already have pledged men and time to the task force.

Cooperation clearly is the key in making either assault work, and, in fact, is a necessity if any federal funds are to be forthcoming.

With full cooperation of several contiguous towns, small communities not equipped to handle the drug problem will benefit from an areawide force. And there will not be any gaps allowing the drug problem to drift from a community where "the heat is on" to one where there is no coordinated attack.

Hoffman Estates has taken the lead among Northwest suburban communities, formally pledging to join MEG if other towns sign up. Arlington Heights and Wheeling are definitely on record supporting the plan, but haven't taken formal action.

The general attitude toward the plan from other communities has been favorable, but to wait and see what develops. That isn't good enough. The idea is a sound one, and our communities should take the initiative in getting it moving.

Political Debate Polarizes

by RICK FRIEDMAN

"Your recent article, 'Political Oppression...' was one of several of yours which caused me to wonder if your analyses were carrying you toward reality and truth... Now let's have a look at what my eyes see: Dissent turned to Violent Destruction in the Streets, School, Churches, Halls of Government and Public Meetings..."

That was how a recent letter to me began from Donald W. Hadley of Hadley & Hadley, Financial Planning for Business and Professional Men, Evanston, Ill.

MR. HADLEY SAID he was anxious to hear my reaction to his letter. In the particular column of Feb. 27 to which he was referring, I had pointed out that suppression of dissent has started at the top and is drifting down, speech by speech, trial by trial, law by law, until it has landed on our own suburban doorsteps.

Mr. Hadley, you're right. Dissent has turned to violent destruction — of the dissenters! Since that column four students have been killed at Kent State University; two students were killed and nine more wounded at Jackson State College, Jackson, Miss.; six blacks were shot by lawmen during a racial disturbance in Atlanta, Ga. — in the backs.

Back to Mr. Hadley's letter: "These same Immature Aggressive Activists using tactics which clearly classify as Infanticide: Screaming as a Response to other Ideas; Sitting down and lying down in tantrums blocking worthy paths of other people... Demanding surrender of certain Rights of others without justification or explanation."

MR. HADLEY, ARE you talking about those awful peace demonstrators in New York City who let themselves be beaten up by construction workers on a lunch hour while the police looked on? Or those bad Black Panthers who fired one shot to the more than 100 rounds that went into their apartment from state's attorney police guns the night Fred Hampton and Mark Clark were killed?

And still more of Mr. Hadley's letter: "Do you see what I have seen — a highly organized and militant left able to simultaneously demonstrate in many areas, call out large mobs and finance their mobility, food and shelter needs and court costs? A much smaller, less organized and poorly financed militant right portrayed as a straw-man enemy of the Left..."

Mr. Hadley, I don't think all those right wing millionaires such as oilman H. L. Hunt and the businessmen who met in Indianapolis a few years ago to get the John Birch Society started would think of themselves as poor.

MR. HADLEY, you take some whacks at the mass media for "selectively and successfully promoting the News-Makers of their choice" and the "news organizations with clever techniques of cutting and patching out-of-context, obscuring the realities and dramatizing untrue appearances of Men and Issues."

Mr. Hadley, are you talking about Hanrahan getting the opportunity to stage his own personally-supervised television special on that fierce gun battle with the Black Panthers? Or the Chicago newspaper which showed all those bullet holes in the door made by that one Panther bullet?

Are you talking about how we report that our own county sheriff can say publicly that he would have walked along with those construction workers who beat up the peace kids?

Mr. Hadley, you end your long letter, only part of which I had the room to quote above, by reminding me of the various "Forces of Darkness" in other countries.

LET ME CLOSE by reminding you, Mr. Hadley, that I don't live in Russia, China, North Vietnam, Cuba or North Korea and I have no control over the internal tyranny of those countries. But I do have one two-hundred-millionth of a franchise to raise my voice against the presently-developing tyranny in the United States of America.

Mr. Hadley, I intend to use it.

Reconsider Abortion Reform Law

Despite the defeat of two bills which would have reformed abortion laws in Illinois, women who are desperate will continue to find ways to have unwanted pregnancies terminated.

They may do this by traveling to other states, many of which have recently changed abortion laws, or they may do this by submitting themselves to medical quacks, charlatans and butchers in back alleys and basements.

One of the purposes of the two abortion reform bills introduced into the Illinois House of Representatives this spring, and passed by the House Judiciary Committee, was to eliminate the latter practice.

Abortion in Illinois is going to continue, whether legally or illegally.

A major objection to abortion reform in Illinois and other states is based on moral and religious beliefs. Certainly these beliefs must be respected, but the people who hold these beliefs do not have a right to impose them on others.

We believe the Illinois House of Representatives erred in defeating the proposed bills. A woman should have the right, within a reasonable period of time, to decide that she does not want a baby that may have been forced upon her or would not be brought into a desirable family situation.

Abortion reform legislation is almost certain to be introduced during the next session of the legislature. It should be approved.

The Political Beat

Legislators Grasp for the Buck

by CHARLES E. HUFNAGEL

We are hearing a lot these days about the "crisis in confidence" and the "credibility gap" in both instances having to do with the relationship between the elected official and his constituents. Just how and why this era in which we live is different in these areas of confidence and credibility than previous ones no one has gone to any great pains to point out.

The reason may be that loyalty to some of the old values is breaking up under the pressures of the tensions in modern civilization which impel the individual to seek personal survival in today's material values. How else can you explain such antics as was witnessed in the Lower House at Springfield last week when 93 members of that body voted to give themselves another pay hike of $3,000 annually bringing their pay to $15,000. Two years ago it was $9,000 when both houses voted a bill to bring the pay to $12,000 which the governor signed.

A THIRD OF THE body did not vote on the increase last week, and 25 thought it irresponsible and voted against it.

(Among Third District representatives, Republican Eugene Schlickman and Democrat Eugene Chapman, both of Arlington Heights, voted for the raise; Republican David Regner of Mount Prospect voted against. None of the 38th District representatives voted on the issue.)

It is expected that the Senate will refuse to consider it or vote it down. But the question is what impelled these 93 to vote an additional 25 per cent in pay for themselves without in any way alluding to why they deserved it?

It is well known that most of them have pretty attractive incomes outside their legislative chores. It is also well known that the country is in a critical economic situation today with poverty and welfare on the rise, joblessness on the increase and with most families struggling to keep their budgets in balance.

Illinois taxpayers are also aware that they are being tapped for the biggest tax take in the state's history and there are rumors that more is to come. Right now there is controversy whether the state bookkeeping will show a surplus or a deficit.

But the $3,000 Illinois legislator pay hike was sought when the Nixon administration is calling on labor and business to hold the line on wages and profits in the interest of stopping inflation and curtailing a recession.

A LOT OF THESE legislators seeking an easy and extra $3,000 at the burdened taxpayer's expense are calling for a clampdown on the rebellious campus kids by giving them a good dose of "law and order." But this is precisely the kind of thing the campus rebels are kicking about. Instead of dedicated government devoted to people welfare the campus kids charge "phonyism."

In this crisis of confidence and credibility which warns of rough weather ahead it is noted that it can be found at the highest levels of government. And the same factors are involved which place the accent on material values, on money. It's nearly an axiom that to get anywhere in politics today you have to have money or access to money, lots of it.

So lawmakers at Washington, whose pay is $42,500 per annum plus expense allowances, find it alluring and profitable to hit the "speaking circuit" where they earn vastly more than their jobs as lawmakers provide. These are some of our noted national leaders recognized for their high thinking and fine rhetoric. But money lures them on as it does the most materialistic among us.

Sure they quote poetry, read the saints, and woo us to follow them on the high road to health, wealth and happiness. They seek only the welfare of all. All of this is the art of politics. Of course this has always been the art but because of today's tensions and concerns of everyday living it has become more pronounced and more obvious. This is the age of space technology, polluted environments and undeclared wars. It's challenging the old values. But if the self-styled leaders are afflicted with the same blindness as those they ask to follow them how can the blind be led?

TO SAY THAT there is a crisis in confidence is to say that there is a confusion about values. In a rough way Marx pointed out that if he knew how a society made its living — its technology and economic practice — he could spell out its culture, name its values. This is materialistic determinism.

But a group of revolutionaries led by

The Fence Post

Student Speaks on Strike Unrest

Being a concerned member of the community of Arlington Heights and an honors graduate of its high school in June, 1969, I write this letter as a plea for community commitment to end the war in Indo-China and quell the internal unrest that fostered the tragic deaths at Kent State University last week. I feel that it is my duty and yours to become aware of and informed about a situation of such grave importance that 429 of the most respected colleges and universities in this nation have chosen to strike. President Nixon's unfortunate decision to extend the already senseless destruction of the Vietnam War into Cambodia — repercussions of which will be felt in the remainder of the Indo-Chinese peninsula — requires every person in this country to give some serious thought to the price of this rather dubious method of attaining peace. Those college students who have supported campus strikes, myself included, share the sense of outrage expressed by five U. S. Senators when they wrote earlier this week, "The recent invasion of Cambodia and the resumption of bombing of North Vietnam are only the latest in a long series of actions that mean more anguish and destruction on all sides."

THOUGH IT IS much more pleasant for me to attend regular class meetings and pursue an education in the normal

routine of my campus, I have been walking the streets of the community distributing literature and soliciting telegrams of protest to the President and Congressmen. More than anything else these campaigns into the community have emphasized to me how uninvolved and uninterested many people are. It is my conviction that life can only be complete in so far as my relationship to people everywhere is complete. My world includes Cambodia, Vietnam and the ghetto, not just a safe dormitory room in Appleton, Wis. or a suburban home. Shouldn't yours?

I can't tell you how proud I am to be a part of the anti-war movement here — a movement that is getting people to think, to send telegrams, to write letters. I stress that "anti-war" doesn't have to include burning ROTC buildings or stopping traffic. Here at Lawrence University we have proven that student protest can be effective and non-violent. I regret that each one of you did not have the opportunity to attend our memorial service for the four students killed at Kent State and to witness the following silent, candlelight procession of 1,400 people.

Students don't have to be violent if the public is intelligently well-informed and interested in communicating with them. Your involvement only means that you care about the senseless slaughter of peasants in Southeast Asia, the destruction of a once productive ecologic system, the annihilation of a way of life centuries older than our own. I'm tired of hearing, "I'm sorry, honey, I don't know how I feel," or "I haven't thought about the war because my husband isn't home," or "I fought in Korea so you should fight too," or "My country right or wrong — you college kids are all Communists."

IF A SINCERE LOVE of country and faith in God qualify me and my friends as Communists, then that is what we are. Know that it hurts to have a door slammed in your face because you've asked someone to think about a situation that forces him to seriously examine his conscience. A decision to oppose the war may be a difficult one to make, but this is no excuse for ignoring the issue. I remind you that times have changed since Germany and Korea. The social, economic, and political implications of this war, at home as well as abroad, extend far beyond the old I'm-all-for-President-Nixon-because-he's-fighting-Communism routine.

An Administration can be wrong. It is composed of fallible men. I emphasize that it is not undemocratic to disagree with its actions. It is the beauty of the democratic system that channels of dissent are available. Use them. Help this nation's young people create a more peaceful world. We students have taken time and effort to learn the facts about Cambodia, Kent State and Vietnam. What's stopping you? All we're asking is give PEACE a chance.

Story Worth Play?

I question the importance which Herald has shown to the Kesters' protest, the front page issue. A flag is a symbol of the country, of its liberty. Anyone who desecrates or disgraces it is like a parasite that eats the body on which it lives. People who disgrace American flag are not worthy to be called Americans, only an enemy of the country can do it. I am sure that after your big publicity there will be many who will follow this thoughtless and evil example, to the joy of the Communists.

Janina Babris
Arlington Heights.

(Editor's Note: Kester first flew the flag upside down, a symbol of distress over Cambodia. After police spoke to him about it, he flew upside down a "family" flag with a design reminiscent of the American flag.)

Last Opportunity For Rubella Shots

Parents of preschool children at least 1-year-old can use the consent form published below to register their children for the mass immunization against the rubella virus tomorrow in suburban Cook County.

Preschool children and those who were unable to be vaccinated when immunization teams were in their school district can be vaccinated at any immunization center, though each school district is responsible for one of the centers.

State Finals in Track, Tennis, Golf

It's Showdown Time in Three Sports

by THE HERALD
SPORTS STAFF

Three state high school championships will be determined this weekend on the University of Illinois campus.

By late Saturday afternoon, Illinois will have 1970 team champs in track and field, tennis, and golf.

The Herald area boasts entries in each sport. Here's a look at this competition:

WHEN TRACK buffs talk about the top contenders for a state championship from this area, Palatine's Guy Zajonc and Conant's Steve Peterson are the two most often mentioned.

Zajonc is regarded as the leading pole vaulter in the state and Peterson one of the premier high hurdlers going into the meet at Champaign starting today and continuing Saturday.

This area does not appear to have the depth and strength to have a state championship team but a number of trackmen should have a good opportunity to place, particularly Zajonc and Peterson.

Zajonc has cleared 14-3 in the pole vault this season and no other vaulter in the state has matched that performance. Zajonc is one of three thinclads who have cleared 14 feet this year.

Peterson, who has the perfect build, stride and form for a high hurdler, has recorded the third best time in the state in the 120-yard highs this season — 14.1.

But the two hurdlers who have had better times than the Conant flash have both been beaten by Peterson in head-to-head competition.

Prospect's Knights earned the most berths in the state meeting during the district. Walt Storm's contingent will have eight berths at Champaign.

Fremd earned sixth berths for state, Conant four, Wheeling four, Forest View four, Palatine two, Arlington two, St. Viator one and Hersey one.

Five other trackmen have consistently ranked with the best in Paddock's weekly state track honor roll. Two of them, Bill Allen of Prospect and Dan Pittenger of Fremd, are in the two mile.

Bill Jarocki, according to many track fans, could very well have a good crack at winning the 880-yard run. The Fremd stalwart is one of eight half-milers who have been timed from 1:55.6 to 1:58.6. Jarocki's best is 1:56.3 and if he is at his peak this weekend he could pull off a surprise win.

Discus thrower Henry Schniepp of Palatine and high jumper Jeff Meissner of Prospect have also been ranked in the top seven in the Paddock honor roll.

Forest View's Mike Keen is the only area sprinter entered in the 100-yard dash and he and teammate Bobb Bell are entered in the 220-yard dash with Prospect's Paul Hacker.

Prospect's Keith Matthews and Tom Klinker and St. Viator's Steve Schlickman will join Jarocki among locals entered in the 880-yard run.

Chuck Portion of Fremd and Ron Hankel of Prospect earned berths in the state meet in the mile run with their performances in the district.

Pittenger's teammate Wally Spiniolas will be a Fremd twosome in the two-mile and will be joined by Prospect's Allen.

The discus entrants are Schniepp and Wheeling's Kevin Bartholme and the pole vaulters are Zajonc, Conant's Tom Rambo and Arlington's Fred Harth.

The high jump entrants are Meissner and Rohan of Prospect and Don Spry of Hersey.

Wheeling has the area's only 440-yard dashman and only long jumper entered in Gary Kewell and John Pitt, respectively. Fremd's Rick Gaare was the only local to make it down state in the shot put.

Four area mile relay teams, Fremd, Wheeling, Prospect and Arlington will compete this weekend. Fremd's team of DISTRICT CHAMPIONS. Fremd High School's golf team, winner of the Barrington District golf meet recently, will be carrying the hopes of the area to the state meet in Champaign today and Saturday. The Vikings of Coach Len Fiocca now the right to go downstate by firing a 320, three strokes better than hosting Barrington. Making up the team are kneeling, from left, Al Hassen, Jeff Oakley and Craig Kreml. Standing are Mike Strauss, Coach Fiocca and Robb Miezio.

Kickin' It Around

by BOB FRISK
Sports Editor

WHEN THE HERALD sports department decided three years ago to present a trophy that annually honored the strongest overall sports program in the Mid-Suburban League, we had no idea the competition would create so much interest.

Hardly a day goes by now, as the school year draws to a close, without some question or comment on the exciting team chase for the three-foot high prize that currently sits in the Arlington High trophy case.

There is particular interest in the Paddock Cup this year because of the tremendous battle being waged between Arlington and Prospect.

With one sport — baseball — still to be completed, Arlington holds a lead of three and one-half points over Prospect. It still is possible for the Knights to win the trophy.

Points in the varsity sports are awarded on a basis of 10 for a team championship, 8 for second, 7 for third, 6 for fourth and down the line with no points given for a tenth place finish.

Arlington, after a slow start in the fall, has stormed back with four championships, a second, and a third in six sports over the winter and spring campaigns.

At the beginning of the spring, most area observers conceded that perennial power Arlington was the probable winner in tennis and the Cards wrapped up that title Monday.

Prospect, as expected, posted an impressive win in the conference track finals, but Arlington, which could have slipped farther down the ladder, took a strong third. Then the Cards grabbed the coveted league crown, with Prospect second, and now Arlington started thinking about retiring the Paddock Cup.

It's not over yet but time is running out in this 1969-70 competition.

YOU CAN BE SURE Paul Splitteroff, the big area product currently pitching for Omaha in the Class AAA American Association, keeps checking those Kansas City Royals box scores. If the Royals keep floundering, Splitteroff may yet get that chance this summer to show his stuff in the major leagues. Paul has pitched a couple gems so far for Omaha. He held Indianapolis to six hits in his opening win and then worked nine strong innings against Tulsa, leaving with the score tied 1-1.

ALTON HIGH SCHOOL of the deep South in Illinois won the 1969 state track and field championship, and we'll be surprised if they don't repeat this weekend in Champaign.

The Redbirds are so strong that they lost a potential state champion when long jumper George Gilchrist failed to qualify but still could score over 20 points.

Couch Jim Wigger has a crack sprinter in Gail Murphy, almost a necessity to a team with little hopes, and they boast a fine 410 man in Milt Johnson. Toss in a sophomore long jumper who has hit 23 feet and two superb relay teams and you can see why Alton could win again.

If we had to come up with a figure, we'd give Alton 22 points. The runnerup? Let's call it Bloom of Chicago Heights with 13.

There are several talented individuals in the 1970 finals so it's obviously not that easy to pick winners in 15 events. But we can't lose anything by examining the field so here are our choices in the 1970 finals:

100 YARD DASH — Morris Bradshaw of Edwardsville . . . the All-State football halfback, who is headed for Ohio State, has been clocked in 9.6 and is consistently under 10 . . . always runs his best races in big meets.

220 YARD DASH — Gail Murphy of Alton . . . strong runner . . . only a junior . . . can turn it on around curve.

440 YARD DASH — Terry Erickson of Morton West . . . in his third state meet . . . third as soph, second as junior . . .

determined to win this time.

880 YARD RUN — Randy Veltkamp of Timothy Christian . . . exceptionally-balanced field in state 880 and race should produce blanket finish . . . Randy has been coming on strong in recent weeks.

MILE RUN — Andy Rubert of Proviso West . . . doesn't have state's best time but is a heady runner and it can be a thinking man's race in the pressure-packed state championship.

TWO MILE RUN — Dave Merrick of Lincoln-Way . . . if he doesn't win, they may demand an investigation . . . only a junior but state's classiest distance runner . . . would have been heavy favorite in mile too.

120 HIGH HURDLES — Steve Peterson of Conant . . . wouldn't this be great if Steve could pull it off? . . . beautiful form, a strong hurdler who has been enjoying a banner spring . . . should be a photo finish.

180 LOW HURDLES — Jim Fasules of Glenbard West . . . this 6-4, 175-pounder is a state threat over both highs and lows . . . should be able to handle any wind problem.

SHOT PUT — Tom Stock of Belleville West . . . has incredible toss of 64-1½ to his credit . . . should get pushed by Champaign's Paul Andrews.

DISCUS — Paul Andrews of Champaign . . . has toss of 186-8¼ . . . the 213-pound senior, who can run the 100 in 10.1, was going to concentrate on the shot put only this year but has made tremendous strides in the discus.

POLE VAULT — Mark Nelson of Deerfield . . . hasn't cleared 14 feet outdoors this spring but is a strong competitor who's been through the pressure in the state finals before . . . we hope we're wrong on this one and that Palatine's Guy Zajonc, who has the state's best vault, can bring home the top prize.

LONG JUMP — Jerry Foster of Bloom . . . versatile performer who could place in both long jump and high jump . . . has season best of 23-3¼ and working in both events may be his biggest problem Friday.

HIGH JUMP — Gaylin Sweet of Octavia . . . has best of 6-8 this year and is defending state champion . . . if conditions are favorable, could clear 6-10 or better.

880 YARD RELAY — Alton . . . with Gail Murphy handling the anchor leg the Redbirds really fly in this event.

MILE RELAY — Alton . . . could be a fitting way to wrap up the state championship by winning this final event.

GREG LUZINSKI, the pride of Prospect Heights, is tearing up the Class AA Eastern League with his big bat at Reading.

After 10 games, Luzinski, property of the Philadelphia Phillies, was hitting .457. He unloaded one of the longest drives in the history of Reading's Municipal Stadium to mark a 1-3 win over Manchester.

The ball cleared a beer sign on top of the scoreboard in left-center. This was Greg's first homer of the season but he went on to crash three more in the week.

Ten Years Ago . . .

Arlington finished fourth in the state track and field finals with nine points. Mike Dundy was second in the 440, Chuck Phelan second in the 880 and the Cards' mile relay team of Tony Stavros, Steve Van Deren, Phelan and Dundy was fifth in the meet hampered by wind and rain . . . Palatine's Bill Smith took third place in the discus throw . . . Al Kruse of Arlington was runnerup in the state golf meet, losing in a playoff on the fourth hole after tying for individual honors with 78-76 . . . Arlington's red-hot baseball team, featuring the pitching of Fritz Peterson, Gene Dahlquist, and George Bork, stood 11-2 in the West Suburban and waited for the title showdown with Maine Township.

Wheeling Takes Over MSL Baseball Lead

Wheeling played "Home Run Derby" in Elk Grove's cozy little ball park Thursday, blasting five home runs for 10 of their 14 runs in a 14-4 romp over the Grenadiers.

The Wildcats, now 9-2, thus wrestled sole possession of first place away from Elk Grove 9-3, by half a game.

Terry Lundquist was the individual batting star of the day for Wheeling, walloping two homers for five runs batted in, enjoying a three-for-three day and scoring four times.

The other circuit clouts came off the bats of Dean Sheridan, Steve Weisen and Scott Day. Sheridan's and Weisen's were two-run blows; Day's a solo blast.

Elk Grove led 3-1 after one inning, having gotten all four of their hits off starting pitcher Day, but Wheeling tied it in the second, then broke the contest wide open with eruptions of four runs in the third and five in the fourth.

Wheeling 124 502 0 — 14-14-4
Elk Grove 300 010 0 — 4-5-4

MIKE WILBINS' sacrifice fly in the bottom of the seventh inning scored Gene Elsberg from third base and gave Arlington and pitcher Ron Doubek a 2-1 Mid-Suburban League victory over Fremd on the Cardinal's home field Thursday afternoon.

Doubek fired a one-hitter at the Vikings, walked just two batters and gave up one run despite seven errors by the Cards, four against Doubek himself.

Elsberg led off the seventh for Arlington, now 6-7 in the MSL, with a walk and went to second on a sacrifice by Larry Geyer. An error on John Brodman's ground ball put Brodman on first and Elsberg on third.

Jim Bokelmann, who had doubled and tripled earlier in the game, was given an intentional walk to load the bases. Wilbins then lofted a fly ball to center field and Elsberg tagged up and scored the winning run.

Behind 1-0 going into the bottom of the fifth, the Cards tied the score when John Kuykendall reached base on an error, went to second on a fielder's choice and scored on Elsberg's single to left field.

Fremd, 5-6, opened the scoring in the third inning when Bob Loughlin reached second on an error, went to third and scored on a pair of fielder's choices.

Fremd . . . 001 000 0 — 1-2-2
Arlington . . . 000 010 1 — 2-6-7

AFTER A TOTAL OF 20 hits had been sprayed to all corners of the Glenbard North diamond yesterday, Conant, 4-8, had to swallow a heart-breaking 10-9 loss to the host Panthers in a Mid-Suburban League contest.

Glenbard North, 3-8-1, scored the winning run with two outs in the bottom of the seventh. The inning had started with an out before Rick Krejcek, who went four for five on the day, tripled. He was thrown out at the plate after a pop single by Jeff Dowd, but Tom Pauling was walked intentionally and Terry Horan singled sharply to score Dowd with the winning tally.

The loss ruined quite a display of power by the Cougars, who rapped a total of 13 hits, nine of them for extra bases. Mike Arkus led the onslaught with two home runs and a triple and Mike Honel had a homer and a double. The other circuit clouts were by Wally Wiener and Dave Guy.

The third inning was Conant's most devastating, with three consecutive home runs, all solo blasts.

Conant . . . 204 200 1 — 9-13-3
Glenbard North . . . 302 301 1 — 10-7-6

League's Best for 1970

CONFERENCE CHAMPIONS. Arlington High School's golf team pulled off one of the big wins of the spring season on Monday in bumping Prospect from the spot in the Mid-Suburban League. The Cards finished second in the conference meet at Indian Lakes and were first in the dual meet standings which combined to give them the championship. Standing, from left, are Coach Tom Walthouse, Rich Armour, Jeff Haire and Jack Van Veen. Kneeling with the MSL trophy are Chris Marszalek and Gordon Kaser.

PROSPECT'S HARD-throwing Mike Berdell allowed a hit in the first frame and one in the last stanza, but was otherwise practically untouchable as Hersey took time out from state tourney play to drop a 3-1 overtime decision to him and his visiting Knights Thursday.

Bruce Frase slapped a double to right for the host Huskies, now 4-7, scoring George Solomon who had reached on an error and Steve Chermicky's gang owned a 1-0 lead three batters into the game. Twenty-five batters later — in the eighth inning — Berdell had still only yielded the one hit and by then Larry Pohlmann's club had finally broken a 1-1 deadlock with a pair of tallies in the top of the frame.

Prospect, now 5-7, had knotted the contest in the second on a walk, an error, an infield hit and a pair of wild pitches by Hersey twirler Rick Kreutzfeld. Kreutzfeld also settled down after a shaky start and put down 12 out of 13 Knight batters going into the sixth.

The Huskie southpaw was lifted in the seventh after pitching his way out of a jam in the sixth and Greg Prosser came on to take the loss. Prosser was stung by an infield single by Dave Lundstedt to open the eighth, walked Stu White and then allowed Greg Sumner to reach on a bunt setting the stage for a two-base error off the bat of Pete Jackson that brought across the decisive runs.

Prospect . . . 010 000 02 — 3-6-2
Hersey . . . 100 000 00 — 1-2-3

Area Entries in State Meets —

Forest View's Bell, Howard Mock, Terry Shanon and Kees won the 800-yard relay race at the district and will compete at Champaign.

Conant will have the only two 180-yard low hurdles entered in Peterson and Dan Wendell.

Tennis

GREG HARRIS and Jim Merkel of Arlington, Rom Ruprecht and Stein Ohrstrom of Hersey and Don Martin and Scott Vaughn of Forest View will represent the area in the state tennis meet at Champaign starting today and continuing on Saturday.

Harris won the Arlington District singles championship and Ruprecht and Ohrstrom won the doubles title while qualifying for the state meet two weeks ago. Merkel was runnerup in singles and Martin and Vaughn were second in doubles.

ACCORDING TO THE athletic public-

My office at Champaign, Harris will be seeded in singles but the seed numbers have not yet been given. This will be Harris' third trip to the state meet. He qualified for state as a sophomore and as a junior on doubles teams.

Merkel, a freshman, will be one of the few frosh entered in the state meet.

Both area qualifying teams in doubles will be faced with stiff competition throughout as will Harris and Merkel, of course since only the best reach Champaign.

Oak Park is a heavy favorite to win its second straight state team championship.

Golf

THE WEATHER should be the determining factor toward deciding the 1970 state high school team champion in golf at Champaign this weekend, according to Len Fiocca, Fremd's head links coach.

"I hope that the weather's real bad down there," he says. "I hope it's quite windy because we're used to windy play up here."

The Vikings, which qualified for the two-day state showdown by winning the Barrington District meet two weeks ago today, will be the only representatives from this area vying for the top prize with 22 other teams.

Although such powerhouse teams as New Trier West, Belleville West and Normal figure to fight it out for the No. 1 trophy, Fiocca says he thinks his boys have a good chance even though they are a pretty young team overall.

Only one senior — Mike Strauss — will be making the trip. Strauss will be joined by three juniors — Jeff Oakley, Robb Miezio and Craig Kreml — and sophomore Al Hassen. So, even if they don't take the crown this weekend, the Vikings will be loaded again next year and will have all that vital state meet experience going for them, too.

Fiocca thinks two of his boys have a very good chance of finishing high in the individual standings — Oakley and Strauss.

"Oakley has been playing great the past couple of weeks," says Fiocca. Just last Monday, the strong junior tied for medalist honors in the Mid-Suburban League meet, but dropped the playoff for first spot after shooting a brilliant eight-over-par 80 on the wind swept Indian Lakes course.

"That was fine golf during that particular day," said Fiocca. "Not too many adults could have scored that well."

As for Strauss, Fiocca said this: "He's pretty strong so he may be able to over-power some of the holes on the course."

Most of all, Fiocca is hopeful that his boys "play the way they know how and not try to press." In past state meets, the score of each squad has been 10 strokes above its average throughout the season, according to Fiocca. So, if the Vikings can ignore the rest of the teams and go out and play their normal, steady games, they should do well.

This is not the first trip downstate for Fiocca. Back in 1966 he guided a squad from Palatine to 15th place. So the Vikings are in very good hands.

Rifles Push Recruiting Drive for 1970 Campaign

The Lake County Rifles Professional football team have shifted their recruiting drive for 1970 into high gear. Player Personnel Director Jim Scully has been in constant contact with numerous college players who are graduating this June.

Four new candidates who have signed contracts for 1970, are John Eliask Will Jackson, James Giovannetti and Bob Bilberg.

Eliask is 6'4" 245 pound guard from Southern Illinois. He lettered three years with his college eleven and captained the Salukis in his senior season. He was drafted by the San Francisco 49ers in 1968.

Jackson is a 9.6 speedster from Morehouse College in Atlanta, Ga. A 6 foot 180 pound running back, he was named to his college all-conference team two consecutive years. Jackson resides in Lake Villa where he serves as the athletic director at Allendale School for Boys.

Jim Giovannetti is a former Northwestern Wildcat, as a player for that Big Ten school he served as a defensive half-back and also saw considerable action as a linebacker. Giovannetti lives in Evans-ton and is working towards his BS in education at the university.

At 6 foot 240 pounds, Bob Bilberg will be a welcome addition to the Lake County line corps. A former Waukegan high prep star, Bilberg has also garnered numerous awards as an AAU wrestler. He has relinquished that interest to play ball for the Rifles. A Morehead state griddier, he was named the most valuable lineman in college in his senior year.

The Lake County Rifles would like to make it known that the door is still open to any former college or pro griddier who is interested in a tryout with this year's ball club. Prospective candidates are urged to contact the Rifle office at 362-8050 in Libertyville. The Rifle rookie camp opens June 29th at Carmel High School in Mundelein where the club plays all its home games.

Viking Netmen Smash Panthers, 4-1

Fremd High School's tennis team finished up the season on a high note by whipping Glenbard North, 4-1, in a make-up Mid-Suburban League dual meet.

The Vikings, which finished with a 3-6 MSL mark and an overall total of 3-7, won all three singles matches:

Steve Callahan captured first singles by whipping Kim Reave, 6-1, 6-0; Chuck Weber took second singles by disposing of Gene Howell by a pair of 6-3 counts, and Fred Chin stopped Steve Crabtree, 6-0, 6-2.

Fremd slipped up in making it a sweep by falling in first doubles. Jay Buehler and Rich Hume lost to Bill Crabtree and Steve Bilek, 6-3, 6-4. But the second team of Russ Kelley and Larry Funk captured its match smashing Bill Wright and Steve Gradner, 6-0, 6-2.

The frosh-soph team also won by the identical 4-1 score.

McMULLIN
(UNINCORPORATED)
POP. 0.000006

NO SPEEDING TICKETS are issued to drivers passing through "McMullin", a small community of six persons in Schaumburg Township. Located at 166 Illinois Blvd. near the Hoffman Estates Village Hall, the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Francis E. McMullin and family lives in peaceful coexistence with its large neighbor, Hoffman Estates. The sign identifying the small community was erected when the McMullins moved to the address two years ago. Community's six residents include Mr. and Mrs. McMullin, sons David and Dennis, daughter Kathleen, and grandfather, Oscar Wolter.

Two to four more years of struggle are in store for Hoffman Estates and Schaumburg motorists driving Golf and Higgins roads west of Meacham Road.

Word came Thursday at a public hearing on the two road's expansion plans held Thursday in Schaumburg's Great Hall.

Contract for the expansion of Higgins Road from Meacham, west to the Kane County line, will be let this year. Completion is expected in 1972.

Golf Road will be expanded in two stages. Contracts for Golf Road's expansion between Meacham and Barrington Road will be let in 1971 or 1972 and will be completed in 1973 or 1974.

Contracts will be awarded in 1974 or 1975 to expand Golf Road west from Barrington Road into the Elgin city limits.

HIGGINS ROAD will be four lane with a 42 foot median; leaving the road expandable to six lanes with an 18 foot median at a later date.

Golf Road will have four lanes and an 18 foot median except that Golf Road between Roselle and Higgins roads will have a cross over median providing access to business on the stretch.

Plans are to eventually expand Golf Road to six lanes using easement provided off the road's shoulders.

General agreement was expressed by officials from Hoffman Estates and Schaumburg as plans were reviewed for the expansion of Higgins and Golf roads through the two villages.

Of primary concern, was the realignment of the Golf-Higgins intersection.

The plan calls for Higgins Road, expanded to four lanes, to dip south across needed right of way fronting on Hermitage Trace and Hoffman Rosner property. Higgins Road will then twist back north, shortening the angle and distance currently needed to pass the intersection.

GOLF AND HIGGINS will be fully channelized for left and right turns and traffic signals will be installed.

Although a portion of potential commercial land in Hoffman Estates will be lost 6.6 acres of the Hoffman Rosner site will be preserved for commercial use.

Prospects of a Chrysler Corporation auto dealership coming in on the Hoffman-Rosner land are in the making.

Once plans for the road expansions are completed a deal can be finalized, said Art Kelter, Hoffman Rosner's commercial director.

The auto dealership could bring Hoffman Estates increased revenues estimated upward from $75,000 a year.

Access to Schaumburg commercial property in the pie shaped area east of the Golf-Higgins intersection is provided by two median crossings and a frontage road along Higgins Road.

MEDIAN CROSSINGS are provided at all dedicated streets along Higgins and Golf through the two villages except Evanston Street in Hoffman Estates.

Details for aligning the north and south sides of Plum Grove Road at Higgins still have to be worked out, but will be included.

The intersection of Golf and Roselle will go unaltered. Design engineers from State Highway Department Dist. 10 called the facility adequate.

Barrington Road intersections will be expanded to four lanes, fully channelized and signalized at both Higgins and Golf.

Barrington Road will be expanded to four lane from Higgins Road north of the Northwest Tollway, in addition. Access to the apartment developments going into the area still have to be worked out with developers.

SUTTON ROAD (Rte. 59) intersecting with Golf Road this year will be expanded to four lanes and channelized.

The bridge and access ramps currently at the Sutton-Golf intersection present a serious hazard considering current traffic, said Henry Yamanack, Dist. 10 Design Engineer.

Tearing down the Sutton Road bridge over Golf Road is included in the plan.

INSIDE TODAY German Measles Shots Tomorrow

Immunization centers for the mass inoculation of preschool children at least 1-year-old and school children through third grade who did not receive the rubella vaccination for German measles in school this week will be open tomorrow from noon to 3 p.m.

Parents must fill out a consent form available at the 10 centers throughout the Northwest suburbs and must accompany their children to the center.

One center, Minor Junior High School in Arlington Heights, will be open from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. for parents who cannot take their children in the afternoon.

Consent form, schools in Section 1.

Other centers which will be open tomorrow are Barrington Middle School in Barrington; Carl Sandburg School, Rolling Meadows; Jack London Junior High School, Wheeling; Ann Sullivan School, Prospect Heights; River Trails Junior High School, Prospect Heights; Winston Churchill School, Schaumburg; Campanelli School, Schaumburg; Gregory School, Mount Prospect; and Elk Grove High School.

Although, according to Park Pres. Fred R. Weaver, park officials are not planning formal festivities in recognition of the occasion, they are looking forward to next month's formal dedication of Ida B. Voegel Park and Community Recreation Center.

The new 10-acre park and its buildings will be open to the community on Flag Day, Sunday, June 14 and a celebration will take place at that time.

Lyle Button and Bernard M. Bartosch, two of the original five park commissioners, still serve on the park board and have each held terms as president.

TRACING the history of the park district, an initial public meeting to form a district in Hoffman Estates was held Jan. 22, 1964 at the village hall with a steering committee and about 20 interested citizens present.

After several successive meetings, residents of the community went to the polls May 2 and voted in favor of creating the new recreational taxing body.

Members of the steering committee called the first park board meeting to order May 9, 1964, to canvass the election and drawing of lots to determine length of term of office of the five newly elected officials.

The new park board spent many hours forming, revising and adopting park ordinances which govern the district in order to improve and provide optimum recreational areas for the growing community.

In the summer of 1964, a six week recreation playground was initiated and has grown in number to five playground areas which will operate this year.

EACH YEAR, members of the park board continue to evaluate programs offered and keep an eye to community needs and desires to provide continued expansion.

Band concerts were initiated during the summer of 1966 and continue each year.

When the district was first formed, certain parcels of land donated by Hoffman-Rosner Corp., the prime developer of Hoffman Estates, were designated as parks.

The original sites were Edward F. Pinger Park (originally called Lakeview Park), Highland, Dorothy Sicher and High Point Parks.

Although these parcels are primarily water retention basins surrounded by peat, the board has remained determined to, at least partially, improve all sites.

At Pinger Park, tennis courts were installed in 1966 with financial assistance from Hoffman Estates Woman's Club. Pinger, as well as Highland and High Point parks have been lighted and have warming houses.

PICNIC TABLES, char-grills, bleachers and playground equipment has been installed in all parks and trees and shrubs planted to provide shade.

A site on Durham Lane, which had been designated as park land on all village maps, was recently transferred to the district by village officials and this week the area is being planted with evergreens and trees.

A 10-acre site was purchased by the district from Mrs. Ida B. Voegel last fall and is now in the process of being developed.

The new park, the first site to be purchased by the park district, is at Higgins and Jones roads and houses the system's administrative office center.

A large barn on the property will be renovated and used for general purpose recreation later this year.

ALTHOUGH the park district has experienced phenomenal growth over the past six years, it has been deluged with problems as well.

Controversy with village officials, which lasted over more than half of the life of the district, appears to be calming down but a large building and expansion program was defeated by area voters this spring.

Park officials, with help from members of the Hoffman Estates Jaycees, hope to hold a community survey early next fall to determine wants and needs of the populace.

Another milestone in park history came last November, when Vaughn R. Black, a trained park and recreational administrator, joined the district.

Early in 1970, the park system was finally able to move into its own headquarters at Voegel Park finally having acquired a home.

ALTHOUGH the future looks brighter for the growing district, officials are presently confronted with controversy over annexation of Winston Knolls, a subdivision within the corporate limits of the village but not park district.

They have been promised a sizable land donation which will substantially add to the 76 acres presently owned by the district.

Homeowners, however, are not certain that they want to join the existing district.

Park officials said this week that they are anxious to continue expanding and improving the recreational programming and, according to Black, enrollment is predicted to double next fall.

Park board meetings, which are open to the public, are held first and third Tuesdays of each month at 8:30 p.m. at Voegel Park Administration Center.

Creek Projects Delayed

Funds for engineering studies leading toward the eventual improvement of Poplar Creek in Hanover Township by the state are expected to be approved next week but residents of the Schaumburg Township side of Hanover Park who have been plagued by flooding from the west branch of the DuPage River may have to wait longer for legislative action.

Illinois Sen. John A. Graham, R-Barrington, said Thursday he expects the Poplar Creek Appropriation to pass through the House of Representatives next week, expected to be the final week of the spring legislative session.

But Graham said appropriations for the west branch of the DuPage River may not make it that quickly. The Illinois Division of Waterways must first recommend the program and such a recommendation is not likely in the short amount of time before the legislative session is expected to end.

Even if the bills for both waterways are approved this session, actual work on the creek will not begin until at least 1971, Graham said yesterday. The current bills provide for engineering studies, he said, and must be followed by appropriation bills to fund the actual work.

Hanover Park officials have been in close touch with Sen. Graham and are willing to go to Springfield to lobby on behalf of the appropriation. The bill for the study was the result of a meeting village officials and Hanover Park residents living east of Barrington Road had with Sen. Graham last fall, village Atty. William Davies said.

THE WEST BRANCH of the DuPage River can more appropriately be called a winding stream. It runs through Schaumburg Township between the west end of Weathersfield subdivision in Schaumburg and the east edge of Hanover Park.

The creek has been causing flooding problems in Hanover Park for a number of years during warm weather rains. Residents in the Highlands, and Longmeadows South and North subdivisions have been flooded during heavy rains.

The river is being widened by the Army Corps of Engineers in DuPage County. A dam is now under construction in Naperville. But the project won't reach Hanover Park for four or five years, officials feel.

Mayor Richard Baker appointed a flood committee and the village has received $45,000 from 3-H Builders to clean and dredge the stream in Hanover Park. All the funds have not been expended yet and work isn't complete, but during last week's heavy rains, flooding wasn't reported for the first time in recent years.

Village officials hope to do some straightening of the creek as it winds through the Fisher Farm. This is presently what causes back-ups. The farm is being condemned by the Metropolitan Sanitary District and is not within the corporate limits of the village.

It's Pre School Rubella Shot Time

With the last day of the Stop Rubella Week mass immunization program tomorrow in suburban Cook County, health and hospital officials are encouraging parents of preschool children to have their children vaccinated either in the free state rubella program or with local doctors.

IN THE STATE-wide program, about 5 per cent of the 600,000 children vaccinated have some sort of reaction, Bert Chotiner, assistant director of Northwest Community Hospital, said.

"Dr. James Hall of the Cook County Department of Public Health has sent information to school districts about the rate of reaction," Chotiner said. "Of the 5 per cent who might react with a rash, fever, swollen glands, or joint aches, only 1 per cent will possibly need medication."

Reactions of any type, from the simple rash on, will not appear for two to six weeks, Chotiner said.

"I think people should remember that the doctors and pediatricians in the area were aware of the possible reactions when they endorsed the state rubella immunization program for suburban Cook County. The physicians on our staff are solidly for the program."

Shots Over Spots

A German measles epidemic is predicted as a definite possibility in the next three years.

However, the effects of an epidemic will be minimized through the mass immunization of Dist. 54 primary pupils this week.

Schaumburg Township children from one year of age through the third grade are being administered the Phillips Roxane measles vaccine this week. Primary pupils at Dist. 54 elementary schools were given measles vaccinations Wednesday, Thursday, and today.

PRESCHOOL CHILDREN in Dist. 54 over one year old will be administered the vaccine tomorrow from noon to 3 p.m. at Campanelli School, 310 S. Springinguth; and Churchill School, 1520 N. Jones Road, Schaumburg. The measles shots are given with painless injection guns by medical teams consisting of local doctors and nurses, including members of the Hoffman-Schaumburg Registered Nurses Club.

More than 4,000 primary pupils in Dist. 54 are being vaccinated against the measles virus this week.

Today the measles vaccine will be given to pupils at Thomas Dooley School, Lowell and Norwood Lanes, and Nathan Hale School, 1300 W. Wise Road.

The purpose of the mass immunization program in Dist. 54 is to prevent the transmission of the measles virus to pregnant women, in order to prevent birth deformities.

The Rubella, or German measles — the three day measles — is a mild rash infection caused by a virus. It is usually mild in children.

HOWEVER, PREGNANT women catching the Rubella are in serious danger since the disease affects the fetus, causing death or deformity. During the winter of 1964-65, for example, between 20,000 and 30,000 severe birth defects and an equal number of stillbirths occurred due to the measles epidemic at that time.

According to medical authorities, measles epidemics occur about once every five to eight years, with school children being the primary carriers of the virus.

By administering the vaccine to pupils from one year to third grade, it is expected to prevent the transmission of the disease to expectant mothers for the next four years.

The most effective way to eliminate the danger to the expectant mother is to make all the carriers, the children, immune.

THE EARLIER in the pregnancy the expectant mother contracts the German measles, the greater the possibility of a birth defect. In the first month of pregnancy, there is an 80 per cent chance that the child will be born with a defect. Rubella-caused deformities include blindness, deafness, mental retardation, and congenital heart diseases.

By immunizing the children from one year of age through third grade, the primary carriers of the measles virus are being eliminated, thus reducing the probability of contact to a negligible amount.

Bicycle Safety Testing Ready

Bike riders in Schaumburg will be given a Bicycle Safety Test tomorrow between 10 a.m. and noon at the Weathersfield Commons.

The test is being sponsored by the Schaumburg Police Department in conjunction with the Cook County Traffic Safety Commission. Members of the Schaumburg Woman's Club will assist in the safety test.

A model intersection with props will be set up in the Weathersfield Commons, according to police, and riders will be tested on giving proper hand signals. Youngsters will be graded as "day riders" or "night riders." In addition, safety stickers will be given to bicycle owners.

There will also be a small obstacle course which riders will be asked to maneuver.

Free milk will be provided for children taking the bicycle test, according to police.

Patrolman Hy Yeargin of the Schaumburg Police is heading the department's Bicycle Safety Program this year. This is the tenth year of the bike safety program.

YEARGIN is being assisted by Patrolmen Frank Gourley, John Cornwall, and Jack Todd.

Bike riders in Schaumburg are being issued tickets starting this month for violations of safety rules in Schaumburg's Bicycle Ordinance. The first bicycle court, presided by village trustee James Guthrie, is scheduled June 13 at 9:30 a.m.

Under the village's bicycle ordinance, riders are required to observe the following rules:

Bicycles must ride with the traffic — as near to the curb as possible, and must stop at all stop signs.

Proper hand signals must be used by bike riders.

Only one person may ride on a bicycle.

No rider shall remove both hands from the handle bars or carry any packages which interfere with his driving.

Bicycles should not be ridden on the sidewalks in shopping centers.

Any bike operated at night must have a light on the front and a rear reflector.

No bicycle shall be left lying on the street or sidewalk.

No bicycle shall have attached to it any other object, such as a wagon or dog.

ALL BICYCLES must have a village license.

"The rules the kids are asked to observe are essentially the same rules that drivers must obey," said Officer Yeargin. "And the earlier they can be taught to observe these rules, the better off they'll be once they start driving cars."

Kagay: 'Multi-Family? No!'

by SANDRA BROWNING

"We feel that low-income housing can be put in the right location and accomplish its goals rather than result in a wholesale devaluation of adjoining property," said Howard Kagay, president of the Arlington Estates Homeowners Association.

The homeowner's group is opposing the use of St. Viatorian land for low-income housing. The zoning on the land would have to be changed from single-family to multiple family, and that's what the homeowners object to.

Kagay said that changed zoning would set a precedent in the village. No large tracts of land already in the village have been changed from single to multi-family zoning, he said.

"People rely on this when they buy," he said. "I don't think the village fathers are going to change their minds."

RESIDENTS OF the Viator school area would object to any type of proposed multiple family dwellings, whether it would be townhouses, luxury apartments or low-cost housing, Kagay said.

Personally, Kagay would rather see government subsidies used to allow people to purchase homes scattered throughout the village and other areas. His philosophy is that permanent subsidies destroy incentive.

Kagay suggested it would be a better idea to help people get on their feet by offering subsidies for a period of time, perhaps five years. Then the subsidy would be cut off and "they could pay what everyone else does."

THE HOMEOWNERS group is presently waiting to see the results of the St.

Viator committee, formed recently to study the proposal.

"The committee is making a study of the facts which we feel will benefit us," Kagay said.

At this point, the group has done nothing more than send letters to St. Viator officials and make a few phone calls. If the committee's report is favorable to the low-cost housing proposal, then the homeowners plan to protest with phone calls, petitions and letters.

Kagay said he agreed with the general outline of how the St. Viator committee will study the proposal and said "I think they're going to find after gathering the facts that the based on past precedent alone, this is the wrong place for it."

THE BASIS OF the protest is the concept of multiple family zoning. Kagay places great faith in the village past zoning policies and said "One of the greatest things in Arlington Heights is that there is no wrong side of the tracks. In any area, you can find $20,000 homes right next to $60,000 homes."

Kagay has gotten calls from people who would like to join the protest, including individuals and representatives of homeowners' groups. Arlington Estates Homeowners' Association is welcoming the support but mainly consists of homeowners in the area bounded by Euclid Street, Oakton street, Drury Lane and Gibbons Avenue.

There are no racial overtones to the issue, Kagay feels.

"Anyone in the same location and of same background would make the same decision to protest," Kagay said.

Skeeters Still Face Spray

by MARTHA KOPER

Under fire from almost every suburb in the area, Wilbur Mitchell, director of the Northwest Mosquito Abatement District (NMAD) held fast to the district's current methods of controlling the stinging insects.

He was asked to speak to members of the Northwest Municipal Conference Wednesday night because of several questions about the district's operations from local municipalities.

Don Thompson, president of the conference, asked the difference between fogging and misting mosquitoes.

In March, NMAD announced it would discontinue fogging and use only misting to kill the mosquito in accordance with an anti-pollution program.

"The same chemical will be used, but we're eliminating the oil," Mitchell explained.

THE BASIC product for both is malathion. The mist is 97 per cent water and 3 per cent malathion. The fog is 97 per cent oil and 3 per cent malathion," he added.

Mitchell explained misting can also be done during the days while fogging only was effective after sundown.

Mrs. Clayton Brown, chairman of PEP (Pollution and Environmental Problems) asked if misting would be dangerous to children playing in residential areas during the daytime.

"Oh, we won't go into residential areas with lots of children. We'll stay on the outskirts until evening," Mitchell explained.

"Furthermore, we won't mist, if it's not needed," he added.

"We'll be continuing our efforts to kill the larva, so the mosquitoes won't even become adults," Mitchell said.

However, he admitted, oil is used to vacide ponds and standing water.

"Is anything being done toward permanent control?" Mrs. Brown wanted to know.

"WE'RE STILL working on drainage," Mitchell explained. "But we don't like to do drainage without the consent of the property owner."

Standing-water is a natural breeding place for mosquitoes and a permanent control method is to drain areas of stagnant pools of water.

It was asked if broken field tiles are repaired and Mitchell explained some work has been done in unincorporated areas and farmland.

Thompson, village president of Buffalo Grove said, "Yes, but while you're making a farmer happy in an unincorporated area, you're making the taxpayers, which we represent, unhappy because they can't see anything being done."

HE TOLD Mitchell that Buffalo Grove is seriously considering withdrawing from the district.

A village trustee from Palatine, Clayton Brown, pointed out that malathion is a first cousin to nerve gas and is extremely poisonous in large quantities.

"If people receive only a small dose, it will give them the symptoms of the flu," he said.

Mitchell agreed, but said, "So is nutmeg or quinine or penicillin in large quantities."

A trustee from Barrington Hills said "That's a poor analogy. Isn't there anything you can use that isn't poisonous to humans, but will kill mosquitoes?" Mitchell shook his head.

"WHY IS THERE a mosquito district? Maybe we should just forget it altogether," a man said.

"When I came here in 1957, I was informed that petitions had been circulated demanding the creation of a mosquito abatement district. The people saw a need for it," Mitchell explained.

"But things have changed since then," someone answered.

Boys Baseball Is On Deck

Opening day of the 1970 baseball season for the Schaumburg Boys' Baseball League will be heralded by a parade through Weathersfield tomorrow starting at 9 a.m.

The parade will begin at St. Marcel-line's Church on Springinguth Road and wind through the streets of Weathersfield enroute to Braintree Field, where the first game of the season will be played.

Players, coaches, and managers will participate in the parade.

Tomorrow also marks the first day of the candy drive being sponsored by the Schaumburg Athletic Association in order to raise funds for baseball equipment. The drive will run through June 13, and all league players will be selling candy.

The candy being sold is a "Tootsie Roll" reusable bank containing 13 ounces of tootsie rolls.

The women's auxiliary of the Schaumburg Athletic Assoc. will be selling refreshments Saturday at the opening game of the season.

Beautification Group To Meet

Persons willing to give a few hours of their time to help make Hanover Park a more attractive community are asked to attend the meeting of the Community Beautification Committee, Monday, 8 p.m., in the village hall.

The committee, chaired by Mrs. Barry Crawshaw, will be concerned with clean-up and beautification projects.

"All organizations are urged to send a representative to this meeting with their ideas for improving the appearance of Hanover Park," Mrs. Crawshaw said. "I am sure that there are also many individuals who can make outstanding contributions to the village as members of this committee."

The assistance and cooperation of all residents is being sought to make this effort a success. Further information is available from Mrs. Crawshaw, 837-7799.

Second Bus Ordered

In order to accommodate all those who have requested tickets for the YWCA Adventure Series trip to Shady Lane Farm, Marengo, on June 11, a second bus has been chartered, according to Mrs. Neil Swartz, Adult Program Director.

At Shady Lane Farm, the group will have luncheon and attend the play, "My Three Angels." The bus will leave the YWCA at 11 a.m. and return by 5 p.m.

Tickets are available at the YWCA. Membership is required for participation in Adventure Series trips.

Mowers May Be Hazardous

by DAVE PALERMO

An 8-year-old girl, playing in the front yard of her Northwest suburban home one summer afternoon, decided it would be fun to ride dad's power lawn mower, which was left idling while dad was in the house.

The girl innocently climbed onto the tractor, not knowing that her little brother was sitting behind it playing in the grass.

The machine suddenly jerked backwards and rolled over the infant, severing his foot.

There are many accidents attributed to power lawn mowers, many of them serious and sometimes fatal.

A power mower can be as dangerous as it is convenient.

All too often somebody rolls the mower over a foot or sticks his hand underneath the machine. The causes are always carelessness on the part of the person using the mower and the result, invariably is a trip to the hospital emergency room.

JACK RYAN, PUBLIC relations director for Northwest Community Hospital in Arlington Heights, remembers one July day two years ago when the emergency room handled seven persons in one day.

The actual amount of injuries attributed to power lawn mowers is difficult to tabulate, for as Ryan says, "The emergency room is more concerned with treating the injury than the cause of the injury."

The records at Northwest Hospital may read, along the column reading out hand or foot, "lawn mower." But there are many times when it is not scribbled in.

A female doctor who works solely in the emergency room said during a summer weekend, "We can count on four or five."

Most of the time, although the injury is serious, the victim is taken to the hospital in the family car and not an ambulance.

Mount Prospect Fire Chief Edwin Haberkamp said that only on two occasions last year, was the ambulance called to pick up a person injured by a lawn mower. There have been none so far this spring in Mount Prospect.

Last weekend Northwest Hospital's emergency room handled three cases, all middle-aged men.

"People would tend to think that most of the time children are injured by lawn mowers," said Ryan. "But often it's the adult or older person."

"Lawn mower injuries are not as prevalent as dog bites, but we get our share."

"People are usually careful of something that presents an obvious danger, like a lawn mower. The injury is always because of carelessness on the part of the user and the injury is usually serious enough that the person winds up here."

Besides the possibility of a person cutting a hand or a foot, cases where debris is hurled outward like a bullet by the rotary blades is also common.

THE U.S. DEPARTMENT of Health, Education and Welfare reported about 140,000 persons were injured in the summer of 1968 and because of the increase of mowers as a labor-saving device, the amount is rising annually.

The Consumers Union claims mowers have too much blade exposure and the National Commission on Public Safety indicates that the sale of lawn mowers should be federally regulated.

The Outdoor Power Equipment Institute (OPEI) has standards that blade exposure be only at the front and the discharge chute shielded. Only about 25 per cent of the mowers on the market meet these standards, according to the OPEI.

Most of the blame for power mower injuries is attributed to the rotary-type mower, which accounts for approximately 90 per cent of the industry's sales.

The rotary mower blade whizzes inches above the grass at about 200 mph and can hurl objects outwards at high speeds.

A reel-type mower isn't as popular as the rotary mower but experts claim it is safer because it makes fewer passes in a short period of time and a hand indiscreetly placed on the blade can be removed with less damage.

But a reel mower is unfortunately more expensive than a rotary and ineffective in cutting high grass.

Another possible solution to the hazards of lawn-mowing is a rubber blade now on the market called the Delco Flexible Mower Blade.

The blade, which costs about $9, has reportedly been tested at 3,600 rotations per minute and developers claim it will not cut a sturdy object. The blade may break a toe or finger, but it isn't supposed to cut it off.

SOME POWER mower dealers have accepted the new rubber blade, which can be attached to fit any mower, and offer it to their customers. One place where it can be purchased is Kerstings Mower Shop, 621 N. Main in Mount Prospect.

On the other hand, there was a different opinion of the new blade.

"We don't stock it because we don't think it's worth two cents," said a young man behind the counter at Charles Gray Sales and Service, 110 E. Rand Rd., Mount Prospect.

"For one thing, anything that rotates that fast has got to cut," he went on. "It costs twice as much as a normal blade and it can't be resharpened like other blades."

About the best advice is to be careful and keep the kids away from the power mower.

And then there's always the old but safe push mower.

Softball Is Considered

If sufficient interest warrants, Hanover Park park directors will include softball league in their summer recreation program.

Persons interested are asked to contact Park Secretary Mrs. Nancy Nielson at 837-7789 between 1 and 3 p.m. Monday, from 1 to 4 p.m. Tuesday through Friday, or between 9 a.m. and noon or 1 to 4 p.m. Saturday.

FEES FOR softball league play will be announced by the park district later, Humphreys said.

In other business this week, board members referred the purchase of new mats for judo and karate classes to committee study under the guidance of Commissioner John Morrissey.

The board also authorized an expenditure not to exceed $323 for purchase of a Heyer Model 76 spirit duplicator for use in park offices and authorized a maximum of $350 for the annual park district audit.

In line with other board direction, Mrs. Nielson was asked to contact a repair firm for estimates on overhaul and maintenance of the air conditioning system serving Longmeadows Activity Center.

Concerning maintenance at Ahlstrand Fieldhouse, board members agreed to pay Ron Jensen a maximum of $50 for installation of two new doors.

Sorry, It Was Water, Not Oil

A geyser of water four stories high shot through the roof of the Hoffman Estates well house south east of Golf and Roselle Roads Tuesday evening when the well's water hammer lock broke.

"It knocked out a window and the ceiling of the well house," said Administrative Assistant Dan Larson. "There was a considerable water loss."

Within 15 minutes Supt. Wally Bolm and the public works employees on hand capped the geyser.

But, late last night a second trauma erupted when a transformer went out of whack at the Howie-In-The-Hills pump station, burning out the motor.

The 172 homes occupied in Winston Knolls subdivision went without water until after 9 a.m. this morning as a result.

The geyser left homeowners in the central Hoffman Estates area without water for an estimated two hours.

Regner Dance Set Saturday

Sen. Ralph T. Smith and U.S. Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-13th, will join several hundred Northwest suburban Republicans tomorrow at a testimonial dance honoring State Rep. David J. Regner, R-Mount Prospect.

Regner is completing his second term in the Illinois House of Representatives and is seeking a third term in November.

The testimonial, designed to help defray campaign costs, is scheduled for 8:30 p.m. at the Flick Reedy Auditorium in Bensenville.

Besides Smith and Crane, many of the state and county Republican candidates are expected to attend.

Dancing, refreshments and door prizes are planned with one of the features being 10-cent beer.

Chairman of the event is Richard Hall of Des Plaines, former president of the Elk Grove Township Republican Organization.

Flicker Of School Aid Hope

by SUE CARSON

Undaunted by the defeat of a state aid bill last week, Catholic educators and parents from Wheeling and Buffalo Grove went to Springfield Wednesday to lobby for passage of a bill to provide some assistance for private schools.

Among the two bus loads of area people who went on the trip was Sister Jean Schulte, principal of St. Joseph the Worker Catholic School in Wheeling.

Sister Jean termed the trip "frustrating." She said that her group made the trip specifically hoping to speak to State Sen. John Graham, R-Barrington, but was unable to meet with him.

"We were discouraged that Sen. Graham wouldn't talk to us," Sister Jean said. "For those of us who spent a full day on the road, it was very frustrating."

LAST WEEK the senate education committee killed a bill which would have provided some state aid to the nonpublic schools. However, there are several bills still before the committee which would provide reimbursements to parents of nonpublic school children.

Catholic educators and some educators from other private schools fear their schools will be forced to close in the near future if operating costs and tuition continue to climb higher while enrollment decreases.

They feel that partial state aid for secular subjects would be a good solution to the problem. However, all bills that would provide some form of state aid to the private schools proposed in recent years have been defeated.

Sister Jean said that she was one of about 3,000 Catholic educators and parents in Illinois who made the Springfield trip, which was sponsored by the Catholic dioceses in the state.

She said that the group did get to meet with many legislators and that many were "very gracious" to them.

"GOV. (RICHARD) Ogilvie also spoke to us and pledged his support for state aid," she added. "He told us that it would cost the state $4 million if the private schools closed. But we all know that. We're not the ones to tell. There are others who need to be convinced."

She added, "We're disappointed that the people don't understand that we're giving the children as fine an education as they would receive in the public schools and that only a small fraction of the day is spent in character development."

"They don't understand that parents of a child in a private school pay taxes to support the public schools yet they've never gotten anything back. All they're asking now is to get some benefit from their tax money."

"If the private schools are forced to close, the parents will have no choice as to where they can send their children to school. It would really be unfortunate if the Chicago private schools closed and these children had to go to the public schools. The Chicago public schools are already overcrowded."

SISTER JEAN said she expects enrollment at St. Joseph to decline this fall. Presently 370 children attend the school.

"A lot of our parents have said they will send their children to the public schools this fall because they are paying very high taxes to the schools and aren't getting any return from them."

The St. Joseph principal said that the school is operating at a $62,000 deficit this year and that she expects the deficit to be $76,000 next year. She said that there is also a $490,000 debt on the school building.

No 'False Alarm'

Wheeling emergency units called to help at a false alarm at the Buffalo Grove Mall Wednesday brought their own fire with them.

Buffalo Grove asked the neighboring village for assistance at 11:17 a.m. after a faulty sprinkler system activated a fire alarm at the recently opened shopping center.

When Wheeling firemen and police arrived at the Mall at 11:19, however, the brakes on police car 604 overheated, and the car's left front wheel caught fire.

Wheeling firemen at the scene extinguished the fire in the squad car, police said.

"I PLAN TO enter some antique car shows with this later this year," said Roger Bernard of his restored 1930 Model A Ford sedan. When Bernard finishes restoration of the car, he estimates it will be worth more than six times what he paid for it.

This Ford One of His Better Ideas

by MAN AKERSON

As you walk into Roger Bernard's garage with him to see his restored 1930 Ford Model A, you wonder why he spent all that time (10 years off and on) and money (almost $2,000) on the car.

But as he starts talking about the car, describing his work on it and throwing in a few anecdotes about it from time to time, you come to understand why he spent all that time and money on it. And by the time you leave, you're wishing you could find some beat-up old car, haul it home and go to work on it — like he did.

BERNARD, who lives in Wheeling, bought the car 10 years ago at a service station in the village. "It was in pretty bad shape then," he said.

"I have always wanted to buy a Model A Ford and restore it. I had seen this old car sitting on the gas station lot for a long time. Then one day, it was raining, when I drove by, I felt bad about it sitting out there, and I just went in and bought it."

"When I drove into our backyard with it, my wife came out of the house and said, 'What in the world is that?'"

"That" was a beat-up, broken down,

1930 Ford Model A Tudor sedan for which Bernard had just paid $450.

Bernard had bought the car with the intention of restoring it, so he seldom drove it. Yet he bought license plates for it for the last nine years. He has all the plates — still in the envelopes they came in.

I PARTIALLY restored it about six years ago. I didn't do much besides paint it a little," Bernard said.

Then the car sat in the garage for the next several years. Last February, though, Bernard sold his business and retired. He was ready to go to work on the car in earnest. "I had the whole thing spread all over the garage. Fenders were hanging from the rafters. Pistons were on the floor."

"I was out here at 8 in the morning and didn't leave until 6 p.m. each night. Now, it's ¾ finished. All it needs now is upholstery and a paint job." He plans to have it completely finished sometime this summer.

Restoring a Model A forced Bernard to do not only a lot of mechanical work — that was easy for him because he had been an auto mechanic 26 years — but also carpentry. For in 1930 many autos, including the Ford, still used wood in the car.

Bernard got some of the parts for the car from as far away as California. The upholstery is being made in Beardstown, Ill.

The car now is worth about $2,000. Once finished it will be worth about $3,000, Bernard estimates. Cost now? $495.

Bernard, who spent about $2,000 in buying and restoring it, really isn't interested in how much it will be worth when it is finished: "I'd never sell that car," he said.

"I just have a feeling for that type of car. I always thought they were the greatest, and I still do."

His sedan isn't the first Model he had. "Our family owned a Model A roadster when I was 16. My dad owned it, but my brother and I drove it." Then he grinned and added, "But I'm the guy who'd polish it up all the time!"

BERNARD TOLD of the times when "I'd spend all day Saturday shining that roadster up for my date that night. I used to court my girl with that car."

That "girl" later became Mrs. Bernard. Bernard proudly points out that virtually all the parts on his car are original. Even the original horn with its ir-reverent "aooah" is there and working. And so is the chromed radiator cap with its quail emblem — "I paid $21.95 for that," he proclaimed.

Bernard's restored Ford is far from unique. He estimated there about 25 to 30 such restorations in the Northwest suburbs alone. He guessed the Model A's throughout the nation that have been restored number in the thousands.

Though the car is nearly finished, Bernard's restoration projects are just beginning. In an adjacent garage he has another Model A Ford. Well, that is, part of another Ford. The engine, transmission, frame and wheels are there.

And he doesn't plan to stop there either.

Two Zoning Objections In

Wheeling's village board this week filed objections to two proposed rezonings on property south of the village near Prospect Heights.

The village board voted to object to the Cook County board of Commissioners about proposed rezonings for the Willow Park Estates at Milwaukee Avenue and Palatine Road and for a gasoline service station and convenience food store on the southwest corner of River and Willow roads.

In its objection to the Willow Park Estates rezoning, the board noted that the property is scheduled for industrial development on Wheeling's official land use map. The development would bring additional traffic problems to the area and is within 700 feet of Pal-Waukee airport so residents would be plagued by the noise from planes passing overhead and by dangers of possible aircraft crashes, the board said.

THE VILLAGE objection also noted that a joint school-park site reservation located on the property is not planned for by the developers and that needed acceleration lanes on the Palatine Road exit ramp are not proposed in the plan.

Plans for the 48.5-acre project include a shopping center with supermarket, five or six other small stores, and a small bank facility or office building.

The residential section of the planned development would include 919 one and two-bedroom apartments and recreational facilities.

The rezoning request is to change the property from apartment zoning to planned development zoning.

The second objection filed by the village to business zoning on the southwest corner of River and Willow roads notes that the village feels the change from single-family zoning on the corner would be "spot" zoning.

THE BOARD said traffic problems in the area would be increased by a service station and convenience food store, the area has flooded in the past, and the surrounding property would decrease in value if the business uses were allowed.

The village noted its official map calls for single-family developments in the area because of adjacent single family-home zoning.

Plans for the corner include a Mobil Oil Station and a White Hen Pantry primarily to serve residents of apartment complexes north of Willow Road, the property owners testified at County Zoning Board hearings.

Wheeling's village board is considering entering a recapture agreement as a means of paying for installation of at least part of a $225,000 sanitary sewer and water system to serve the northwestern area of the village.

Such an agreement, in which the village would allow a developer to assess other landowners wishing to use the sewer and water facilities in the future for a portion of the installation costs, would be the first of its kind for the village.

The move would mean a complete turnaround in policy for Wheeling which has always maintained that sewers and water should be paid for by the village or a developer at the time of installation and that private developers should not be able to assess other developers in the area later for sewers already constructed.

Often the village has paid for oversizing of a sewer to serve later developments, however.

WHEELING TRUSTEE Peter Egan said at Monday's village board meeting that despite past policies "the village is now in a position where we almost have to use a recapture agreement."

Egan said the "staggering amounts" predicted for the cost of the sewer by Village Engineer Thomas Moody made the agreements necessary.

"I don't know how else we could get them paid for," Egan said.

The sewer Moody recommended in the area as part of a proposed system for all of the future northern area of the village would be installed along Elmhurst Road from a Metropolitan Sanitary District interceptor sewer on Hintz Road to Dundee Road and then north of Dundee to Buffalo Creek and north of the creek along McHenry Road.

How long a portion of that $225,000 length would be built from north on McHenry Road to the south as part of the recapture agreement has not been determined as yet, Egan said yesterday.

One unusual difference in this recapture agreement from the standard agreements used by other area villages is that the village of Wheeling itself will do some of the "recapturing" of funds.

The Tekton Corp., builder of a proposed Cedar Run townhouse complex north of McHenry Road and south of the county line, would be one party to the agreement. While Tekton would pay for the installation of the sewers, the village would pay for oversizing to serve other developments. Then, as future projects in the area are built, developers will pay a certain amount of the sewer installation costs both to Tekton and to the village.

THE VILLAGE board has directed Villagers take the time to have a detailed evaluation of their assessment made.

He explained that most homes are inspected only once for an assessment. "A property owner owes it to himself to make sure that assessment is accurate," Theroux said.

He said one error which cut a homeowner's tax bill by more than $400 was discovered in such a check recently.

Taxpayers interested in having a detailed check of their assessment made must phone Theroux their permanent real estate index number from their tax bill in order that complete inspection files for their property will be available on the bus.

He said taxpayers could call him at 259-9090 until noon of the day before the bus will be in Wheeling.

The second half of the real estate tax payments for the year are due Sept. 1.

Other sewers included in Moody's recent sewer study were the Wolf Road sewer which will be built in the near future for a cost of $45,000 and a "Y" shaped extension through the area east of the Soo Line R.R. tracks and west of Wolf Road north of Dundee Road.

Contributions already made by various developers for the Wolf Road sewer include a $20,000 commitments from the developers of Carriage Woods North.

Crane: McCormack Chair to Albert

Democratic Rep. Carl Albert of Oklahoma seems the best bet to succeed Speaker of the House John McCormack, U.S. Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-13th, told the Herald yesterday.

McCormack Wednesday announced that he plans to retire from Congress after his current term which ends in January. He has served as Speaker of the House, the position that is second in line in Presidential succession, since 1962.

THE NEXT SPEAKER is likely to be a Democrat since the Democrats control the House and the majority party controls the election for Speaker.

Crane, however, said he thinks Republican chances to gain control of the House of Representatives "are very good."

He said he did not have a favorite candidate among the Republicans in the event that the GOP does gain control, although he did say Rep. Leslie Arends, a Republican from downstate Melvin, Ill., should be considered for one of the GOP leadership positions.

Crane himself has been mentioned as a potential Speaker of the House.

Rep. Edward Derwinski, R-4th, in the Southwest suburbs of Chicago, predicted last December that Crane would be one of the next Republican Speakers of the House, following Republican Rep. Gerald

Ford of Michigan, currently House minority leader.

About 200 of Crane's constituents heard the prediction, which was made at a luncheon in Washington, D.C., the day Crane formally opened his Congressional office.

LAST OCTOBER, during Crane's campaign against Democrat Edward Warman, a Herald reporter asked him what his long-range plans were and he said he would like to become Speaker of the House. That announcement was made at a Crane rally in Palatine Township.

Crane, a former history professor at two Midwestern universities, was elected to his first term in the House of Representatives in a special election last November called to fill the vacancy created by the resignation of former Rep. Donald Rumsfeld.

CRANE WILL SEEK a full two-year term this November, running against Warman again.

The Republicans have held the Congressional seat since 1919 when the district included most of the Northeastern corner of Illinois and parts of Chicago.

It currently consists of the townships of Wheeling, Elk Grove, Palatine, Schaumburg, New Trier, Evanston, Niles and Northfield.

Barrington and Hanover townships and Chicago's 50th Ward were part of the district until the mid-1960s.

Skeeters Still Face Spray

by MARTHA KOPER

Under fire from almost every suburb in the area, Wilbur Mitchell, director of the Northwest Mosquito Abatement District (NMAD), held fast to the district's current methods of controlling the stinging insects.

He was asked to speak to members of the Northwest Municipal Conference Wednesday night because of several questions about the district's operations from local municipalities.

Don Thompson, president of the conference, asked the difference between fogging and misting mosquitoes.

In March, NMAD announced it would discontinue fogging and use only misting to kill the mosquito in accordance with an anti pollution program.

"The same chemical will be used, but we're eliminating the oil," Mitchell explained.

THE BASIC product for both is malathion. The mist is 95 per cent water and 5 per cent malathion. The fog is 97 per cent oil and 3 per cent malathion," he added.

Mitchell explained misting can also be done during the days while fogging only was effective after sundown.

Mrs. Clayton Brown, chairman of PEP (Pollution and Environmental Problems) asked if misting would be dangerous to children playing in residential areas during the daytime.

"Oh, we won't go into residential areas with lots of children. We'll stay on the outskirts until evening," Mitchell explained.

"Furthermore, we won't mist, if it's not needed," he added.

"We'll be continuing our efforts to kill the larva, so the mosquitoes won't even become adults," Mitchell said.

However, he admitted, oil is used to vacate ponds and standing water.

"Is anything being done toward permanent control?" Mrs. Brown wanted to know.

"WE'RE STILL working on drainage," Mitchell explained. "But we don't like to do drainage without the consent of the property owner."

Standing water is a natural breeding place for mosquitoes and a permanent control method is to drain areas of stagnant pools of water.

It was asked if broken field tiles are repaired and Mitchell explained some work has been done in unincorporated areas and farmland.

Thompson, village president of Buffalo Grove said, "Yes, but while you're making a farmer happy in an unincorporated area, you're making the taxpayers, which we represent, unhappy because they can't see anything being done."

HE TOLD Mitchell that Buffalo Grove is seriously considering withdrawing from the district.

A village trustee from Palatine, Clayton Brown, pointed out that malathion is a first cousin to nerve gas and is extremely poisonous in large quantities.

"If people receive only a small dose, it will give them the symptoms of the flu," he said.

Mitchell agreed, but said, "So is nutmeg or quinine or penicillin in large quantities."

A trustee from Barrington Hills said "That's a poor analogy. Isn't there anything you can use that isn't poisonous to humans, but will kill mosquitoes?" Mitchell shook his head.

"When I came here in 1957, I was informed that petitions had been circulated demanding the creation of a mosquito abatement district. The people saw a need for it," Mitchell explained.

"But things have changed since then," someone answered.

Regner Dance Set Saturday

Sen. Ralph T. Smith and U.S. Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-13th, will join several hundred Northwest suburban Republicans tomorrow at a testimonial dance honoring State Rep. David J. Regner, R-Mount Prospect.

Regner is completing his second term in the Illinois House of Representatives and is seeking a third term in November.

The testimonial, designed to help defray campaign costs, is scheduled for 8:30 p.m. at the Flick Reedy Auditorium in Bensenville.

Besides Smith and Crane, many of the state and county Republican candidates are expected to attend.

Dancing, refreshments and door prizes are planned with one of the features being 10-cent beer.

Chairman of the event is Richard Hall of Des Plaines, former president of the Elk Grove Township Republican Organization.

Women Honor Kinsey, Day

Wheeling Police Sgt. Jack Kinsey and Don Day, Title III director of educational and social services, were honored Tuesday by the Wheeling Women's Club.

At its annual banquet the club honored Kinsey for his "outstanding work with the youth of the community" and Day for his "outstanding achievements in the field of education."

New officers for the club installed at the banquet included Mrs. Linda Gaudsmith, second vice president; Mrs. Joyce Patrick, corresponding secretary, and Mrs. Nancy Bodinet, recording secretary.

Guest speaker of the banquet was Attorney Larry Gabriele of the Northwest Bar Association. Gabriele told the Women's Club members that he was concerned with bringing more of the major courts in the court system out into the suburban areas so that all major cases are not tried in Chicago.

He noted that pending legislation before the Illinois state legislature has been introduced to accomplish a more localized court system.

Gabriele's speech was a part of the Women's Club's efforts to become acquainted with the law in their "Know Your Law" program.

Phone Books Being Delivered

Delivery of new telephone directories is now going on in the Wheeling-Buffalo Grove areas. Delivery is normally completed in about two weeks according to John G. Johnson, Illinois Bell Telephone Company.

The areas receiving the directories include, besides Wheeling and Buffalo Grove, Prairie View, Long Grove, Half Day and Aptakisic.

Johnson noted the new directories contain a list of emergency phone numbers on the inside front covers. Also contained in the directory is the FBI phone number, tornado warning numbers and even a list of Zip Codes.

Persons distributing the books will pick up the old books when they leave the new ones.

Kagay: 'Multi-Family? No!'

by SANDRA BROWNING

"We feel that low-income housing can be put in the right location and accomplish its goals rather than result in a wholesale devaluation of adjoining property," said Howard Kagay, president of the Arlington Estates Homeowners Association.

The homeowner's group is opposing the use of St. Viatorian land for low-income housing. The zoning on the land would have to be changed from single-family to multiple family, and that's what the homeowners object to.

Kagay said that changed zoning would set a precedent in the village. No large tracts of land already in the village have been changed from single to multi-family zoning, he said.

Amvets Post Adopts Doughnut Day Drive

The Wheeling Phillip Carpenter Amvets Auxiliary Post 66 has adopted the Salvation Army's Doughnut Day June 12 as an official club project.

Mrs. Marge Rennie, 3200 Salk Rd., Arlington Heights, will serve as area chairman for the fund drive.

Over 9,000 volunteers will sell familiar paper doughnut tags on street corners in Chicago and 135 suburban communities in the surrounding seven-county area.

The income goal for the 1970 Doughnut Day is $197,000. The funds will help benefit the anticipated 200,000 men, women and children in the area who will be helped during 1970 through the social welfare services provided by The Salvation Army.

"People rely on this when they buy," he said. "I don't think the village fathers are going to change their minds."

RESIDENTS OF the Viator school area would object to any type of proposed multiple family dwellings, whether it would be townhouses, luxury apartments or low-cost housing, Kagay said.

Personally, Kagay would rather see government subsidies used to allow people to purchase homes scattered throughout the village and other areas. His philosophy is that permanent subsidies destroy incentive.

Kagay suggested it would be a better idea to help people get on their feet by offering subsidies for a period of time, perhaps five years. Then the subsidy would be cut off and "they could pay what everyone else does."

THE HOMEOWNERS group is presently waiting to see the results of the St. Viator committee, formed recently to study the proposal.

"The committee is making a study of the facts which we feel will benefit us," Kagay said.

At this point, the group has done nothing more than send letters to St. Viator officials and make a few phone calls. If the committee's report is favorable to the low-cost housing proposal, then the homeowners plan to protest with phone calls, petitions and letters.

Kagay said he agreed with the general outline of how the St. Viator committee will study the proposal and said "I think they're going to find after gathering the facts that based on past precedent alone, this is the wrong place for it."

THE BASIS OF the protest is the concept of multiple family zoning. Kagay places great faith in the village past zoning policies and said "One of the greatest things in Arlington Heights is that there is no wrong side of the tracks. In any area, you can find $20,000 homes right next to $60,000 homes."

Kagay has gotten calls from people who would like to join the protest, including individuals and representatives of homeowners' groups. Arlington Estates Homeowners' Association is welcoming the support but mainly consists of homeowners in the area bounded by Euclid Street, Oakton Street, Drury Lane and Gibbons Avenue.

There are no racial overtones to the issue, Kagay feels.

"Anyone in the same location and of same background would make the same decision to protest," Kagay said.

Housing Group Collects $500

More than $500 has been collected by the Northwest Suburban Housing Coalition for their emergency housing fund. However, coalition members hope to raise a much greater amount to help disadvantaged people in the area solve their immediate housing problems.

"We are disappointed that we haven't had a bigger response," said Rudy Hazucha, member of the coalition's board of directors.

Hazucha noted that one local church has contributed $140 to the emergency loan fund and that a women's club has donated $100 to it.

"But, by and large, the idea hasn't taken hold," he added. "There have been only a small number of individual contributions, but the requests for help are coming in at an alarming rate."

HAZUCHA SAID THE group has appealed for funds to organizations directly connected with social welfare, and will now begin to contact various area service groups, such as Rotary and women's clubs.

At a recent coalition meeting, members voted to contribute $125 worth of loans to assist two Des Plaines families who were routed from their homes during a fire several months ago.

The loans will be used to pay for security deposits on a house and an apartment.

All requests for loans are screened by the staff of the Illinois Migrant Council in Palatine and the Northwest Opportunity Center in Rolling Meadows.

The Northwest Suburban Housing Coalition was formed last winter from six existing organizations which seek better housing for the area's disadvantaged.

MEMBER GROUPS include Norwesco, New Communities, Inc., The Northwest Opportunity Center, the Illinois Migrant Council, the Schaumburg-Hanover Local Opportunity Council and the Palatine Community Effort Organization.

Eight other organizations hold associate memberships in the coalition.

Meetings are held the first and third Mondays of the month at the Northwest Opportunity Center.

All donations or questions may be sent to the Northwest Suburban Housing Coalition, P.O. Box 866, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.

NOTICE TO ALL VETERANS

WHO HAVE HONORABLY SERVED THEIR COUNTRY IN TIME OF WAR OR PEACE

In view of the fact that no National Cemetery exists in the Chicago area to provide burial space for veterans, Memory Gardens Cemetery of Arlington Heights, Illinois has established a Veterans Program to be conducted by its Veterans Department and has made available a limited number of grave spaces to qualified veterans at no charge (except - a $15.00 fee for endowment care as required by Illinois State law).

Only honorably discharged Veterans of the United States Armed Forces who do not own or have been assigned burial property may apply. (Special Protective Features are available for spouse as well as for all minor children.) Applications are processed in the order received. Verification of information is necessary to issue Certificate for grave space eligibility.

Since the number of grave spaces assigned to the Veterans department is limited, applications will be accepted only during the period required to complete the allocation.

Report Baseball Equipment Theft

Thefts of baseball equipment from storage boxes at Twain and London schools in Wheeling forced postponement of recent Wheeling Athletic Association Little League games recently.

Ronald Henricks of 536 Audrey Ct., reported to Wheeling police that bases, a catcher's glove, a shinguard, two bats and some field equipment were stolen from the boxes sometime in the last week.

St. Joseph Students Set Spring Concert

Popular and traditional tunes will be on the program today when music students at St. Joseph the Worker School in Wheeling present a spring concert.

The concert will be given at a 12:30 p.m. school assembly.

Approximately 70 youngsters in school choral groups will perform. Piano and guitar students will also play during the concert.

Yesterday evening the students gave their concert for their parents.

Mormons Set Open House

"An Evening with the Mormons," an open house to be held in conjunction with dedication services, is scheduled for Saturday at the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.

The program will focus on the family unit and how the Mormons hold onto their young people. The open house will be held at the church's new chapel, 2035 N. Windsor Drive, Arlington Heights, which will be dedicated Sunday.

"Man's Search for Happiness," a film made famous at the New York World's Fair, will be shown during the open house Saturday at 7, 7:30, 8 and 8:30 p.m. The film portrays the story of "Where Did We Come From, Why We Are Here and Where We Are Going?"

Any interested persons have been invited to attend the open house and the dedication services on Sunday. The services will begin at 5 p.m. in the recently completed $500,000 chapel.

The building will house two separate congregations of more than 700 members living in the Northwest suburbs.

Developing a healthy personality and keen intelligence is kid stuff.

Here are science's remarkable new discoveries about child development — in a book for every concerned parent.

By the age of four, your child has developed half of his general intelligence. By six, 33% of his academic skills will be acquired. All the remarkable new research of the "growth sciences" points to one important fact: children learn, intellectually and emotionally, far earlier than was ever suspected. And what they learn is nearly impossible to change in later years. Now Muriel Beadle has translated this important new research into a book of pertinent advice for parents.

is a unique tour of that most fascinating and unpredictable of regions — your child's mind.

"I PLAN TO enter some antique car shows with this later this year," said Roger Bernard of his re-finished 1930 Model A Ford sedan. When Bernard finishes the restoration of the car, he estimates it will be worth more than six times what he paid for it.

Commercial Site Close To Answer

Reversing the stand it took a month ago, the village's plan commission gave the go-ahead Wednesday to development of an 8.8-acre commercial and residential site on Highway 83, east of St. Mary's Catholic Church. The site is known as the Gershefski property.

The commercial and apartment zoning is being considered by the village in connection with the possible annexation of the property. Currently it is unincorporated.

The final decision on the zoning and annexation rests with the village board which will deal with the matter next Monday.

The property has been termed the key to the development of the property along Highway 83. Most of the property is now undeveloped, and most of it is unincorporated.

THE PLAN COMMISSION got its first look at the development last November. The apartments at that time were to be known as the Buffalo Park Apartments. The exact kind of business slated for the commercially zoned portion has not yet been determined.

In April the plan commission recommended disapproval of the zoning, pointing out that the R-9 (multiple-family) zoning would allow the developers too much latitude in building on the property.

Early in May Mark Beaubien, the attorney for the property owners, asked the village board if he could present the development's preliminary plats to them. At that point the plan commission requested that it be allowed to see the preliminary plats. It had not yet seen them.

CERTAIN PLAN commissioners were concerned not only because of Beaubien's letter, but also because of an ad in a Chicago newspaper advertising the property as having already been zoned for apartments and business. (A representative of the realty firm running the ad told the Herald later, the ad was run "not to sell the property, but only to test its marketability." He said the land had not been sold.)

The village board agreed with the plan commission's request, and Wednesday, the plan commission got its first look at the preliminary plats. That it failed to see them at its meeting in April was one big reason it turned down the proposal.

If the village board goes along with the plan commission and approves the annexation and zoning of the site, it will make a larger site for which annexation is being sought, contiguous.

THIS SITE, to be developed by Michael Babiarz, includes more than 20 acres and would contain both an apartment development and a shopping center. According to the attorney handling that property, an indoor movie theater is a strong possibility for that shopping center.

Developers of that site petitioned for annexation last fall. However, annexation of a small site that would have made the Babiarz property contiguous was turned down. At that point the village was unable to annex the Babiarz property.

However, annexation of the 8.8-acre site will make Babiarz property contiguous and thus able to be annexed.

This Ford One of His Better Ideas

by ALAN AKERSON

As you walk into Roger Bernard's garage with him to see his restored 1930 Ford Model A, you wonder why he spent all that time (10 years off and on) and money (almost $2,000) on the car.

But, as he starts talking about the car, describing his work on it and throwing in a few anecdotes about it from time to time, you come to understand why he spent all that time and money on it. And by the time you leave, you're wishing you could find some beat-up old car, haul it home and go to work on it — like he did.

BERNARD, WHO lives in Wheeling, bought the car 10 years ago at a service station in the village. "It was in pretty bad shape then," he said.

"I have always wanted to buy a Model A Ford and restore it. I had seen this old car sitting on the gas station lot for a long time. Then one day, it was raining, when I drove by. I felt bad about it sitting out there, and I just went in and bought it."

"When I drove into our backyard with it, my wife came out of the house and said, 'What in the world is that?'"

"That" was a beat-up, broken down, 1930 Ford Model A Tudor sedan for which Bernard had just paid $450.

Bernard had bought the car with the intention of restoring it, so he seldom drove it. Yet he bought license plates for it for the last nine years. He has all the plates — still in the envelopes they came in.

I PARTIALLY restored it about six years ago. I didn't do much besides paint it a little," Bernard said.

Then the car sat in the garage for the next several years. Last February, though, Bernard sold his business and retired. He was ready to go to work on the car in earnest. "I had the whole thing spread all over the garage. Fenders were hanging from the rafters. Pistons were on the floor."

"I was out here at 8 in the morning and didn't leave until 6 p.m. each night.

Now, it's ¾ finished. All it needs now is upholstery and a paint job." He plans to have it completely finished sometime this summer.

Restoring a Model A forced Bernard to do not only a lot of mechanical work — that was easy for him because he had been an auto mechanic 28 years — but also carpentry. For in 1930 many autos, including the Ford, still used wood in the car.

Bernard got some of the parts for the car from as far away as California. The upholstery is being made in Beardstown, Ill.

The car now is worth about $2,000. Once finished it will be worth about $3,000 Bernard estimates. Cost new? $495.

Bernard, who spent about $2,000 in buying and restoring it, really isn't interested in how much it will be worth when it is finished. "I'd never sell that car," he said.

"I just have a feeling for that type of car. I always thought they were the greatest, and I still do."

His sedan isn't the first Model he had. "Our family owned a Model A roadster when I was 16. My dad owned it, but my brother and I drove it." Then he grinned and added, "But I'm the guy who'd polish it up all the time!"

BERNARD TOLD of the times when "I'd spend all day Saturday shining that roadster up for my date that night. I used to court my girl with that car."

That "girl" later became Mrs. Bernard. Bernard proudly points out that virtually all the parts on his car are original. Even the original horn with its irreverent "aooah" is there and working. And so is the chromed radiator cap with its quail emblem — "I paid $21.95 for that," he proclaimed.

Bernard's restored Ford is far from unique. He estimated there about 25 to 30 such restorations in the Northwest suburbs alone. He guessed the Model As throughout the nation that have been restored number in the thousands.

Though the car is nearly finished, Bernard's restoration projects are just beginning. In an adjacent garage he has another Model A Ford. Well, that is, part of another Ford. The engine, transmission, frame and wheels are there.

And he doesn't plan to stop there either.

"IT'S NOT GOING to hurt, is it?" This little tyke was one of hundreds in Buffalo Grove who were vaccinated Tuesday against German measles. For pre-schoolers and those who were unable to be vaccinated earlier, second vaccination session will be held Saturday from noon to 3 p.m. at London Junior High School in Wheeling.

It's Teen Queen Tea Time

Tea time comes this Sunday for Buffalo Grove girls who are considering entering the 1970 Miss Buffalo Grove Teen Queen contest.

A tea for girls who are entering the contest, and for those who are thinking about entering as well, will be held from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m. Sunday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Ralph Rath, 163 Selwyn Lane. All village girls considering entering have been invited to the event.

Girls in the village between 14 and 17 years old are eligible to enter the competition. Entry blanks are available at the grocery stores in both shopping centers in Buffalo Grove, or they may be procured this Sunday at the tea. Deadline for applications is next Monday.

Girls will be judged on their talent on an essay they are required to write, and on extemporaneous answers to questions.

The number of contestants will be narrowed to five finalists in preliminary competition scheduled for June 13.

The pageant with the crowning of the new Teen Queen will be held a week later, June 20. Like the preliminary judging, the pageant will be held at St. Mary's Catholic Church Hall.

During the pageant, each girl will read her essay as well as answer extemporaneous questions. Talent demonstrations will also be included. Not only dancing or singing but also such things as dressmaking and cooking will qualify under the talent segment.

The Teen Queen contest is sponsored by the Buffalo Grove Jaycees. The Jaycees'ettes help to coordinate the event.

Crane: McCormack Chair to Albert

Democratic Rep. Carl Albert of Oklahoma seems the best bet to succeed Speaker of the House John McCormack, U.S. Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-13th, told the Herald yesterday.

McCormack Wednesday announced that he plans to retire from Congress after his current term which ends in January. He has served as Speaker of the House, the position that is second in line in Presidential succession, since 1962.

THE NEXT SPEAKER is likely to be a Democrat since the Democrats control the House and the majority party controls the election for Speaker.

Crane, however, said he thinks Republican chances to gain control of the House of Representatives "are very good."

He said he did not have a favorite candidate among the Republicans in the event that the GOP does gain control, although he did say Rep. Leslie Arends, a Republican from downstate Melvin, Ill., should be considered for one of the GOP leadership positions.

Crane himself has been mentioned as a potential Speaker of the House.

Rep. Edward Derwinski, R-4th, in the Southwest suburbs of Chicago, predicted last December that Crane would be one of the next Republican Speakers of the House, following Republican Rep. Gerald

Ford of Michigan, currently House minority leader.

About 200 of Crane's constituents heard the prediction, which was made at a luncheon in Washington, D.C., the day Crane formally opened his Congressional office.

LAST OCTOBER, during Crane's campaign against Democrat Edward Warman, a Herald reporter asked him what his long-range plans were and he said he would like to become Speaker of the House. That announcement was made at a Crane rally in Palatine Township.

Crane, a former history professor at two Midwestern universities, was elected to his first term in the House of Representatives in a special election last November called to fill the vacancy created by the resignation of former Rep. Donald Rumsfeld.

CRANE WILL SEEK a full two-year term this November, running against Warman again.

The Republicans have held the Congressional seat since 1919 when the district included most of the Northeastern corner of Illinois and parts of Chicago.

It currently consists of the townships of Wheeling, Elk Grove, Palatine, Schaumburg, New Trier, Evanston, Niles and Northfield.

Barrington and Hanover townships and Chicago's 50th Ward were part of the district until the mid-1960s.

Skeeters Still Face Spray

by MARTHA KOPER

Under fire from almost every suburb in the area, Wilbur Mitchell, director of the Northwest Mosquito Abatement District (NMAD) held fast to the district's current methods of controlling the stinging insects.

He was asked to speak to members of the Northwest Municipal Conference Wednesday night because of several questions about the district's operations from local municipalities.

Don Thompson, president of the conference, asked the difference between fogging and misting mosquitoes.

In March, NMAD announced it would discontinue fogging and use only misting to kill the mosquito in accordance with an anti-pollution program.

"The same chemical will be used, but we're eliminating the oil," Mitchell explained.

THE BASIC product for both is malathion. The mist is 97 per cent water and 3 per cent malathion. The fog is 97 per cent oil and 3 per cent malathion," he added.

Mitchell explained misting can also be done during the days while fogging only was effective after sundown.

Mrs. Clayton Brown, chairman of PEP (Pollution and Environmental Problems) to children playing in residential areas during the daytime.

"Oh, we won't go into residential areas with lots of children. We'll stay on the outskirts until evening," Mitchell explained.

"Furthermore, we won't mist, if it's not needed," he added.

"We'll be continuing our efforts to kill the larvae, so the mosquitoes won't even become adults," Mitchell said.

However, he admitted, oil is used to vacate ponds and standing water.

"Is anything being done toward permanent control?" Mrs. Brown wanted to know.

"WE'RE STILL working on drainage," Mitchell explained. "But we don't like to do drainage without the consent of the property owner."

Standing water is a natural breeding place for mosquitoes and a permanent control method is to drain areas of stagnant pools of water.

It was asked if broken field tiles are repaired and Mitchell explained some work has been done in unincorporated areas and farmland.

Thompson, village president of Buffalo Grove said, "Yes, but while you're making a farmer happy in an unincorporated area, you're making the taxpayers, which we represent, unhappy because they can't see anything being done."

HE TOLD Mitchell that Buffalo Grove is seriously considering withdrawing from the district.

A village trustee from Palatine, Clayton Brown, pointed out that malathion is a first cousin to nerve gas and is extremely poisonous in large quantities.

"If people receive only a small dose, it will give them the symptoms of the flu," he said.

Mitchell agreed, but said, "So is nutmeg or quinine or penicillin in large quantities."

A trustee from Barrington Hills said "That's a poor analogy. Isn't there anything you can use that isn't poisonous to humans, but will kill mosquitoes?" Mitchell shook his head.

"WHY IS THERE a mosquito district? Maybe we should just forget it altogether," a man said.

"When I came here in 1957, I was informed that petitions had been circulated demanding the creation of a mosquito abatement district. The people saw a need for it," Mitchell explained.

"But things have changed since then," someone answered.

Regner Dance Set Saturday

Sen. Ralph T. Smith and U.S. Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-13th, will join several hundred Northwest suburban Republicans tomorrow at a testimonial dance honoring State Rep. David J. Regner, R-Mount Prospect.

Regner is completing his second term in the Illinois House of Representatives and is seeking a third term in November.

The testimonial, designed to help defray campaign costs, is scheduled for 8:30 p.m. at the Flick Reedy Auditorium in Bensenville.

Besides Smith and Crane, many of the state and county Republican candidates are expected to attend.

Dancing, refreshments and door prizes are planned with one of the features being 10-cent beer.

Chairman of the event is Richard Hall of Des Plaines, former president of the Elk Grove Township Republican Organization.

Women Honor Kimsey, Day

Wheeling Police Sgt. Jack Kimsey and Don Day, Title III director of educational and social services, were honored Tuesday by the Wheeling Women's Club.

At its annual banquet the club honored Kimsey for his "outstanding work with the youth of the community" and Day for his "outstanding achievements in the field of education."

New officers for the club installed at the banquet included Mrs. Linda Gaudsmith, second vice president; Mrs. Joyce Patrick, corresponding secretary, and Mrs. Nancy Bodinet, recording secretary.

Guest speaker of the banquet was Attorney Larry Gabriele of the Northwest Bar Association. Gabriele told the Women's Club members that he was concerned with bringing more of the major courts in the court system out into the suburban areas so that all major cases are not tried in Chicago.

He noted that pending legislation before the Illinois state legislature has been introduced to accomplish a more localized court system.

Gabriele's speech was a part of the Women's Clubs efforts to become acquainted with the law in their "Know Your Law" program.

Phone Books Being Delivered

Delivery of new telephone directories is now going on in the Wheeling-Buffalo Grove areas. Delivery is normally completed in about two weeks according to John G. Johnson, Illinois Bell Telephone Co. manager.

The areas receiving the directories include, besides Wheeling and Buffalo Grove, Prairie View, Long Grove, Half Day and Aptakisic.

Johnson noted the new directories contain a list of emergency phone numbers on the inside front covers. Also contained in the directory is the FBI phone number, tornado warning numbers and even a list of Zip Codes.

Persons distributing the books will pick up the old books when they leave the new ones.

Other centers which will be open tomorrow are Barrington Middle School in Barrington; Carl Sandburg School, Rolling Meadows; Jack London Junior High School, Wheeling; Ann Sullivan School, Prospect Heights; River Trails Junior High School, Prospect Heights; Winston Churchill School, Schaumburg; Camp-anelli School, Schaumburg; Gregory School, Mount Prospect; and Elk Grove High School.

A SCHOOL CLOCK is shown to Cliff Emory by wood-working student Ron Salee, who won an award from Northern Illinois University for his skill in cabinetry.

Cliff, along with sixteen other industrial arts students at Hersey High School, also won an award for a three-color separation in the graphics art category.

The first negotiations procedural agreement between the Dist. 26 Board of Education and the River Trails Education Association (RTEA) has been approved by both parties.

Officers of RTEA and members of the board signed the agreement Tuesday after a series of meetings which began in February.

The agreement is a turning point for the district because as assistant superintendent James Retzlaff pointed out, "three years ago the board was opposed to negotiating with the teachers like a union."

Retzlaff described the agreement as "minimal" in the sense that it formalizes the teachers' relationship to the board and administration rather than radically changing it.

"The teachers may gain more powers in the future as the agreement is annually negotiated," added Retzlaff.

THE ONLY NEGOTIABLE items in the agreement now are salary, fringe benefits and the agreement itself.

The substance of the agreement includes definition of terms and the actual procedure of negotiation, grievance and arbitration.

Representatives of RTEA and the board began with two extremes and worked towards a compromise in formulating the agreement. According to Retzlaff, "the teachers received a maximum proposal from the Illinois Education Association and the board received a minimum proposal from the Illinois Association of School Boards. Reaching a compromise was a good learning process for everyone."

Reaction from RTEA president Lou Bissa and RTEA negotiations spokesman George Chase was "The agreement is a good start."

"We are very happy at this time with the agreement," said Bissa. "I think our board broke all records in getting it resolved quickly."

"THE NEXT STEP will be for the state legislature to come through with a professional negotiations policy for all public workers. As soon as they get on the ball, there won't be so many walkouts and blue flu. If everyone can negotiate as we did, the whole state will be better off."

Bissa said the effect of the agreement will be demonstrated shortly as the question of salaries comes up. "Before we made a proposal to the board and they in turn submitted a proposal which was the final word."

"Now we can sit down and discuss salaries and not accept a proposal until both parties believe it is fair."

Not only the board is bound by the agreement, but also the teachers. Bissa said "For example we cannot strike. We both have to follow the agreement to a 'T'. In the past a teacher with a complaint might have gone straight to the board, but now they have to go through the chain of command as outlined in the grievance procedure."

The agreement will be open to negotiation again on Aug. 25, 1971.

Crane: McCormack Chair to Albert

Democratic Rep. Carl Albert of Oklahoma seems the best bet to succeed Speaker of the House John McCormack, U.S. Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-13th, told the Herald yesterday.

McCormack Wednesday announced that he plans to retire from Congress after his current term which ends in January. He has served as Speaker of the House, the position that is second in line in Presidential succession, since 1962.

THE NEXT SPEAKER is likely to be a Democrat since the Democrats control the House and the majority party controls the election for Speaker.

Crane, however, said he thinks Republican chances to gain control of the House of Representatives "are very good."

He said he did not have a favorite candidate among the Republicans in the event that the GOP does gain control, although he did say Rep. Leslie Arends, a Republican from downstate Melvin, Ill., should be considered for one of the GOP leadership positions.

Crane himself has been mentioned as a potential Speaker of the House.

Rep. Edward Derwinski, R-4th, in the Southwest suburbs of Chicago, predicted last December that Crane would be one of the next Republican Speakers of the House, following Republican Rep. Gerald Ford of Michigan, currently House minority leader.

About 200 of Crane's constituents heard the prediction, which was made at a luncheon in Washington, D.C., the day Crane formally opened his Congressional office.

LAST OCTOBER, during Crane's campaign against Democrat Edward Warman, a Herald reporter asked him what his long-range plans were and he said he would like to become Speaker of the House. That announcement was made at a Crane rally in Palatine Township.

Crane, a former history professor at two Midwestern universities, was elected to his first term in the House of Representatives in a special election last November called to fill the vacancy created by the resignation of former Rep. Donald Rumsfeld.

CRANE WILL SEEK a full two-year term this November, running against Warman again.

The Republicans have held the Congressional seat since 1919 when the district included most of the Northeastern corner of Illinois and parts of Chicago.

It currently consists of the townships of Wheeling, Elk Grove, Palatine, Schaumburg, New Trier, Evanston, Niles and Northfield.

Barrington and Hanover townships and Chicago's 50th Ward were part of the district until the mid 1960s.

Little League Season Will Open Saturday

Over 400 children and their families will gather at Lions Park in Prospect Heights, near McDonald and Route 33 to celebrate the opening of the Little League baseball season.

The festivities will begin at 12:30 p.m. with the raising of the American flag and introduction of all the team managers and their players.

At 1:30 p.m. the boys will begin playing with the Twins competing with the Braves. Ten minutes after the end of the first game the Chargers will play the Dodgers.

Boys 8 through 14 may join the Prospect Heights Little League Games are played almost every night at different fields in the area.

Industrial Arts Tuned to a Fine Art

Ten years ago a high school graduate was in most cases not trained for the labor market. He usually had to continue his education in college or trade school, or receive on the job training.

Curriculum in high schools today has become so specialized that a graduate can find a job as a skilled employee. One of the best examples of this modern trend is the Dist. 214 industrial arts program.

At Hersey High School the program is designed so the student can enter industry immediately after graduation or continue in school and be eligible for a higher income market.

THE PROGRAM is divided into six areas: electronics, woods, metals, power mechanics, graphic arts and drafting. Each area is designed so there is one semester of an elementary course and two years of progressively more technical study.

The classrooms themselves are divided to reserve lecture space and lab space. The labs are equipped with sophisticated tools and machinery to give the boys actual shop experience.

Drafting students take one semester of mechanical drawing and then go into two years of either architectural or machine drawing. Towards the end of their high school education many of these students have obtained a high level of skill producing detailed plans that almost look professional.

The more serious drafting students have usually invested in a drawing board and other equipment so they can continue their work at home.

Programs for school plays and office forms at Hersey, are quite often the work of students in the graphic arts class. These students also work with photography and arts such as silk screening.

A VARIETY OF engines and cars equip the power mechanics lab. The students get a background in all phases of mechanical work ranging from small two cycle engines to jets and diesel engines. Students in the electronics curriculum gain experience in electricity, circuitry, television and radio. They can even earn their ham radio operating license in class.

Vertical and horizontal mills and welding tools are part of the equipment available to metal working students. And the wood working lab houses tools with which students can make cabinets and furniture.

The drafting, graphic arts, power mechanics and electronic programs are more geared towards vocations than the wood and metal working courses. In the latter, the student has often enrolled because he likes to work with his hands and wants to gain practical skills for hobbies and general repairs.

A drafting student has the option of joining an industrial drafting department right after graduation or going on to college to earn a degree in architecture prior to joining an architectural firm.

A mechanics student will probably be able to get a job as an auto mechanic, however a more technical position would require more training. Likewise, an electronics student might be hired in a television repair shop, but would probably have to go through a union apprenticeship before he became a full fledged electrician.

STUDENTS in drafting, graphic arts, wood working and metal working recently exhibited their talents by taking 18 awards at a Northern Illinois University competition in industrial education.

ACCORDING TO industrial arts teacher, William Laymon, "a student doesn't have to have a lot of artistic talent before joining our program. The prerequisite is interest. We are able to develop his skills, usually."

Be Alert, Avoid Mower Accidents

by DAVE PALERMO

An 8-year-old girl, playing in the front yard of her Northwest suburban home one summer afternoon, decided it would be fun to ride dad's power lawn mower, which was left idling while dad was in the house.

The girl innocently climbed onto the tractor, not knowing that her little brother was sitting behind it playing in the grass.

The machine suddenly jerked backwards and rolled over the infant, severing his foot.

There are many accidents attributed to power lawn mowers, many of them serious and sometimes fatal.

A power mower can be as dangerous as it is convenient.

All too often somebody rolls the mower over a foot or sticks his hand underneath the machine. The causes are always carelessness on the part of the person using the mower and the result, invariably is a trip to the hospital emergency room.

JACK RYAN, PUBLIC relations director for Northwest Community Hospital in Arlington Heights, remembers one July day two years ago when the emergency room handled seven persons in one day.

The actual amount of injuries attributed to power lawn mowers is difficult to tabulate, for as Ryan says, "The emergency room is more concerned with treating the injury than the cause of the injury."

The records at Northwest Hospital may read, along the column reading cut hand or foot, "lawn mower." But there are many times when it is not scribbled in.

A female doctor who works solely in the emergency room said during a summer weekend, "We can count on four or five."

Most of the time, although the injury is serious, the victim is taken to the hospital in the family car and not an ambulance.

Mount Prospect Fire Chief Edwin Haberkmpt said that only on two occasions last year, was the ambulance called to pick up a person injured by a lawn mower. There have been none so far this spring in Mount Prospect.

Last weekend Northwest Hospital's emergency room handled three cases, all middle-aged men.

"People would tend to think that most of the time children are injured by lawn mowers," said Ryan. "But often it's the adult or older person."

"Lawn mower injuries are not as prevalent as dog bites, but we get our share."

"People are usually careful of something that presents an obvious danger, like a lawn mower. The injury is always because of carelessness on the part of the user and the injury is usually serious enough that the person winds up here."

Besides the possibility of a person cut-

A black case containing 18 stereo tapes was reported missing to Mount Prospect police Tuesday by Barbara Molitor, of 1112 Meadow Ln., Mount Prospect.

Mrs. Molitor told the police her car, which was parked in the lot at Randhurst Shopping Center was locked at the time the incident occurred. Mrs. Molitor estimated the value of the missing property at about $140.

Dist. Teachers Plan Teach-Out

by JUDY COVELLI

Dist. 59 teachers are remaining firm over a proposed "teach-out" to begin next Wednesday, while administrators are withholding comment until later today.

"Information regarding the teach-out will be sent from my office to the homes with the students after school Friday," Al Waltman, acting superintendent said.

Meanwhile, teachers are continuing with plans decided at a Teachers Council meeting held Wednesday.

The teachers decided they would walk out of classes at noon Wednesday and Thursday and not come to classes Friday if teacher salary negotiations were not near completion by this Monday.

THEY COMPLAINED at the meeting that negotiations had lasted more than three months with no headway.

Thomas Lundeen, council president, said Thursday, "This is what they decided. This is what we'll do."

Dave Robert, the teachers negotiating committee chairman, said Thursday, "We received calls from the National Education Association (NEA) and Illinois Education Association (IEA) this morning. They will be backing us."

Robert added, "The entire state is sort of looking towards us now."

He continued, "We have discussed with them how best the situation should be handled, but are waiting to see what the board's next step will be."

The Dist. 59 Teachers Council is a member of the NEA and IEA.

ROBERT EXPLAINED he had called Waltman after the meeting Wednesday to inform him of the situation and that Waltman said a meeting could possibly be scheduled between the board, administrators and teachers' negotiating team.

Robert said, "I'm hoping that we can meet with them because I don't think any of us want to walk out if it can be settled otherwise."

When discussing what they would do, the teachers determined the strategy of leaving the classroom early and then decided to call it a teach-out because they would be leaving the classroom to walk out into the community and "teach" parents about their dilemma.

They said they would have an all-day teach-out Friday because they should have been given that day off as a national holiday anyway.

MORE THAN HALF the 502 district teachers were present when they voted Wednesday to hold the teach-out if no progress was reported.

Several of the points they voiced concern for at the meeting were: —Negotiations are slow, and might be held over the summer, which they do not want.

—A negotiation meeting scheduled for this week was canceled by district negotiators and not rescheduled.

—The district's last offer of $7,300 did not come near what they considered their cost of living in the suburbs and

U.S. 'Apathetic' on Mideast

"The other side of the coin" was heard from last night as a representative of the Arab Information League spoke to the Wheeling Township Republican Club about the current Arab-Israeli conflict.

Sam Parhad, an Iraqi native who lives in Mount Prospect and is a U.S. citizen, gave the audience of 25 his version of the Arab side of the turbulent Mideast situation.

"The American people don't really care or understand what's happening in the Mideast," he said.

PARHAD, a former associate professor of history at Roosevelt University, feels that Israel cannot win in the Mideast conflict.

"It is only a matter of time until the Arab world is ready to defeat the Israelis," he said.

"Without a global war first, it will take 20 to 30 years. Remember, there are 100 million Arabs."

But Parhad isn't happy about his look into the future.

"I don't want it to happen. If the Jews had asked for the land, the Arabs would have given it to them. But they said, 'Get out, we're going to take your land.'"

"The Israeli Jews don't behave like other Jews — they're arrogant in Israel."

"I was in Haifa in 1947, and there was no animosity between the Arabs and the Jews."

DISCUSSING the United States role in the Mideast, he said, "It is not in our national interest to be pro-Israel."

"Do you know how many Arabs America has lost (in world opinion) in the last 22 years?" he asked.

Parhad added that he was "very disappointed" in U.S. Rep. Philip Crane's recent pro-Israeli statements.

COMMENTING on the history of what has now become a bloody battleground, Parhad said, "Israel took three times more land when it became a nation in 1948 than was given to it a year before by the United Nations."

"Israel did not fulfill its Biblical prophecy of returning to its own land after wandering for years, because the Israelis returned in full force."

The Wheeling Township Republicans have slated a pro-Israeli speaker for their next meeting in June.

Kid Grapplers Show Talents

The approximately 100 youngsters who wrestled last night at Prospect High School had only one thing on their minds. Winning.

Clad in shorts and T-shirts, they panted and sweated on four mats in the gymnasium trying to best an opponent in the same weight category. The prize was the first-place trophy in the Mount Prospect Park District wrestling tournament.

High school wrestlers at each of the four mats did the refereeing, stopping occasionally to help a youngster with his too-large headgear or those gym trunks that never seem to stay up.

For eight weeks prior to last night, the kids learned and practiced the fundamentals of the sport under the watchful eye of high school coaches. They learned takedowns, reverses, sit-outs and escapes.

The practices were over and they were ready for the big show. Ready to show their mothers and fathers what they had learned.

Four grades participated in the tournament, the fifth through the eighth. The weight categories ranged from 60 to 195 pounds.

The winners strutted off the mat with their chins up trying to suppress smiles that eventually broke through the masquerades. The losers would gaze downward and walk off the mat stooped at the shoulders. Some even cried.

The fifth-graders who won trophies were Dan Egeseahl (60-70 pounds); Bob Weber (80 pounds); and Scott Harris (90 pounds).

Sixth grade winners were John Tuohy (70 pounds); Bob Steen (90 pounds); Tom Janus (100 pounds); Craig Vinson (110 pounds); and Ron Bentall (130 pounds).

Seventh-grade winners were John Gross (70 pounds); Tom Digangi (110 pounds); and Tom Petrik (140 pounds).

Eighth grade winners were Ralph Voyta (100 to 110 pounds); Steven Hixson (120-130 pounds); and Bob Ochab (160 pounds).

Lawn Mowers Can Be Deadly

ting a hand or a foot, cases where debris is hurled outward like a bullet by the rotary blades is also common.

THE U.S. DEPARTMENT of Health, Education and Welfare reported about 140,000 persons were injured in the summer of 1968 and because of the increase of mowers as a labor-saving device, the amount is rising annually.

The Consumers Union claims mowers have too much blade exposure and the National Commission on Public Safety indicates that the sale of lawn mowers should be federally regulated.

The Outdoor Power Equipment Institute (OPEI) has standards that blade exposure be only at the front and the discharge chute shielded. Only about 25 per cent of the mowers on the market meet these standards, according to the OPEI.

Most of the blame for power mower injuries is attributed to the rotary-type mower, which accounts for approximately 90 per cent of the industry's sales.

The rotary mower blade whizzes inches above the grass at about 200 mph and can hurl objects outward at high speeds.

A reel-type mower isn't as popular as the rotary mower but experts claim it is safer because it makes fewer passes in a short period of time and a hand indiscreetly placed on the blade can be removed with less damage.

But a reel mower is unfortunately more expensive than a rotary and ineffective in cutting high grass.

Another possible solution to the hazards of lawn-mowing is a rubber blade now on the market called the Delco Flexible Mower Blade.

The blade, which costs about $9, has reportedly been tested at 3,600 rotations per minute and developers claim it will not cut a sturdy object. The blade may break a toe or finger, but it isn't supposed to cut it off.

SOME POWER mower dealers have accepted the new rubber blade, which can be attached to fit any mower, and offer it to their customers. One place where it can be purchased is Kerstings Mower Shop, 621 N. Main in Mount Prospect.

On the other hand, there was a different opinion of the new blade.

"We don't stock it because we don't think it's worth two cents," said a young man behind the counter at Charles Gray Sales and Service, 110 E. Rand Rd., Mount Prospect.

"For one thing, anything that rotates that fast has got to cut," he went on. "It costs twice as much as a normal blade and it can't be resharpened like other blades."

About the best advice is to be careful and keep the kids away from the power mower.

And then there's always the old but safe push mower.

Principals' Salaries Up 10 Per Cent

Principals' salaries approved recently by the Dist. 59 board of education included an average increase of 10 per cent, according to Richard Vlasak, assistant superintendent in charge of personnel.

Vlasak said the $346,160 budgeted figure approved by the board for administrative purposes included principal salaries for next year and the summer portion past July of this year's contracts.

He presented the top salary of $18,600 with summer school and the low salary of $15,100 without summer school. The high and low salaries this year were $17,300 and $14,500.

HE EXPLAINED that fringe benefits were also the same as last year, including a $339 expense account for each principal.

The expense account is to include in-and-out-of-district mileage, educational books, memberships, seminars and incidental educational expenses.

Vlasak also explained that the $346,160 figure included $8,160 for carry over from summer contracts.

The total figure compared to last year's budget increased $6,000.

This year's figure, however, did not include sabbatical leave pay for any principals. Last year's $340,000 total was included.

This year it includes the salaries of 18 principals plus supervisory pay for Ronald Glovetski who has been named supervisory principal for Dan Cook School. It also includes the administrative portion of Mrs. Pat Marshall's salary. Mrs. Marshall will be administrative assistant at Dan Cook, while teaching part-time.

Mormons Set Open House

"An Evening with the Mormons," an open house to be held in conjunction with dedication services, is scheduled for Saturday at the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.

The program will focus on the family unit and how the Mormons hold onto their young people. The open house will be held at the church's new chapel, 2035 N. Windsor Drive, Arlington Heights, which will be dedicated Sunday.

Drum, Bugle Corps To Appear in Parade

The Vanguard Drum and Bugle Corps, which consists of residents from throughout the Northwest suburbs, will appear Sunday in the annual Waycinden Area Boys' Baseball League parade.

On Memorial Day, the group will parade both in Des Plaines and Kenosha, Wis. Before entering in the first field competition of the year that evening.

Because of the recent civil disturbances in the area, the corps was unable to conduct its "drill camp" at Joliet the weekend of May 8.

Instead, the group held their annual session at Vanguard headquarters in Des Plaines.

Kagay: 'Multi-Family? No!'

HOWARD KAGAY

by SANDRA BROWNING

"We feel that low-income housing can be put in the right location and accomplish its goals rather than result in a wholesale devaluation of adjoining property," said Howard Kagay, president of the Arlington Estates Homeowners Association.

The homeowner's group is opposing the use of St. Viatorian land for low-income housing. The zoning on the land would have to be changed from single-family to multiple family, and that's what the homeowners object to.

Kagay said that changed zoning would set a precedent in the village. No large tracts of land already in the village have been changed from single to multi-family zoning, he said.

"People rely on this when they buy," he said. "I don't think the village fathers are going to change their minds."

RESIDENTS OF the Viator school area would object to any type of proposed multiple family dwellings, whether it would be townhouses, luxury apartments or low-cost housing, Kagay said.

Personally, Kagay would rather see government subsidies used to allow people to purchase homes scattered throughout the village and other areas. His philosophy is that permanent subsidies destroy incentive.

Kagay suggested it would be a better idea to help people get on their feet by offering subsidies for a period of time, perhaps five years. Then the subsidy would be cut off and "they could pay what everyone else does."

THE HOMEOWNERS' group is presently waiting to see the results of the St. Viator committee, formed recently to study the proposal.

"The committee is making a study of the facts which we feel will benefit us," Kagay said.

At this point, the group has done nothing more than send letters to St. Viator officials and make a few phone calls. If the committee's report is favorable to the low-cost housing proposal, then the homeowners plan to protest with phone calls, petitions and letters.

Kagay said he agreed with the general outline of how the St. Viator committee will study the proposal and said "I think they're going to find after gathering the facts that based on past precedent alone, this is the wrong place for it."

THE BASIS OF the protest is the concept of multiple family zoning. Kagay places great faith in the village past zoning policies and said "One of the greatest things in Arlington Heights is that there is no wrong side of the tracks. In any area, you can find $20,000 homes right next to $80,000 homes."

Kagay has gotten calls from people who would like to join the protest, including individuals and representatives of homeowners' groups. Arlington Estates Homeowners' Association is welcoming the support but mainly consists of homeowners in the area bounded by Euclid Street, Oakton street, Drury Lane and Gibbons Avenue.

There are no racial overtones to the issue, Kagay feels.

"Anyone in the same location and of same background would make the same decision to protest," Kagay said.

Mosquitoes Get Misty Future

by MARTHA KOPER

Under fire from almost every suburb in the area, Wilbur Mitchell, director of the Northwest Mosquito Abatement District (NMAD) held fast to the district's current methods of controlling the stinging insects.

He was asked to speak to members of the Northwest Municipal Conference Wednesday night because of several questions about the district's operations from local municipalities.

Don Thompson, president of the conference, asked the difference between fogging and misting mosquitoes.

In March, NMAD announced it would discontinue fogging and use only misting to kill the mosquito in accordance with an anti-pollution program.

"The same chemical will be used, but we're eliminating the oil," Mitchell explained.

THE BASIC product for both is malathion. The mist is 97 per cent water and 3 per cent malathion. The fog is 97 per cent oil and 3 per cent malathion," he added.

Mitchell explained misting can also be done during the days while fogging only was effective after sundown.

Mrs. Clayton Brown, chairman of PEP (Pollution and Environmental Problems) asked if misting would be dangerous to children playing in residential areas during the daytime.

"Oh, we won't go into residential areas with lots of children. We'll stay on the outskirts until evening," Mitchell explained.

"Furthermore, we won't mist, if it's not needed," he added.

"We'll be continuing our efforts to kill the larva, so the mosquitoes won't even become adults," Mitchell said.

However, he admitted, oil is used to vacate ponds and standing water.

"Is anything being done toward permanent control?" Mrs. Brown wanted to know.

"WE'RE STILL working on drainage," Mitchell explained. "But we don't like to do drainage without the consent of the property owner."

Standing-water is a natural breeding place for mosquitoes and a permanent control method is to drain areas of stagnant pools of water.

It was asked if broken field tiles are repaired and Mitchell explained some work has been done in unincorporated areas and farmland.

Thompson, village president of Buffalo Grove said, "Yes, but while you're making a farmer happy in an unincorporated area, you're making the taxpayers, which we represent, unhappy because they can't see anything being done."

HE TOLD Mitchell that Buffalo Grove is seriously considering withdrawing from the district.

A village trustee from Palatine, Clayton Brown, pointed out that malathion is a first cousin to nerve gas and is extremely poisonous in large quantities.

"If people receive only a small dose, it will give them the symptoms of the flu," he said.

Mitchell agreed, but said, "So is nutmeg or quinine or penicillin in large quantities."

A trustee from Barrington Hills said "That's a poor analogy. Isn't there anything you can use that isn't poisonous to humans, but will kill mosquitoes?" Mitchell shook his head.

"WHY IS THERE a mosquito district? Maybe we should just forget it altogether," a man said.

"When I came here in 1957, I was informed that petitions had been circulated demanding the creation of a mosquito abatement district. The people saw a need for it," Mitchell explained.

"But things have changed since then," someone answered.

NOTICE TO ALL VETERANS

WHO HAVE HONORABLY SERVED THEIR COUNTRY IN TIME OF WAR OR PEACE

In view of the fact that no National Cemetery exists in the Chicago area to provide burial space for veterans, Memory Gardens Cemetery of Arlington Heights, Illinois has established a Veterans Program to be conducted by its Veterans Department and has made available a limited number of grave spaces to qualified veterans at no charge (except - a $15.00 fee for endowment care as required by Illinois State law).

Only honorably discharged Veterans of the United States Armed Forces who do not own or have been assigned burial property may apply. (Special Protective Features are available for spouse as well as for all minor children.) Applications are processed in the order received. Verification of information is necessary to issue Certificate for grave space eligibility.

Since the number of grave spaces assigned to the Veterans department is limited, applications will be accepted only during the period required to complete the allocation.

We will also furnish you with valuable information on related cash benefits due you from the United States Government.

'Oiga Amigo' Airing Set

A half-hour show on WLS television tomorrow at 12:30 p.m. will review last winter's housing controversy involving several Mexican-American families in the Elk Grove Village area.

The program, Oiga Amigo (Listen Friend) is a weekly telecast concentrating on the Spanish-speaking people in the Chicago metropolitan area.

The show will include interviews with Rev. David Crail of the Elk Grove Wesleyan Church; Jack Pahl, Elk Grove Village mayor; Louis Archbold, of Neighbors at Work (NAW); Clyde Brooks, manpower director of the Cook County Office of Economic Opportunity; Santana Gonzalez, who has been living in a church for several months because he is unable to find a place to park a mobile home; Rev. David Sanchez, of St. Dominic's Catholic Church, Chicago; and Allen Hulett, Elk Grove Village fire chief.

"Every suburb has the second best school system in the state," said Mrs. Mary Leidinger, of 598 Wellington Ave. "I don't know who is first, but there sure are a lot of seconds."

Developing a healthy personality and keen intelligence is kid stuff.

Here are science's remarkable new discoveries about child development — in a book for every concerned parent.

By the age of four, your child has developed half of his general intelligence. By six, 33% of his academic skills will be acquired. All the remarkable new research of the "growth sciences" points to one important fact: children learn, intellectually and emotionally, far earlier than was ever suspected. And what they learn is nearly impossible to change in later years. Now Muriel Beadle has translated this important new research into a book of pertinent advice for parents.

is a unique tour of that most fascinating and unpredictable of regions — your child's mind.

Road Contractor Arrested

by GERRY DeZONNA

A superintendent for Greco Contractors Inc. of Rosemont, the construction company working on the Golf Road improvements in Mount Prospect, was arrested yesterday by Police Chief Newell Esmond for allegedly tampering with the village water system.

Frank Tanzillo was arrested after one of his men apparently ripped out 40 feet of water and sewer lines located on Golf Road between Can-Dota and Wa-Pella Streets.

Public Works Director David Creamer said the man, who was operating the equipment, apparently fled from the construction site after he allegedly ripped out the water and sewer lines. The equipment operator did not return to the scene of the accident and Tanzillo, the superintendent on the project, was charged for the incident.

TANZILLO WAS released on $500 bond and is scheduled to appear in Mount Prospect court June 24.

Creamer said the water and sewer mains were ripped open about 6:30 a.m. Thursday, when the equipment operator was apparently digging a hole to bury large chunks of concrete from the construction site.

"The foreman, a new man hired by Greco, wasn't familiar with the project and he authorized the equipment operator to begin digging in this area between Can-Dota and Wa-Pella. The machine operator, who's also a new man on the job, got so scared when he ripped out the mains that he jumped in his car and left. No one seems to know where he is now. He just left he was so scared," Creamer explained.

The broken water and sewer mains yesterday were not the first problems Creamer has had over the Golf Road improvements. An additional broken water line site last week laid the groundwork for a meeting Tuesday between the village, the Metropolitan Sanitary District main and clogged sewers at the construction (MSD), the Illinois Division of Highways and Rock Road Construction Co. of Elmhurst, the main contractor on the project.

GRECO IS the subcontractor on the road improvements.

"I called the meeting Tuesday because we've had some serious problems in con-

WATER GUSHES from a broken water main on Golf Road near Wa-Pella and Can-Dota Streets in Mount Prospect, after the water pipe was ripped open during construction on the Golf Road improvements. A superintendent for Greco Contractors Inc. was arrested and charged by police for tampering with the village water system.

nection with the construction, and I think these problems are caused by a general lack of concern by the subcontractor on the project.

"John Leverenz, vice president of Rock Road, assured me he would solve the problems at the construction site as soon as possible. We agreed Tuesday to assign one of my men to the operation in order to see that the village's interests are protected while the improvements are made on the road," he explained.

A broken water main, clogged sewers,

"Although Rock Road is responsible for whatever happens on the project, I don't think they are at fault for these problems. Greco is to blame for all the damages out there, and I think the whole issue boils down to a general lack of concern on the subcontractor's part," Creamer said.

ACCORDING TO a decision reached Tuesday, there was to be no excavation Wednesday in the area where the water and sewer mains were broken. Creamer said Greco began digging at the site about 6 a.m., an hour before the public works representative was scheduled to arrive on the job.

Creamer said his crews were scheduled to begin cleaning and rodding the sewers in the area of Wa-Pella and Can-Dota streets at 7 a.m., while Greco's men would be working on another section of the road.

The public works department repaired the broken water main by 2 p.m. yesterday, and Creamer estimated the cost of pipe damage and water losses at about $1,500. The sewer main has not yet been repaired and there is no estimate on the extent of damages.

Father, Son Fish Day Set

The Mount Prospect Park District will sponsor a father-son fishing day Sunday, June 7, at Pepper Lake near Palatine.

Cost for the day is $5 for a father and son and $2 for each additional son. The money covers admittance to the lake and bus transportation to and from the lake.

Buses will leave both Lions Park and High Ridge Knolls at 7 a.m. and will leave the lake at 2:30 p.m.

THE LAKE IS stocked with trout, catfish, crappies and bass and fathers and sons are to bring their own poles.

Adults are limited to four trout and minors may catch as many as two. As many as five bass may be hauled in and the limit on pan fish and catfish is 10 and 6 respectively.

Flyers will be sent home through the schools in the park district and parents may register for the fishing day by calling the park district office at CL 5-5390.

LAST CHANCE — Preschool children and those who were unable to be vaccinated against the Rubella virus earlier, may be vaccinated tomorrow at immunization centers throughout Cook County. In Mount Prospect Dist. 57, the immunization site for preschoolers will be at Gregory School, 400 E. Gregory, from 12 to 3 p.m. in

Dist. 59 the site will be at Elk Grove High School, Arlington Heights Road and Elk Grove Blvd., Elk Grove Village, from 12 to 3 p.m. And in Dist. 26 it will be at River Trails Junior High School, 1000 Wolf Rd., Prospect Heights, from 12 to 3 p.m.

Be Alert, Avoid Mower Accidents

by DAVE PALERMO

An 8-year-old girl, playing in the front yard of her Northwest suburban home one summer afternoon, decided it would be fun to ride dad's power lawn mower, which was left idling while dad was in the house.

The girl innocently climbed onto the tractor, not knowing that her little brother was sitting behind it playing in the grass.

The machine suddenly jerked backwards and rolled over the infant, severing his foot.

There are many accidents attributed to power lawn mowers, many of them serious and sometimes fatal.

A power mower can be as dangerous as it is convenient.

All too often somebody rolls the mower over a foot or sticks his hand underneath the machine. The causes are always carelessness on the part of the person using the mower and the result, invariably is a trip to the hospital emergency room.

JACK RYAN, public relations director for Northwest Community Hospital in Arlington Heights, remembers one July day two years ago when the emergency room handled seven persons in one day.

The actual amount of injuries attributed to power lawn mowers is difficult to tabulate, for as Ryan says, "The emergency room is more concerned with treating the injury than the cause of the injury."

The records at Northwest Hospital may read, along the column reading cut hand or foot, "lawn mower." But there are many times when it is not scribbled in.

A female doctor who works solely in the emergency room said during a summer weekend, "We can count on four or five."

Most of the time, although the injury is serious, the victim is taken to the hospital in the family car and not an ambulance.

Mount Prospect Fire Chief Edwin Haberkamp said that only on two occasions last year, was the ambulance called to pick up a person injured by a lawn mower. There have been none so far this spring in Mount Prospect.

Last weekend Northwest Hospital's emergency room handled three cases, all middle-aged men.

"People would tend to think that most of the time children are injured by lawn mowers," said Ryan. "But often it's the adult or older person."

"Lawn mower injuries are not as prevalent as dog bites, but we get our share."

"People are usually careful of something that presents an obvious danger, like a lawn mower. The injury is always because of carelessness on the part of the user and the injury is usually serious enough that the person winds up here."

Besides the possibility of a person cut-

Crane: McCormack Chair to Albert

Democratic Rep. Carl Albert of Oklahoma seems the best bet to succeed Speaker of the House John McCormack, U.S. Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-13th, told the Herald yesterday.

McCormack Wednesday announced that he plans to retire from Congress after his current term which ends in January. He has served as Speaker of the House, the position that is second in line in Presidential succession, since 1962.

THE NEXT SPEAKER is likely to be a Democrat since the Democrats control the House and the majority party controls the election for Speaker. Crane, however, said he thinks Republican chances to gain control of the House of Representatives "are very good."

He said he did not have a favorite candidate among the Republicans in the event that the GOP does gain control, although he did say Rep. Leslie Arends, a Republican from downstate Melvin, Ill., should be considered for one of the GOP leadership positions.

Crane himself has been mentioned as a potential Speaker of the House.

Rep. Edward Derwinski, R-4th, in the Southwest suburbs of Chicago, predicted last December that Crane would be one of the next Republican Speakers of the House, following Republican Rep. Gerald

Ford of Michigan, currently House minority leader.

About 200 of Crane's constituents heard the prediction, which was made at a luncheon in Washington, D.C., the day Crane formally opened his Congressional office.

LAST OCTOBER, during Crane's campaign against Democrat Edward Warran, a Herald reporter asked him what his long-range plans were and he said he would like to become Speaker of the House. That announcement was made at a Crane rally in Palatine Township.

Crane, a former history professor at two Midwestern universities, was elected to his first term in the House of Representatives in a special election last November called to fill the vacancy created by the resignation of former Rep. Donald Rumsfeld.

CRANE WILL SEEK a full two-year term this November, running against Warren again.

The Republicans have held the Congressional seat since 1919 when the district included most of the Northeastern corner of Illinois and parts of Chicago.

It currently consists of the townships of Wheeling, Elk Grove, Palatine, Schaumburg, New Trier, Evanston, Niles and Northfield.

Barrington and Hanover townships and Chicago's 50th Ward were part of the district until the mid-1960s.

German Measles Shots Tomorrow

Immunization centers for the mass inoculation of preschool children at least 1-year-old and school children through third grade who did not receive the rubella vaccination for German measles in school this week will be open tomorrow from noon to 3 p.m.

Parents must fill out a consent form available at the 10 centers throughout the Northwest suburbs and must accompany their children to the center.

One center, Miner Junior High School in Arlington Heights, will be open from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. for parents who cannot take their children in the afternoon.

Other centers which will be open tomorrow are Barrington Middle School in Barrington; Carl Sandburg School, Rolling Meadows; Jack London Junior High School, Wheeling; Ann Sullivan School, Prospect Heights; River Trails Junior High School, Prospect Heights; Winston Churchill School, Schaumburg; Camp-anelli School, Schaumburg; Gregory School, Mount Prospect; and Elk Grove High School.

LAST CHANCE — Preschool children and those who were unable to be vaccinated against the Rubella virus earlier, may be vaccinated tomorrow at immunization centers throughout Cook County. In Mount Prospect Dist. 57, the immunization site for preschoolers will be at Gregory School, 400 E. Gregory, from 12 to 3 p.m. in

Dist. 59 the site will be at Elk Grove High School, Arlington Heights Road and Elk Grove Blvd., Elk Grove Village, from 12 to 3 p.m. And in Dist. 26 it will be at River Trails Junior High School, 1000 Wolf Rd., Prospect Heights, from 12 to 3 p.m.

Dist. Teachers Plan Teach-Out

by JUDY COVELLI

Dist. 59 teachers are remaining firm over a proposed "teach-out" to begin next Wednesday, while administrators are withholding comment until later today.

"Information regarding the teach-out will be sent from my office to the homes with the students after school Friday," Al Waltman, acting superintendent said.

Meanwhile, teachers are continuing with plans decided at a Teachers Council meeting held Wednesday.

The teachers decided they would walk out of classes at noon Wednesday and Thursday and not come to classes Friday if teacher salary negotiations were not near completion by this Monday.

THEY COMPLAINED at the meeting that negotiations had lasted more than three months with no headway.

Thomas Lundeen, council president, said Thursday, "This is what they decided. This is what we'll do."

Dave Robert, the teachers negotiating committee chairman, said Thursday, "We received calls from the National Education Association (NEA) and Illinois Education Association (IEA) this morning. They will be backing us."

Robert added, "The entire state is sort of looking towards us now."

He continued, "We have discussed with them how best the situation should be handled, but are waiting to see what the board's next step will be."

The Dist. 59 Teachers Council is a member of the NEA and IEA.

ROBERT EXPLAINED he had called Waltman after the meeting Wednesday to inform him of the situation and that Waltman said a meeting could possibly be scheduled between the board, administrators and teachers' negotiating team.

Robert said, "I'm hoping that we can meet with them because I don't think any of us want to walk out if it can be settled otherwise."

When discussing what they would do, the teachers determined the strategy of leaving the classroom early and then decided to call it a teach-out because they would be leaving the classroom to walk out into the community and "teach" parents about their dilemma.

They said they would have an all-day teach-out Friday because they should have been given that day off as a national holiday anyway.

MORE THAN HALF the 502 district teachers were present when they voted Wednesday to hold the teach-out if no progress was reported.

Several of the points they voiced concern for at the meeting were:

—Negotiations are slow, and might be held over the summer, which they do not want.

—A negotiation meeting scheduled for this week was canceled by district negotiators and not rescheduled.

—The district's last offer of $7,300 did not come near what they considered their cost of living in the suburbs and

U.S. 'Apathetic' on Mideast

"The other side of the coin" was heard from last night as a representative of the Arab Information League spoke to the Wheeling Township Republican Club about the current Arab-Israeli conflict.

Sam Parhad, an Iraqi native who lives in Mount Prospect and is a U.S. citizen, gave the audience of 25 his version of the Arab side of the turbulent Mideast situation.

"The American people don't really care or understand what's happening in the Mideast," he said.

PARHAD, a former associate professor of history at Roosevelt University, feels that Israel cannot win in the Mideast conflict.

"It is only a matter of time until the Arab world is ready to defeat the Israelis," he said.

"Without a global war first, it will take 20 to 30 years. Remember, there are 100 million Arabs."

But Parhad isn't happy about his look into the future.

"I don't want it to happen. If the Jews had asked for the land, the Arabs would have given it to them. But they said, 'Get out, we're going to take your land.'"

"The Israeli Jews don't behave like other Jews — they're arrogant in Israel."

"I was in Haifa in 1947, and there was no animosity between the Arabs and the Jews."

DISCUSSING the United States role in the Mideast, he said, "It is not in our national interest to be pro-Israel."

"Do you know how many Arabs America has lost (in world opinion) in the last 22 years?" he asked.

Parhad added that he was "very disappointed" in U.S. Rep. Philip Crane's recent pro-Israeli statements.

COMMENTING on the history of what has now become a bloody battleground, Parhad said, "Israel took three times more land when it became a nation in 1948 than was given to it a year before by the United Nations."

"Israel did not fulfill its Biblical prophecy of returning to its own land after wandering for years, because the Israelis returned in full force."

The Wheeling Township Republicans have slated a pro-Israeli speaker for their next meeting in June.

Kid Grapplers Show Talents

The approximately 100 youngsters who wrestled last night at Prospect High School had only one thing on their minds. Winning.

Clad in shorts and T-shirts, they panted and sweated on four mats in the gymnasium trying to best an opponent in the same weight category. The prize was the first-place trophy in the Mount Prospect Park District wrestling tournament.

High school wrestlers at each of the four mats did the refereeing, stopping occasionally to help a youngster with his too-large headgear or those gym trunks that never seem to stay up.

For eight weeks prior to last night, the kids learned and practiced the fundamentals of the sport under the watchful eye of high school coaches. They learned takedowns, reverses, sit-outs and escapes.

The practices were over and they were ready for the big show. Ready to show their mothers and fathers what they had learned.

Four grades participated in the tournament, the fifth through the eighth. The weight categories ranged from 60 to 135 pounds.

The winners strutted off the mat with their chins up trying to suppress smiles that eventually broke through the masquerades. The losers would gaze downward and walk off the mat stooped at the shoulders. Some even cried.

The fifth-graders who won trophies were Dan Egesehl (60-70 pounds); Bob Weber (80 pounds); and Scott Harris (90 pounds).

Sixth grade winners were John Tuohy (70 pounds); Bob Steen (90 pounds); Tom Janus (100 pounds); Craig Vinson (110 pounds); and Ron Bentall (130 pounds).

Seventh-grade winners were John Gross (70 pounds); Tom Digangi (110 pounds); and Tom Petrik (140 pounds).

Eighth grade winners were Ralph Voyta (100 to 110 pounds); Steven Hixson (120-130 pounds); and Bob Ochab (160 pounds).

Lawn Mowers Can Be Deadly

ting a hand or a foot, cases where debris is hurled outward like a bullet by the rotary blades is also common.

THE U.S. DEPARTMENT of Health, Education and Welfare reported about 140,000 persons were injured in the summer of 1968 and because of the increase of mowers as a labor-saving device, the amount is rising annually.

The Consumers Union claims mowers have too much blade exposure and the National Commission on Public Safety indicates that the sale of lawn mowers should be federally regulated.

The Outdoor Power Equipment Institute (OPEI) has standards that blade exposure be only at the front and the discharge chute shielded. Only about 25 per cent of the mowers on the market meet these standards, according to the OPEI.

Most of the blame for power mower injuries is attributed to the rotary-type mower, which accounts for approximately 90 per cent of the industry's sales.

The rotary mower blade whizzes inches above the grass at about 200 mph and can hurl objects outwards at high speeds.

A reel-type mower isn't as popular as the rotary mower but experts claim it is safer because it makes fewer passes in a short period of time and a hand indiscreetly placed on the blade can be removed with less damage.

But a reel mower is unfortunately more expensive than a rotary and ineffective in cutting high grass.

Another possible solution to the hazards of lawn-mowing is a rubber blade now on the market called the DeKo Flexible Mower Blade.

The blade, which costs about $9, has reportedly been tested at 3,600 rotations per minute and developers claim it will not cut a sturdy object. The blade may break a toe or finger, but it isn't supposed to cut it off.

SOME POWER mower dealers have accepted the new rubber blade, which can be attached to fit any mower, and offer it to their customers. One place where it can be purchased is Kerstings Mower Shop, 621 N. Main in Mount Prospect.

On the other hand, there was a different opinion of the new blade.

"We don't stock it because we don't think it's worth two cents," said a young man behind the counter at Charles Gray Sales and Service, 110 E. Rand Rd., Mount Prospect.

"For one thing, anything that rotates that fast has got to cut," he went on. "It costs twice as much as a normal blade and it can't be resharpened like other blades."

About the best advice is to be careful and keep the kids away from the power mower.

And then there's always the old but safe push mower.

Principals' Salaries Up 10 Per Cent

Principals' salaries approved recently by the Dist. 59 board of education included an average increase of 10 per cent, according to Richard Vlasak, assistant superintendent in charge of personnel.

Vlasak said the $346,160 budgeted figure approved by the board for administrative purposes included principal salaries for next year and the summer portion past July of this year's contracts.

He presented the top salary of $18,600 with summer school and the low salary of $15,100 without summer school. The high and low salaries this year were $17,300 and $14,500.

HE EXPLAINED that fringe benefits were also the same as last year, including a $350 expense account for each principal.

The expense account is to include in-and-out-of-district mileage, educational books, memberships, seminars and incidental educational expenses.

Vlasak also explained that the $346,160 figure included $8,160 for carry over for summer contracts.

The total figure compared to last year's budget increased $6,000.

This year's figure, however, did not include sabbatical leave pay for any principals. Last year's $340,000 total was included.

This year it includes the salaries of 18 principals plus supervisory pay for Ronald Glavetski who has been named supervisory principal for Dan Cook School. It also includes the administrative portion of Mrs. Pat Marshall's salary. Mrs. Marshall will be administrative assistant at Dan Cook, while teaching part-time.

Mormons Set Open House

"An Evening with the Mormons," an open house to be held in conjunction with dedication services, is scheduled for Saturday at the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.

The program will focus on the family unit and how the Mormons hold onto their young people. The open house will be held at the church's new chapel, 2033 N. Windsor Drive, Arlington Heights, which will be dedicated Sunday.

Drum, Bugle Corps To Appear in Parade

The Vanguard Drum and Bugle Corps, which consists of residents from throughout the Northwest suburbs, will appear Sunday in the annual Waycinden Area Boys' Baseball League parade.

On Memorial Day, the group will parade both in Des Plaines and Kenosha, Wis. Before entering in the first field competition of the year that evening.

Because of the recent civil disturbances in the area, the corps was unable to conduct its "drill camp" at Joliet the weekend of May 8.

Instead, the group held their annual session at Vanguard headquarters in Des Plaines.

"Man's Search for Happiness," a film made famous at the New York World's Fair, will be shown during the open house Saturday at 7, 7:30, 8 and 8:30 p.m. The film portrays the story of "Where Did We Come From, Why We Are Here and Where We Are Going?"

Any interested persons have been invited to attend the open house and the dedication services on Sunday. The services will begin at 5 p.m. in the recently completed $500,000 chapel.

The building will house two separate congregations of more than 700 members living in the Northwest suburbs.

Road Contractor Arrested

LAST CHANCE — Preschool children and those who were unable to be vaccinated against the Rubella virus earlier, may be vaccinated tomorrow at immunization centers throughout Cook County. In Mount Prospect Dist. 57, the immunization site for preschoolers will be at Gregory School, 400 E. Gregory, from 12 to 3 p.m. In

A superintendent for Greco Contractors Inc. of Rosemont, the construction company working on the Golf Road improvements in Mount Prospect, was arrested yesterday by Police Chief Newell Esmond for allegedly tampering with the village water system.

Frank Tanzillo was arrested after one of his men apparently ripped out 40 feet of water and sewer lines located on Golf Road between Can-Dota and Wa-Pella Streets.

Public Works Director David Creamer said the man, who was operating the equipment, apparently fled from the construction site after he allegedly ripped out the water and sewer lines. The equipment operator did not return to the scene of the accident and Tanzillo, the superintendent on the project, was charged for the incident.

TANZILLO WAS released on $500 bond and is scheduled to appear in Mount Prospect court June 24.

Creamer said the water and sewer mains were ripped open about 6:30 a.m. Thursday, when the equipment operator was apparently digging a hole to bury large chunks of concrete from the construction site.

"The foreman, a new man hired by Greco, wasn't familiar with the project and he authorized the equipment operator to begin digging in this area between Can-Dota and Wa-Pella. The machine operator, who's also a new man on the job, got so scared when he ripped out the mains that he jumped in his car and left. No one seems to know where he is now. He just left he was so scared," Creamer explained.

The broken water and sewer mains yesterday were not the first problems Creamer has had over the Golf Road improvements. An additional broken water main site last week laid the groundwork for a meeting Tuesday between the village, the Metropolitan Sanitary District main and clogged sewers at the construction site, the Illinois Division of Highways and Rock Road Construction Co. of Elmhurst, the main contractor on the project.

GRECO IS the subcontractor on the road improvements.

"I called the meeting Tuesday because we've had some serious problems in connection with the construction, and I think these problems are caused by a general lack of concern by the subcontractor on the project.

"John Leverenz, vice president of Rock Road, assured me he would solve the problems at the construction site as soon as possible. We agreed Tuesday to assign one of my men to the operation in order to see that the village's interests are protected while the improvements are made on the road," he explained.

A broken water main, clogged sewers,

"Although Rock Road is responsible for whatever happens on the project, I don't think they are at fault for these problems. Greco is to blame for all the damages out there, and I think the whole issue boils down to a general lack of concern on the subcontractor's part," Creamer said.

ACCORDING TO a decision reached Tuesday, there was to be no excavation Wednesday in the area where the water and sewer mains were broken. Creamer said Greco began digging at the site about 6 a.m., an hour before the public works representative was scheduled to arrive on the job.

Creamer said his crews were scheduled to begin cleaning and rodding the sewers in the area of Wa-Pella and Can-Dota streets at 7 a.m., while Greco's men would be working on another section of the road.

The public works department repaired the broken water main by 2 p.m. yesterday, and Creamer estimated the cost of pipe damage and water losses at about $1,500. The sewer main has not yet been repaired and there is no estimate on the extent of damages.

Father, Son Fish Day Set

The Mount Prospect Park District will sponsor a father-son fishing day Sunday, June 7, at Pepper Lake near Palatine.

Cost for the day is $5 for a father and son and $2 for each additional son. The money covers admittance to the lake and bus transportation to and from the lake.

Buses will leave both Lions Park and High Ridge Knolls at 7 a.m. and will leave the lake at 2:30 p.m.

THE LAKE IS stocked with trout, cat-

fish, crappies and bass and fathers and sons are to bring their own poles.

Adults are limited to four trout and minors may catch as many as two. As many as five bass may be hauled in and the limit on pan fish and catfish is 10 and 6 respectively.

Flyers will be sent home through the schools in the park district and parents may register for the fishing day by calling the park district office at CL 5-5380.

Be Alert, Avoid Mower Accidents

by DAVE PALERMO

An 8-year-old girl, playing in the front yard of her Northwest suburban home one summer afternoon, decided it would be fun to ride dad's power lawn mower, which was left idling while dad was in the house.

The girl innocently climbed onto the tractor, not knowing that her little brother was sitting behind it playing in the grass.

The machine suddenly jerked backwards and rolled over the infant, severing his foot.

There are many accidents attributed to power lawn mowers, many of them serious and sometimes fatal.

A power mower can be as dangerous as it is convenient.

All too often somebody rolls the mower over a foot or sticks his hand underneath the machine. The causes are always carelessness on the part of the person using the mower and the result, invariably is a trip to the hospital emergency room.

JACK RYAN, PUBLIC relations director for Northwest Community Hospital in Arlington Heights, remembers one July day two years ago when the emergency room handled seven persons in one day.

The actual amount of injuries attributed to power lawn mowers is difficult to tabulate, for as Ryan says, "The emergency room is more concerned with treating the injury than the cause of the injury."

The records at Northwest Hospital may read, along the column reading cut hand or foot, "lawn mower." But there are many times when it is not scribbled in.

A female doctor who works solely in the emergency room said during a summer weekend, "We can count on four or five."

Most of the time, although the injury is serious, the victim is taken to the hospital in the family car and not an ambulance.

Mount Prospect Fire Chief Edwin Haberkamp said that only on two occasions last year, was the ambulance called to pick up a person injured by a lawn mower. There have been none so far this spring in Mount Prospect.

Last weekend Northwest Hospital's emergency room handled three cases, all middle-aged men.

"People would tend to think that most of the time children are injured by lawn mowers," said Ryan. "But often it's the adult or older person."

"Lawn mower injuries are not as prevalent as dog bites, but we get our share."

"People are usually careful of something that presents an obvious danger, like a lawn mower. The injury is always because of carelessness on the part of the user and the injury is usually serious enough that the person winds up here."

Besides the possibility of a person cut-

Crane: McCormack Chair to Albert

Democratic Rep. Carl Albert of Oklahoma seems the best bet to succeed Speaker of the House John McCormack, U.S. Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-13th, told the Herald yesterday.

McCormack Wednesday announced that he plans to retire from Congress after his current term which ends in January. He has served as Speaker of the House, the position that is second in line in Presidential succession, since 1962.

THE NEXT SPEAKER is likely to be a Democrat since the Democrats control the House and the majority party controls the election for Speaker.

Crane, however, said he thinks Republican chances to gain control of the House of Representatives "are very good."

He said he did not have a favorite candidate among the Republicans in the event that the GOP does gain control, although he did say Rep. Leslie Arends, a Republican from downstate Melvin, Ill., should be considered for one of the GOP leadership positions.

Crane himself has been mentioned as a potential Speaker of the House.

Rep. Edward Derwinski, R-4th, in the Southwest suburbs of Chicago, predicted last December that Crane would be one of the next Republican Speakers of the House, following Republican Rep. Gerald

Ford of Michigan, currently House minority leader.

About 200 of Crane's constituents heard the prediction, which was made at a luncheon in Washington, D.C., the day Crane formally opened his Congressional office.

LAST OCTOBER, during Crane's campaign against Democrat Edward Warman, a Herald reporter asked him what his long-range plans were and he said he would like to become Speaker of the House. That announcement was made at a Crane rally in Palatine Township.

Crane, a former history professor at two Midwestern universities, was elected to his first term in the House of Representatives in a special election last November called to fill the vacancy created by the resignation of former Rep. Donald Rumsfeld.

CRANE WILL SEEK a full two-year term this November, running against Warman again.

The Republicans have held the Congressional seat since 1919 when the district included most of the Northeastern corner of Illinois and parts of Chicago.

It currently consists of the townships of Wheeling, Elk Grove, Palatine, Schaumburg, New Trier, Evanston, Niles and Northfield.

Barrington and Hanover townships and Chicago's 50th Ward were part of the district until the mid-1960s.

German Measles Shots Tomorrow

Immunization centers for the mass inoculation of preschool children at least 1-year-old and school children through third grade who did not receive the rubella vaccination for German measles in school this week will be open tomorrow from noon to 3 p.m.

Parents must fill out a consent form available at the 10 centers throughout the Northwest suburbs and must accompany their children to the center.

One center, Miner Junior High School in Arlington Heights, will be open from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. for parents who cannot take their children in the afternoon.

Other centers which will be open tomorrow are Barrington Middle School in Barrington; Carl Sandburg School, Rolling Meadows; Jack London Junior High School, Wheeling; Ann Sullivan School, Prospect Heights; River Trails Junior High School, Prospect Heights; Winston Churchill School, Schaumburg; Campbell School, Schaumburg; Gregory School, Mount Prospect; and Elk Grove High School.

LAST CHANCE — Preschool children and those who were unable to be vaccinated against the Rubella virus earlier, may be vaccinated tomorrow at immunization centers throughout Cook County. In Mount Prospect Dist. 57, the immunization site for preschoolers will be at Gregory School, 400 E. Gregory, from 12 to 3 p.m. In

Dist. 59 the site will be at Elk Grove High School, Arlington Heights Road and Elk Grove Blvd., Elk Grove Village, from 12 to 3 p.m. and in Dist. 26 it will be at River Trails Junior High School, 1000 Wolf Rd., Prospect Heights, from 12 to 3 p.m.

Dist. Teachers Plan Teach-Out

by JUDY COVELLI

Dist. 59 teachers are remaining firm over a proposed "teach-out" to begin next Wednesday, while administrators are withholding comment until later today.

"Information regarding the teach-out will be sent from my office to the homes with the students after school Friday," Al Waltman, acting superintendent said.

Meanwhile, teachers are continuing with plans decided at a Teachers Council meeting held Wednesday.

The teachers decided they would walk out of classes at noon Wednesday and Thursday and not come to classes Friday if teacher salary negotiations were not near completion by this Monday.

THEY COMPLAINED at the meeting that negotiations had lasted more than three months with no headway.

Thomas Lundeen, council president, said Thursday, "This is what they decided. This is what we'll do."

Dave Robert, the teachers negotiating committee chairman, said Thursday, "We received calls from the National Education Association (NEA) and Illinois Education Association (IEA) this morning. They will be backing us."

Robert added, "The entire state is sort of looking towards us now."

He continued, "We have discussed with them how best the situation should be handled, but are waiting to see what the board's next step will be."

The Dist. 59 Teachers Council is a member of the NEA and IEA.

ROBERT EXPLAINED he had called Waltman after the meeting Wednesday to inform him of the situation and that Waltman said a meeting could possibly be scheduled between the board, administrators and teachers' negotiating team.

Robert said, "I'm hoping that we can meet with them because I don't think any of us want to walk out if it can be settled otherwise."

When discussing what they would do, the teachers determined the strategy of leaving the classroom early and then decided to call it a teach-out because they would be leaving the classroom to walk out into the community and "teach" parents about their dilemma.

They said they would have an all-day teach-out Friday because they should have been given that day off as a national holiday anyway.

MORE THAN HALF the 502 district teachers were present when they voted Wednesday to hold the teach-out if no progress was reported.

Several of the points they voiced concern for at the meeting were:

—Negotiations are slow, and might be held over the summer, which they do not want.

—A negotiation meeting scheduled for this week was canceled by district negotiators and not rescheduled.

—The district's last offer of $7,300 did not come near what they considered their cost of living in the suburbs and their expected salary raise to $8,000 base pay with benefits.

—They feared class sizes were being raised to 35 to 40 students due to cuts in staffs in many schools.

—Board of education members have not been present at negotiations.

—THE ADMINISTRATION has made no other comment other than the announcement that information would be sent home with the students Friday. Waltman explained that the administration is in the process of compiling a letter and coordinating it with the board of education.

U.S. 'Apathetic' on Mideast

"The other side of the coin" was heard from last night as a representative of the Arab Information League spoke to the Wheeling Township Republican Club about the current Arab-Israeli conflict.

Sam Parhad, an Iraqi native who lives in Mount Prospect and is a U.S. citizen, gave the audience of 25 his version of the Arab side of the turbulent Mideast situation.

"The American people don't really care or understand what's happening in the Mideast," he said.

PARHAD, a former associate professor of history at Roosevelt University, feels that Israel cannot win in the Mideast conflict.

"It is only a matter of time until the Arab world is ready to defeat the Israelis," he said.

"Without a global war first, it will take 20 to 30 years. Remember, there are 100 million Arabs."

But Parhad isn't happy about his look into the future.

"I don't want it to happen. If the Jews had asked for the land, the Arabs would have given it to them. But they said, 'Get out, we're going to take your land.'"

"The Israeli Jews don't behave like other Jews — they're arrogant in Israel."

"I was in Haifa in 1947, and there was no animosity between the Arabs and the Jews."

DISCUSSING the United States role in the Mideast, he said, "It is not in our national interest to be pro-Israel."

"Do you know how many Arabs America has lost (in world opinion) in the last 22 years?" he asked.

Parhad added that he was "very disappointed" in U.S. Rep. Philip Crane's recent pro-Israeli statements.

COMMENTING on the history of what has now become a bloody battleground, Parhad said, "Israel took three times more land when it became a nation in 1948 than was given to it a year before by the United Nations."

"Israel did not fulfill its Biblical prophecy of returning to its own land after wandering for years, because the Israelis returned in full force."

The Wheeling Township Republicans have slated a pro-Israeli speaker for their next meeting in June.

Kid Grapplers Show Talents

The approximately 100 youngsters who wrestled last night at Prospect High School had only one thing on their minds. Winning.

Clad in shorts and T-shirts, they panted and sweated on four mats in the gymnasium trying to best an opponent in the same weight category. The prize was the first-place trophy in the Mount Prospect Park District wrestling tournament.

High school wrestlers at each of the four mats did the refereeing, stopping occasionally to help a youngster with his too-large headgear or those gym trunks that never seem to stay up.

For eight weeks prior to last night, the kids learned and practiced the fundamentals of the sport under the watchful eye of high school coaches. They learned takedowns, reverses, sit-outs and escapes.

The practices were over and they were ready for the big show. Ready to show their mothers and fathers what they had learned.

Four grades participated in the tournament, the fifth through the eighth. The weight categories ranged from 60 to 195 pounds.

The winners strutted off the mat with their chins up trying to suppress smiles that eventually broke through the masquerades. The losers would gaze downward and walk off the mat stooped at the shoulders. Some even cried.

The fifth-graders who won trophies were Dan Egeseahl (60-70 pounds); Bob Weber (80 pounds); and Scott Harris (90 pounds).

Sixth grade winners were John Tuohy (70 pounds); Bob Steen (90 pounds); Tom Janus (100 pounds); Craig Vinson (110 pounds); and Ron Bentall (130 pounds).

Seventh-grade winners were John Gross (70 pounds); Tom Digangi (110 pounds); and Tom Petrik (140 pounds).

Eighth grade winners were Ralph Voyta (100 to 110 pounds); Steven Hixson (120-130 pounds); and Bob Ochab (160 pounds).

Lawn Mowers Can Be Deadly

tting a hand or a foot, cases where debris is hurled outward like a bullet by the rotary blades is also common.

THE U.S. DEPARTMENT of Health, Education and Welfare reported about 140,000 persons were injured in the summer of 1968 and because of the increase of mowers as a labor-saving device, the amount is rising annually.

The Consumers Union claims mowers have too much blade exposure and the National Commission on Public Safety indicates that the sale of lawn mowers should be federally regulated.

The Outdoor Power Equipment Institute (OPEI) has standards that blade exposure be only at the front and the discharge chute shielded. Only about 25 per cent of the mowers on the market meet these standards, according to the OPEI.

Most of the blame for power mower injuries is attributed to the rotary-type mower, which accounts for approximately 90 per cent of the industry's sales.

The rotary mower blade whizzes inches above the grass at about 200 mph and can hurl objects outwards at high speeds.

A reel-type mower isn't as popular as the rotary mower but experts claim it is safer because it makes fewer passes in a short period of time and a hand indiscreetly placed on the blade can be removed with less damage.

But a reel mower is unfortunately more expensive than a rotary and ineffective in cutting high grass.

Another possible solution to the hazards of lawn-mowing is a rubber blade now on the market called the Delco Flexible Mower Blade.

The blade, which costs about $9, has reportedly been tested at 3,600 rotations per minute and developers claim it will not cut a sturdy object. The blade may break a toe or finger, but it isn't supposed to cut it off.

SOME POWER mower dealers have accepted the new rubber blade, which can be attached to fit any mower, and offer it to their customers. One place where it can be purchased is Kerstings Mower Shop, 621 N. Main in Mount Prospect.

On the other hand, there was a different opinion of the new blade.

"We don't stock it because we don't think it's worth two cents," said a young man behind the counter at Charles Gray Sales and Service, 110 E. Rand Rd., Mount Prospect.

"For one thing, anything that rotates that fast has got to cut," he went on. "It costs twice as much as a normal blade and it can't be resharpened like other blades."

About the best advice is to be careful and keep the kids away from the power mower.

And then there's always the old but safe push mower.

Principals' Salaries Up 10 Per Cent

Principals' salaries approved recently by the Dist. 59 board of education included an average increase of 10 per cent, according to Richard Vlasak, assistant superintendent in charge of personnel.

Vlasak said the $346,160 budgeted figure approved by the board for administrative purposes included principal salaries for next year and the summer portion past July of this year's contracts.

He presented the top salary of $18,600 with summer school and the low salary of $15,100 without summer school. The high and low salaries this year were $17,300 and $14,500.

HE EXPLAINED that fringe benefits were also the same as last year, including a $350 expense account for each principal.

The expense account is to include in-and-out-of-district mileage, educational books, memberships, seminars and incidental educational expenses.

Vlasak also explained that the $346,160 figure included $8,160 for carry over for summer contracts.

The total figure compared to last year's budget increased $6,000.

This year's figure, however, did not include sabbatical leave pay for any principals. Last year's $340,000 total was included.

This year it includes the salaries of 18 principals plus supervisory pay for Ronald Glovetski who has been named supervisory principal for Dan Cook School. It also includes the administrative portion of Mrs. Pat Marshall's salary. Mrs. Marshall will be administrative assistant at Dan Cook, while teaching part-time.

Mormons Set Open House

"An Evening with the Mormons," an open house to be held in conjunction with dedication services, is scheduled for Saturday at the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.

The program will focus on the family unit and how the Mormons hold onto their young people. The open house will be held at the church's new chapel, 2835 N. Windsor Drive, Arlington Heights, which will be dedicated Sunday.

Drum, Bugle Corps To Appear in Parade

The Vanguard Drum and Bugle Corps, which consists of residents from throughout the Northwest suburbs, will appear Sunday in the annual Waycinden Area Boys' Baseball League parade.

On Memorial Day, the group will parade both in Des Plaines and Kenosha, Wis. Before entering in the first field competition of the year that evening.

Because of the recent civil disturbances in the area, the corps was unable to conduct its "drill camp" at Joliet the weekend of May 8.

Instead, the group held their annual session at Vanguard headquarters in Des Plaines.

"Man's Search for Happiness," a film made famous at the New York World's Fair, will be shown during the open house Saturday at 7:30, 8 and 8:30 p.m. The film portrays the story of "Where Did We Come From, Why We Are Here and Where We Are Going?"

Any interested persons have been invited to attend the open house and the dedication services on Sunday. The services will begin at 5 p.m. in the recently completed $500,000 chapel.

The building will house two separate congregations of more than 700 members living in the Northwest suburbs.

Teacher Teach-Out Set

by JUDY COVELLI

THEY'RE HUMAN TOO Though many people think the Board of Local Improvements is sidewalk happy, BOLI calmly rejected a sidewalk on Wing Street between Dwyer and Kennicott because Wing deadends into both streets. The ease and dispatch of the sidewalks surprised BOLI's audience last week. They even applauded.

REDFACED? Arlington Heights Village Pres. Jack Walsh is sporting a new ruddy complexion. Asked if he received his crimson coloring on the beaches of Hawaii, Walsh said his red face and forehead were due to late afternoon coaching of a Little League baseball team.

TRYING TO TELL us something? After accidentally dropping a petitioner's plans on the floor, Arlington Heights Plan Commission head Leo Mueller said to the petitioner, "That's not necessarily indicative of what we think of your plans."

A CAR CAREFULLY backed out on Campbell Street from the parking lot of the 7-Eleven Store near Wilke Road this week. The car stopped and as drivers swerved around the car, they noticed there was no driver. The driver was apparently inside the store, probably buying a car magazine.

KISS AND TELL: A Herald reporter was in the Dunton House restaurant on Davis Street recently when one of the men who operates the cash register came over and kissed her on the cheek. He explained to the astonished staffer that he did it just to make the cook jealous.

TOO LATE. Someone suggested that the balloon and buttons to be handed out at the June 7 art festival in Arlington Heights say "Culture Culture" on them. Unfortunately, the items have already been ordered and they will read "I'm for culture."

IF YOU WANT people to read a sign, make it big. Mrs. Dorothy Kruse of the Countryside Art Center works on the lettering for a 12-foot by eight-foot sign to mark the proposed site for the cultural center, the square block of land directly south of the Arlington Heights Memorial Library. The sign was built by the village's public works department and painted black.

Gas Station Sideshows Are Under Fire

The sale of milk, salt, new and used cars, new and used boats, mobile homes and miscellaneous items in service stations may be eliminated from the village by the Arlington Heights Plan Commission at their meeting May 27.

A special commission committee, formed to study truck and trailer rental uses in village service stations, just released a report recommending that all accessory uses be eliminated except the sale of ice and rental of trucks and trailers under certain conditions.

The committee has had two meetings with service station operators and oil company representatives. The committee was formed several months ago after the village received complaints about the unsightly appearance and sloppy operations of some village service stations.

Other complaints centered around the parking of rental vehicles and other accessory uses.

THE FIVE-MAN committee concurred on every issue except the question of permitting truck and trailer rentals on service station property.

Committee members John Langhenry and Richard Durava voted against truck and trailer rentals. O. V. Anderson, committee head, said those uses shouldn't be permitted when the service station backs up to residential property but could be allowed if it was in a general commercial area.

Anderson added that the number of units on the property would be based on the size of the property and suggested that the number doesn't exceed five per cent of the total square feet. He pointed out that the property couldn't be used for storage.

Member Victor Beisler agreed with Anderson's comments and further suggested that any property under 10,000 square feet be prohibited from the leasing of trucks and trailers. Commissioner Jack Edwards concurred basically with Anderson's and Beisler's comments.

The committee also suggested that the village president send a letter to the state representatives asking for legislation to assist the village and service station operators in correcting the problem of junk cars being left on service station sites.

Anderson added that the number of units on the property would be based on the size of the property and suggested that the number doesn't exceed five per cent of the total square feet. He pointed out that the property couldn't be used for storage.

Member Victor Beisler agreed with Anderson's comments and further suggested that any property under 10,000

Parish Probes Tuition Plan

Secret ballots have been sent to parents of children expected to attend Our Lady of the Wayside School in Arlington Heights in the fall, asking approval or disapproval of a proposed tuition increase.

Informational letters were sent with the ballots, explaining the tuition rates at the school. A special, closed meeting of the school board has been scheduled for Tuesday night at which interested parishioners may secure additional information prior to casting their vote.

THE PARISH SCHOOL board considered the question of increased tuition rates April 28 and recommended the tuition be raised from the present family rate of $125 per family to $160. A special committee formed to discuss the recommendation reportedly has approved the increase. The final decision will be made by the board in accordance with the results of the ballots.

Rising costs of operating the parish school reportedly necessitated the increase proposal. The average cost of educating each child at the school is said to be $240 per year. With an average of two children per family attending the school, the school reports it would still face a $320 deficit per family even if the increase is approved.

The last tuition increase at the school was in 1967. They claim that since that time neighboring Catholic schools have either raised tuition or are considering increases. Tuition rates for one child in area schools reportedly range from $130 to $195; for two children from $175 to $245; and for three or more children from $215 to $285.

There are no racial overtones to the issue, Kagay feels.

"Anyone in the same location and of same background would make the same decision to protest," Kagay said.

Kagay: 'Multi-Family Zoning? No!'

by SANDRA BROWNING

"We feel that low-income housing can be put in the right location and accomplish its goals rather than result in a wholesale devaluation of adjoining property," said Howard Kagay, president of the Arlington Estates Homeowners Association.

The homeowner's group is opposing the use of St. Viatorian land for low-income housing. The zoning on the land would have to be changed from single-family to multiple family, and that's what the homeowners object to.

Kagay said that changed zoning would set a precedent in the village. No large tracts of land already in the village have been changed from single to multiple-family zoning, he said.

"People rely on this when they buy," he said. "I don't think the village fathers are going to change their minds."

RESIDENTS of the Viator school area would object to any type of proposed multiple family dwellings, whether it would be townhouses, luxury apartments or low-cost housing, Kagay said. Personally, Kagay would rather see government subsidies used to allow people to purchase homes scattered throughout the village and other areas. His philosophy is that permanent subsidies destroy incentive.

Kagay suggested it would be a better idea to help people get on their feet by offering subsidies for a period of time, perhaps five years. Then the subsidy would be cut off and "they could pay what everyone else does."

THE HOMEOWNERS group is presently waiting to see the results of the St. Viator committee, formed recently to study the proposal.

"The committee is making a study of the facts which we feel will benefit us," Kagay said.

At this point, the group has done nothing more than send letters to St. Viator officials and make a few phone calls. If the committee's report is favorable to the low-cost housing proposal, then the homeowners plan to protest with phone calls, petitions and letters.

Kagay said he agreed with the general outline of how the St. Viator committee will study the proposal and said "I think they're going to find after gathering the facts that based on past precedent alone, this is the wrong place for it."

THE BASIS of the protest is the concept of multiple family zoning. Kagay places great faith in the village past zoning policies and said "One of the greatest things in Arlington Heights is that there is no wrong side of the tracks. In any area, you can find $20,000 homes right next to $60,000 homes."

Kagay has gotten calls from people who would like to join the protest, including individuals and representatives of homeowners' groups. Arlington Estates Homeowners' Association is welcoming the support but mainly consists of homeowners in the area bounded by Euclid Street, Oakton street, Drury Lane and Gibbons Avenue.

There are no racial overtones to the issue, Kagay feels.

"Anyone in the same location and of same background would make the same decision to protest," Kagay said.

A SCHOOL CLOCK is shown to Cliff Emory by wood-working student Ron Sales, who won an award from Northern Illinois University for his skill in cabinetry. Cliff, along with sixteen other industrial arts students at Hersey High School, also won an award for a three-color separation in the graphics art category.

Industrial Arts Tuned to a Fine Art

Ten years ago, a high school graduate was in most cases not trained for the labor market. He usually had to continue his education in college or trade school, or receive on the job training.

Curriculum in high schools today has become so specialized that a graduate can find a job as a skilled employee. One of the best examples of this modern trend is the Dist 214 industrial arts program.

At Hersey High School, the program is designed so the student can enter industry immediately after graduation or continue in school and be eligible for a higher income market.

THE PROGRAM is divided into six areas: electronics, woods, metals, power mechanics, graphic arts and drafting. Each area is designed so there is one semester of an elementary course and two years of progressively more technical study.

The classrooms themselves are divided to reserve lecture space and lab space. The labs are equipped with sophisticated tools and machinery to give the boys actual shop experience.

Drafting students take one semester of mechanical drawing and then go into two years of either architectural or machine drawing. Towards the end of their high school education many of these students have obtained a high level of skill, producing detailed plans that almost look professional.

The more serious drafting students have usually invested in a drawing board and other equipment so they can continue their work at home.

Programs for school plays and office forms at Hersey, are quite often the work of students in the graphic arts class. These students also work with photography and arts such as silk screening.

A VARIETY of engines and cars equip the power mechanics lab. The students get a background in all phases of mechanical work ranging from small two cycle engines to jets and diesel engines.

Students in the electronics curriculum gain experience in electricity, circuitry, television and radio. They can even earn their ham radio operating license in class.

Vertical and horizontal mills and welding tools are part of the equipment available to metal working students. And the wood working lab houses tools with which students can make cabinets and furniture.

The drafting, graphic arts, power mechanics and electronic programs are more geared towards vocations than the wood and metal working courses. In the latter, the student has often enrolled because he likes to work with his hands and wants to gain practical skills for hobbies and general repairs.

A drafting student has the option of joining an industrial drafting department right after graduation or going on to college to earn a degree in architecture prior to joining an architectural firm.

A mechanics student will probably be able to get a job as an auto mechanic, however a more technical position would require more training. Likewise, an electronics student might be hired in a television repair shop, but would probably have to go through a union apprentice before he became a full fledged electrician.

STUDENTS in drafting, graphic arts, wood working and metal working recently exhibited their talents by taking 18 awards at a Northern Illinois University competition in industrial education.

They include: Jim Allare, clock cabinet; Jerry Happ, wood clock; Ron Salee, wood clock; Clifford Emory, machine drawing; George Jirasek, architectural drawing; Jay Johnson, architectural drawing; Ronald Lewandowski, architectural drawing; Gary Morava, architectural drawing; Robert Palmer, machine drawing; Robert Rund, architectural drawing; Jim Wolf, architectural drawing; Bill Clarke, metal truck; Bob Arosen, photo effect; Clifford Emory, color separation; Larry Fischer, experimental photo; George Jirasek, silk screen; Tom Namak, mechanical color; and Keith Pinkowsky, posterization.

Housing Group Collects $500

More than $500 has been collected by the Northwest Suburban Housing Coalition for their emergency housing fund. However, coalition members hope to raise a much greater amount to help disadvantaged people in the area solve their immediate housing problems.

"We are disappointed that we haven't had a bigger response," said Rudy Hazucha, member of the coalition's board of directors.

Hazucha noted that one local church has contributed $140 to the emergency loan fund and that a women's club has donated $100 to it.

"But, by and large, the idea hasn't taken hold," he added. "There have been only a small number of individual contributions, but the requests for help are coming in at an alarming rate."

HAZUCHA SAID THE group has appealed for funds to organizations directly connected with social welfare, and will now begin to contact various area service groups, such as Rotary and women's clubs.

At a recent coalition meeting, members voted to contribute $125 worth of loans to assist two Des Plaines families who were routed from their homes during a fire several months ago.

The loans will be used to pay for security deposits on a house and an apartment.

All requests for loans are screened by the staff of the Illinois Migrant Council in Palatine and the Northwest Opportunity Center in Rolling Meadows.

The Northwest Suburban Housing Coalition was formed last winter from six existing organizations which seek better housing for the area's disadvantaged.

MEMBER GROUPS include Norwesco, New Communities, Inc., The Northwest

Opportunity Center, the Illinois Migrant Council, the Schaumburg-Hanover Local Opportunity Council and the Palatine Community Effort Organization.

Eight other organizations hold associate memberships in the coalition.

Meetings are held the first and third Mondays of the month at the Northwest Opportunity Center.

All donations or questions may be sent to the Northwest Suburban Housing Coalition, P.O. Box 366, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.

'Oiga Amigo' Airing Set

A half-hour show on WLS television tomorrow at 12:30 p.m. will review last winter's housing controversy involving several Mexican-American families in the Elk Grove Village area.

The program, Oiga Amigo (Listen Friend) is a weekly telecast concentrating on the Spanish-speaking people in the Chicago metropolitan area.

The show will include interviews with Rev. David Crail of the Elk Grove Wesleyan Church; Jack Pahl, Elk Grove Village mayor; Louis Archibald, of Neighbors at Work (NAW); Clyde Brooks, manpower director of the Cook County Office of Economic Opportunity; Santana Gonzalez, who has been living in a church for several months because he is unable to find a place to park a mobile home; Rev. David Sanchez, of St. Dominic's Catholic Church, Chicago; and Allen Hulet, Elk Grove Village fire chief.

"Every suburb has the second best school system in the state," said Mrs. Mary Leidinger, of 598 Wellington Ave. "I don't know who is first, but there sure are a lot of seconds."

U.S. 'Apathetic' on Mideast

"The other side of the coin" was heard from last night as a representative of the Arab Information League spoke to the Wheeling Township Republican Club about the current Arab-Israeli conflict.

Sam Parhad, an Iraqi native who lives in Mount Prospect and is a U.S. citizen, gave the audience of 25 his version of the Arab side of the turbulent Mideast situation.

"The American people don't really care or understand what's happening in the Mideast," he said.

PARHAD, a former associate professor of history at Roosevelt University, feels that Israel cannot win in the Mideast conflict.

"It is only a matter of time until the Arab world is ready to defeat the Israelis," he said.

"Without a global war first, it will take 20 to 30 years. Remember, there are 100 million Arabs."

But Parhad isn't happy about his look into the future.

"I don't want it to happen. If the Jews had asked for the land, the Arabs would have given it to them. But they said, 'Get out, we're going to take your land.'"

"The Israeli Jews don't behave like other Jews — they're arrogant in Israel."

"I was in Haifa in 1947, and there was no animosity between the Arabs and the Jews."

DISCUSSING the United States role in the Mideast, he said, "It is not in our national interest to be pro-Israel."

"Do you know how many Arabs America has lost (in world opinion) in the last 22 years?" he asked.

Parhad added that he was "very disappointed" in U.S. Rep. Philip Crane's recent pro-Israeli statements.

COMMENTING on the history of what has now become a bloody battleground, Parhad said, "Israel took three times more land when it became a nation in 1948 than was given to it a year before by the United Nations."

"Israel did not fulfill its Biblical prophecy of returning to its own land after wandering for years, because the Israelis returned in full force."

The Wheeling Township Republicans have slated a pro-Israeli speaker for their next meeting in June.

Mowers May Be Hazardous

by DAVE PALERMO

An 8-year-old girl, playing in the front yard of her Northwest suburban home one summer afternoon, decided it would be fun to ride dad's power lawn mower, which was left idling while dad was in the house.

The girl innocently climbed onto the tractor, not knowing that her little brother was sitting behind it playing in the grass.

The machine suddenly jerked backwards and rolled over the infant, severing his foot.

There are many accidents attributed to power lawn mowers, many of them serious and sometimes fatal.

A power mower can be as dangerous as it is convenient.

All too often somebody rolls the mower over a foot or sticks his hand underneath the machine. The causes are always carelessness on the part of the person using the mower and the result, invariably is a trip to the hospital emergency room.

JACK RYAN, PUBLIC relations director for Northwest Community Hospital in Arlington Heights, remembers one July day two years ago when the emergency room handled seven persons in one day.

The actual amount of injuries attributed to power lawn mowers is difficult to tabulate, for as Ryan says, "The emergency room is more concerned with treating the injury than the cause of the injury."

The records at Northwest Hospital may read, along the column reading cut hand or foot, "lawn mower." But there are many times when it is not scribbled in.

A female doctor who works solely in the emergency room said during a summer weekend, "We can count on four or five."

Most of the time, although the injury is serious, the victim is taken to the hospital in the family car and not an ambulance.

Mount Prospect Fire Chief Edwin Haberkamp said that only on two occasions last year, was the ambulance called to pick up a person injured by a lawn mower. There have been none so far this spring in Mount Prospect.

Last weekend Northwest Hospital's emergency room handled three cases, all middle-aged men.

"People would tend to think that most of the time children are injured by lawn mowers," said Ryan. "But often it's the adult or older person."

"Lawn mower injuries are not as prevalent as dog bites, but we get our share."

"People are usually careful of something that presents an obvious danger, like a lawn mower. The injury is always because of carelessness on the part of the user and the injury is usually serious enough that the person winds up here."

Besides the possibility of a person cutting a hand or a foot, cases where debris is hurled outward like a bullet by the rotary blades is also common.

THE U.S. DEPARTMENT of Health, Education and Welfare reported about 140,000 persons were injured in the summer of 1968 and because of the increase of mowers as a labor-saving device, the amount is rising annually.

The Consumers Union claims mowers have too much blade exposure and the National Commission on Public Safety indicates that the sale of lawn mowers should be federally regulated.

The Outdoor Power Equipment Institute (OPEI) has standards that blade exposure be only at the front and the discharge chute shielded. Only about 25 per cent of the mowers on the market meet these standards, according to the OPEI.

Most of the blame for power mower injuries is attributed to the rotary-type mower, which accounts for approximately 90 per cent of the industry's sales.

The rotary mower blade whizzes inches above the grass at about 200 mph and can hurt objects outdoors at high speeds.

A reel-type mower isn't as popular as the rotary mower but experts claim it is safer because it makes fewer passes in a short period of time and a hand indiscreetly placed on the blade can be removed with less damage.

But a reel mower is unfortunately more expensive than a rotary and ineffective in cutting high grass.

Another possible solution to the hazards of lawn-mowing is a rubber blade now on the market called the Deleo Flexible Mower Blade.

The blade, which costs about $9, has reportedly been tested at 3,600 rotations per minute and developers claim it will not cut a sturdy object. The blade may break a toe or finger, but it isn't supposed to cut it off.

SOME POWER mower dealers have accepted the new rubber blade, which can be attached to fit any mower, and offer it to their customers. One place where it can be purchased is Kerstings Mower Shop, 621 N. Main in Mount Prospect.

On the other hand, there was a different opinion of the new blade.

"We don't stock it because we don't think it's worth two cents," said a young man behind the counter at Charles Gray Sales and Service, 110 E. Rand Rd., Mount Prospect.

"For one thing, anything that rotates that fast has got to cut," he went on. "It costs twice as much as a normal blade and it can't be resharpened like other blades."

About the best advice is to be careful and keep the kids away from the power mower.

And then there's always the old but safe push mower.

Cronin Reelected Park Board Chief

Charles Cronin was reelected president of the Arlington Heights Park Board during an adjourned meeting of the board Tuesday night.

"I appreciate the vote of confidence and accept because it's been such a pleasure working with the board this past year," Cronin commented. This will be his fourth term as president of the board.

Jack Edwards was elected vice president of the board, and the members of the standing committees will remain the same as last year.

Committee members are E. E. Ormsbee and Roy Bressler, buildings and grounds; Bressler and Edward Condon, finance; Ormsbee and Edwards, recreation; Condon and Edwards, public relations, and Condon and Bressler, personnel.

Park board members also reappointed Thomas Thornton as the board secretary and the director of parks and recreation; Edward Urbanski as the district treasurer; Charles Bobinette as the district's attorney.

The election and appointments were all unanimously approved by the board.

Drug Addiction Seminar Sunday

A two session seminar on drug addiction will be presented May 24 and 31 in St. Simon's Episcopal Church, 717 Kurchoff Rd., Arlington Heights.

Discussion leaders for the program, planned to inform and warn parents of possible addiction problems, will be drug experts, counselors, ex-addicts, an attorney, a medical director and other professionals from St. Leonard's House in Chicago, a halfway house for ex-addicts in Chicago.

Topics to be discussed are Your Community and Drugs, Youth and Drug Abuse, A Dialogue with Ex-Addicts and Narcotic Counselors and Legal and Medical Aspects of Drug Addiction.

This Sunday's session will begin at 7:30 p.m. and is expected to last until 9:30 p.m. Admission will be $3 for adults and $1 for students. All donations will benefit St. Leonard's House.

Mosquitoes Get Misty Future

by MARTHA KOPER

Under fire from almost every suburb in the area, Wilbur Mitchell, director of the Northwest Mosquito Abatement District (NMAD) held fast to the district's current methods of controlling the stinging insects.

He was asked to speak to members of the Northwest Municipal Conference Wednesday night because of several questions about the district's operations from local municipalities.

Don Thompson, president of the conference, asked the difference between fogging and misting mosquitoes.

In March, NMAD announced it would discontinue fogging and use only misting to kill the mosquito in accordance with an anti-pollution program.

"The same chemical will be used, but we're eliminating the oil," Mitchell explained.

THE BASIC product for both is malathion. The mist is 97 per cent water and 3 per cent malathion. The fog is 97 per cent oil and 3 per cent malathion," he added.

Mitchell explained misting can also be done during the days while fogging only was effective after sundown.

Mrs. Clayton Brown, chairman of PEP (Pollution and Environmental Problems) asked if misting would be dangerous to children playing in residential areas during the daytime.

"Oh, we won't go into residential areas with lots of children. We'll stay on the outskirts until evening," Mitchell explained.

"Furthermore, we won't mist, if it's not needed," he added.

"We'll be continuing our efforts to kill the larva, so the mosquitoes won't even become adults," Mitchell said.

However, he admitted, oil is used to vacide ponds and standing water.

"Is anything being done toward permanent control?" Mrs. Brown wanted to know.

"WE'RE STILL working on drainage," Mitchell explained. "But we don't like to do drainage without the consent of the property owner."

Standing-water is a natural breeding place for mosquitoes and a permanent control method is to drain areas of stagnant pools of water.

It was asked if broken field tiles are repaired and Mitchell explained some work has been done in unincorporated areas and farmland.

Thompson, village president of Buffalo

Grove said, "Yes, but while you're making a farmer happy in an unincorporated area, you're making the taxpayers, which we represent, unhappy because they can't see anything being done."

HE TOLD Mitchell that Buffalo Grove is seriously considering withdrawing from the district.

A village trustee from Palatine, Clayton Brown, pointed out that malathion is a first cousin to nerve gas and is extremely poisonous in large quantities.

"If people receive only a small dose, it will give them the symptoms of the flu," he said.

Mitchell agreed, but said, "So is nutmeg or quinine or penicillin in large quantities."

A trustee from Barrington Hills said "That's a poor analogy. Isn't there anything you can use that isn't poisonous to humans, but will kill mosquitoes?" Mitchell shook his head.

"WHY IS THERE a mosquito district? Maybe we should just forget it altogether," a man said.

"When I came here in 1957, I was informed that petitions had been circulated demanding the creation of a mosquito abatement district. The people saw a need for it," Mitchell explained.

"But things have changed since then," someone answered.

Principals' Salaries Up 10 Per Cent

Principals' salaries approved recently by the Dist. 59 board of education included an average increase of 10 per cent, according to Richard Vlasak, assistant superintendent in charge of personnel.

Vlasak said the $346,160 budgeted figure approved by the board for administrative purposes included principal salaries for next year and the summer portion past July of this year's contracts.

He presented the top salary of $18,600 with summer school and the low salary of $15,100 without summer school. The high and low salaries this year were $17,300 and $14,500.

HE EXPLAINED that fringe benefits were also the same as last year, including a $350 expense account for each principal.

The expense account is to include in-and-out-of-district mileage, educational books, memberships, seminars and incidental educational expenses.

Vlasak also explained that the $346,160 figure included $8,160 for carry over for summer contracts.

The total figure compared to last year's budget increased $6,000.

This year's figure, however, did not include sabbatical leave pay for any principals. Last year's $340,000 total was included.

This year it includes the salaries of 18 principals plus supervisory pay for Ronald Glovetski who has been named supervisory principal for Dan Cook School. It also includes the administrative portion of Mrs. Pat Marshall's salary. Mrs. Marshall will be administrative assistant at Dan Cook, while teaching part-time.

'Drowned Proofing' Film Set For Cubs

"Drowned Proofing," a film which has won national television awards, will be shown at tonight's meeting of Cub Scout Pack 67.

Any boys wishing to join the pack in September have been invited to attend the meeting with their parents. The program will begin at 7 p.m. at Ridge School, 800 N. Fernandez Ave., Arlington Heights.

Webelos awards planned to be presented during the meeting by Wayne Sladek will go to scouts Scott Blizard, arrow-of-light, and Jeff Spaulding, arrow-of-light, traveler and artist badges and a three-year pin. Webelos ceremonies will be held for David Poeweko and John Thoms.

Other boys scheduled to receive awards will be Paul Thoms, gold arrow, James Vetter, silver and gold arrows and bear badge, Steve Miller, silver and gold arrows, Jeff Holmquist, silver and gold arrows, and John Krewer, silver arrow.

Mormons Set Open House

"An Evening with the Mormons," an open house to be held in conjunction with dedication services, is scheduled for Saturday at the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.

The program will focus on the family unit and how the Mormons hold onto their young people. The open house will be held at the church's new chapel, 2035 N. Windsor Drive, Arlington Heights, which will be dedicated Sunday.

"Man's Search for Happiness," a film made famous at the New York World's Fair, will be shown during the open house Saturday at 7, 7:30, 8 and 8:30 p.m. The film portrays the story of "Where Did We Come From, Why We Are Here and Where We Are Going?"

Any interested persons have been invited to attend the open house and the dedication services on Sunday. The services will begin at 5 p.m. in the recently completed $500,000 chapel.

The building will house two separate congregations of more than 700 members living in the Northwest suburbs.

Regner Dance Set Saturday

Sen. Ralph T. Smith and U.S. Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-13th, will join several hundred Northwest suburban Republicans tomorrow at a testimonial dance honoring State Rep. David J. Regner, R-Mount Prospect.

Regner is completing his second term in the Illinois House of Representatives and is seeking a third term in November.

The testimonial, designed to help defray campaign costs, is scheduled for 8:30 p.m. at the Flick Reedy Auditorium in Bensenville.

Besides Smith and Crane, many of the state and county Republican candidates are expected to attend.

Dancing, refreshments and door prizes are planned with one of the features being 10-cent beer.

Chairman of the event is Richard Hall of Des Plaines, former president of the Elk Grove Township Republican Organization.

Billy Graham's New Film Depicts Israel

A new Billy Graham film, "His Land," has been scheduled for a free public showing Sunday by the Evangelical Free Church of Arlington Heights, 1331 N. Belmont.

The one-hour color feature will be shown at 7 p.m.

The film concerns the story of Israel from ancient to modern times. It depicts a journey through space, time and current events.

The film features Cliff Barrows and Cliff Richard, a popular English star, who sings a number of new Ralph Carmichael songs during the film.

NOTICE TO ALL VETERANS

WHO HAVE HONORABLY SERVED THEIR COUNTRY IN TIME OF WAR OR PEACE

In view of the fact that no National Cemetery exists in the Chicago area to provide burial space for veterans, Memory Gardens Cemetery of Arlington Heights, Illinois has established a Veterans Program to be conducted by its Veterans Department and has made available a limited number of grave spaces to qualified veterans at no charge (except - a $15.00 fee for endowment care as required by Illinois State law).

Only honorably discharged Veterans of the United States Armed Forces who do not own or have been assigned burial property may apply. (Special Protective Features are available for spouse as well as for all minor children). Applications are processed in the order received. Verification of information is necessary to issue Certificate for grave space eligibility.

Since the number of grave spaces assigned to the Veterans department is limited, applications will be accepted only during the period required to complete the allocation.

We will also furnish you with valuable information on related cash benefits due you from the United States Government.

Inoculation Plan Termed Worthwhile

by CYNTHIA TIVERS

Parents of children who go to school in Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 were almost unanimous in their approval of the Rubella vaccinations administered Wednesday.

Mrs. Francis Fenton of 1110 E. Katson Drive in Palatine had two children inoculated at the Winston Park School. "I think the program is good," she commented. "If it's going to help them from contracting the disease, it will avoid complications later in their lives."

"If it helps like the Polio vaccine has helped," she continued, "and if it helps like the regular measles vaccine has helped—it's wonderful."

Mrs. Richard Davis of 851 Plate Dr. in Palatine helped out with Wednesday's program. "My seven and eight year olds received the shots. I think it was a very good idea and it's necessary to help prevent birth defects," she noted. "It will also avoid problems later when they become pregnant," she added.

Mrs. Stephen Eberhard of 2406 Martin Lane in Rolling Meadows said she is going to take her 3-year-old to be vaccinated on Saturday at the Sandburg School.

"I think it's a wise thing to do. None of my other children have received the vaccine but they're older and were not eligible for the Dist. 15 program," Mrs. Eberhard also mentioned that she will check with her own doctor before she has her son vaccinated.

Mrs. R. W. Glaser of 1500 Boblink Lane in Rolling Meadows said she would certainly have let her fourth grade daughter get vaccinated, but she was too old to be eligible for the program. "I don't know," Mrs. Glaser commented, "this disease has been minor for so many years. But they found out about all the problems it can cause, so it's important to be vaccinated against it."

Mrs. Yenson Chin, who lives at 258 S. Brookdale Lane in Palatine has four children. But they were too old to get Rubella shots Wednesday. "I think the vaccinations are great to prevent an outbreak of the German measles. If my children were the right age for the program I definitely would have let them get shots," Mrs. Chin remarked.

Mrs. Theodore Costa of 2102 Hawk Lane in Rolling Meadows had one of her children receive the vaccination at the Carl Sandburg School. "I think it's necessary for them to get the shots," Mrs. Costa said. "It's a good idea."

Two of Mrs. Marian Balabuzko's children were inoculated. Mrs. Balabuzko, of 2313 Eastman in Rolling Meadows, said, "It's better than having all the kids out of school at once and having the doctors overworked in case of such an epidemic."

"The program is good," she added, "because some people cannot afford to have their kids get these shots."

On Sept. 18, 1899, a would-be robber and murderer arrived in Palatine on the 2:05 Lake Geneva train from Chicago.

He entered the Palatine Bank of Charles Patten and approached the bank's lone cashier, Fred Filbert. While Filbert was trying to locate a non-existent farm on a map for the stranger, the tall, neatly dressed man hit Filbert on the head with a hammer and pulled him behind a counter.

At that moment, Henry Plagge, an aged local farmer entered the bank saying, "I want to see Mr. Filbert."

The stranger called attention to the unconscious Filbert lying on the floor uttering that Filbert was sick or hurt. The unsuspecting Plagge walked over to the body and he, too was hit on the head by a hammer.

But Plagge managed to grab the robber around the legs and threw him to the floor. The robber fell on top of him and started to beat Plagge with the butt end of a revolver. A struggle ensued, the gun was discharged and the assassin was fatally wounded. By-passers were attracted by the noise.

If the robber had not been interrupted, he would have escaped on the 3:19 train with over $5,000. Thus ended Palatine's first desperate attempt at robbery and murder.

IN VENICE, the waterways are considered part of Old World charm. In the Arlington Crest subdivision in Palatine, waterways like the one pictured are considered health hazards. The subdivision has been waiting since 1968 for sewers to be installed.

Sewage Ditches Health Hazards?

Residents of the Arlington Crest subdivision in Palatine may be facing a serious health threat which some of them claim is the fault of the village.

The George W. Kennedy Construction Co. was awarded a $250,000 contract in November, 1968 to install sewage pipes in the development across from the Arlington Park racetrack. The Antioch firm has been having financial difficulties and has yet to complete the project.

Along Williams Drive in the subdivision, front yards are ripped up waiting for the installation of about 750 feet of pipe. More important than the yards, however, is the water which stagnates in open ditches.

Residents of the subdivision say at least two children have become ill recently, one of them seriously, and it is claimed the open ditches may be responsible.

James Q. Etherton of 543 W. Williams said he has been working five years to have the sanitary sewers installed.

"We've got it in front of the house and can't get it completed," he said one day this week.

"I don't know what to do about it," he said. "I'm doing a lot of complaining but I don't get much done."

Asked if he considered the water in front of his house a health hazard, he replied, "All you have to do is look at it to see that."

"There's green garbage," floating in the water, he said, and the bottom of the ditch is turning black.

Mrs. Hans Jensen of 682 Williams described the water as "seummy," full of algae and "a terrific mosquito breeder."

"Sure, the water is a health hazard," she said, "but how can you tell kids to stay away from water?"

The residents say the village has refused to do anything to help them.

George Kennedy, the president of the construction firm told the village board about a month ago he had a loan from the Small Business Administration and could again start working on the project.

The problem, he said, is that he cannot do the rest of the work because a 10-foot construction easement obtained by the village did not give him enough room.

Village Mgr. Berton G. Braun says that Kennedy knew the problems of construction when he bid and it is his problem.

Several weeks ago Kennedy tried doing some work on the project, but the village told him to stop because it felt it was weakening its legal position if it allowed Kennedy to work on the project.

"I've gone as far as I can possibly go," said James C. Bennett, the village's public works director, yesterday.

"As I understand the special assessment law," he said, Palatine can't be reimbursed for any work it does on the project. Therefore, he said, the village will not use general tax funds for the project.

German Measles Shots Tomorrow

Immunization centers for the mass inoculation of preschool children at least 1-year-old and school children through third grade who did not receive the rubella vaccination for German measles in school this week will be open tomorrow from noon to 3 p.m.

Parents must fill out a consent form available at the 10 centers throughout the Northwest suburbs and must accompany their children to the center.

One center, Miner Junior High School in Arlington Heights, will be open from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. for parents who cannot take their children in the afternoon.

Growing Stretches Around 'Curtain'

by AL GREENE

"My childhood was very beautiful. But then the war came and everything was destroyed, barren. My father went to prison as a political prisoner."

"This wonderful country gave me the opportunity for a good life. I'm in a position to see what I can do for others."

With these words Dzemal Mulasmajic of 338 Pleasant Hill Blvd. explained why he is helping two young Yugoslavian boys come to this country for medical treatment.

If all goes according to plan, 14-year-old Fikret Hasanbasic and his 11-year-old brother, Hasan, will be arriving aboard a U.S. Air Force plane at Andrews Air Force Base near Washington, D.C., in a week.

The boys are scheduled for three weeks of medical tests at the National Institute of Health Clinical Center at Bethesda, Maryland, and then, a three to five year stay with the Mulasmajics in Palatine.

Mrs. Mulasmajic told how the family met the oldest of the boys in a letter to President Nixon.

In June, 1968, she wrote, her husband went to Yugoslavia on a business trip. "He spent one weekend in the village of Novi Seher where his family lives."

"While he was there, a man and his son came to see him from a neighboring village about five miles away. Word had spread that the Mulasmajic family's son from America was visiting and the boy persuaded his father to walk to Novi Seher with him on the chance of seeing this man from America."

The boy, Fikret, Mrs. Mulasmajic wrote, has not grown as expected and has been told that "he had a hormone deficiency and the medication for this problem was not available in Yugoslavia."

Fikret found an article in a magazine saying that a Chicago hospital had developed a human growth hormone. The article contained pictures of a young girl who was being treated with a new drug and was responding to the treatment.

Mrs. Mulasmajic asked the President to help them obtain a sponsor to bring Fikret to America for the $3,000 worth of medical treatment he needs.

Mrs. Mulasmajic said she talked to a number of local doctors and Virginia M. Worsley, the senior nursing advisor in the Office of International Health of NIH. The results, she said, were negative.

On a second trip to Yugoslavia in August, Mulasmajic discovered that Fikret had a younger brother with the same problem.

The father, Mulasmajic said, thought it was too much to ask for help for the first boy so he "didn't mention the second."

When NIH officials were told about the second child, Mrs. Mulasmajic said, interest in the problem picked up and NIH agreed to take the boys at no cost.

The next problem the Mulasmajics encountered was how to get the boys here. Calling on the services of a Chicago newspaper, Mrs. Mulasmajic learned that the Air Force would transport patients if they were accepted for treatment by the government. The boys now have transportation arranged from Frankfurt, Germany to the U.S. A Palatine Lions Club donation of $100 will get the boys from Zagreb, Yugoslavia to Frankfurt.

Mulasmajic is a partner in the North American Import-Export Co., Inc. He said he has been supporting his family in Yugoslavia and his brother who is soon to finish medical school.

His brother, Abdul Kerim, will go into the Army for a year and then the Mulasmajics hope to bring him to America to study surgery.

The problem the Mulasmajics now face is the need for support for the boys while they are in Palatine. What will be needed, Mrs. Mulasmajic said, is a minimal amount for school expenses, medical insurance and clothing.

Up to now, she said, the cooperation she has gotten has been "unbelievable. I have the faith that the money will come to help them."

Mrs. Mulasmajic said she is a registered nurse so she will administer the drugs to the boys which will help cut medical expenses. The boys will stay, she said, "however long it takes."

If the boys are found suitable for treatment, she said, they will grow two or three inches a year. "It doesn't sound like much but if you're only four feet high it could really make a difference," she said.

At first, Mrs. Mulasmajic said her three year old daughter, Lura, said "no boys are coming here." But she is now "talking" to the boys on a play telephone. "It's going to take some adjustment," Mrs. Mulasmajic said.

According to a medical report prepared by Mulasmajic's brother, Fikret is "normal, happy and well adjusted." There are three boys and two girls in the family. The other son and daughters are physically normal, the report says.

A savings account has been opened at the First Bank and Trust Company in the boys' name. The account number is 121-312.

Hold Registration For Bible School

Registration for Vacation Bible School will be held Saturday at Bethel Lutheran Church on West Frontage Road and Briarwood Lane in Palatine from 10 a.m. to noon.

Sessions for children 3 to 5-years-old will be held May 25 through 29 and June 1 through June 5 from 9:30 to 11 a.m.

An intermediate session for kindergarten through sixth grade pupils will be held June 15 through 19 and June 22 through June 26 from 9 to 11:30 a.m.

On June 18 the church will have Mrs. Stanley Quanbeck as a guest speaker. She and her husband are missionaries in Madagascar. They are now home on leave.

Skeeters Still Face Spray

by MARTHA KOPER

Under fire from almost every suburb in the area, Wilbur Mitchell, director of the Northwest Mosquito Abatement District (NMAD) held fast to the district's current methods of controlling the stinging insects.

He was asked to speak to members of the Northwest Municipal Conference Wednesday night because of several questions about the district's operations from local municipalities.

Don Thompson, president of the conference, asked the difference between fogging and misting mosquitoes.

In March, NMAD announced it would discontinue fogging and use only misting to kill the mosquito in accordance with an anti-pollution program.

"The same chemical will be used, but we're eliminating the oil," Mitchell explained.

THE BASIC product for both is malathion. The mist is 97 per cent water and 3 per cent malathion. The fog is 97 per cent oil and 3 per cent malathion," he added.

Mitchell explained misting can also be done during the days while fogging only was effective after sundown.

Mrs. Clayton Brown, chairman of PEP

(Pollution and Environmental Problems) asked if misting would be dangerous to children playing in residential areas during the daytime.

"Oh, we won't go into residential areas with lots of children. We'll stay on the outskirts until evening," Mitchell explained.

"Furthermore, we won't mist, if it's not needed," he added.

"We'll be continuing our efforts to kill the larva, so the mosquitoes won't even become adults," Mitchell said.

However, he admitted, oil is used to vacide ponds and standing water.

"Is anything being done toward permanent control?" Mrs. Brown wanted to know.

"WE'RE STILL working on drainage," Mitchell explained. "But we don't like to do drainage without the consent of the property owner."

Standing-water is a natural breeding place for mosquitoes and a permanent control method is to drain areas of stagnant pools of water.

It was asked if broken field tiles are repaired and Mitchell explained some work has been done in unincorporated areas and farmland.

Thompson, village president of Buffalo Grove said, "Yes, but while you're mak-

The village can either re-bid the project or allow the Kennedy firm to complete it. Condemnation proceedings to obtain more than a 10 foot construction easement have already begun.

In the meantime, the homeowners' sump pumps continue to pump water from ground that is saturated from septic tank over-flow into open drainage ditches, Bennett said.

A village trustee from Palatine, Clayton Brown, pointed out that malathion is a first cousin to nerve gas and is extremely poisonous in large quantities.

"If people receive only a small dose, it will give them the symptoms of the flu," he said.

Mitchell agreed, but said, "So is nutmeg or quinine or penicillin in large quantities."

A trustee from Barrington Hills said "That's a poor analogy. Isn't there anything you can use that isn't poisonous to humans, but will kill mosquitoes?" Mitchell shook his head.

"WHY IS THERE a mosquito district? Maybe we should just forget it altogether," a man said.

"When I came here in 1957, I was informed that petitions had been circulated demanding the creation of a mosquito abatement district. The people saw a need for it," Mitchell explained.

"But things have changed since then," someone answered.

Architect: It Won't Conflict With Homes

(This is the fourth in a continuing series concerning low and moderate income housing in the suburbs. The Herald presents the series with the understanding that no final decision has been reached on the St. Viator land

by ROGER CAPETTINI

All the discussions, sometimes intelligent, often heated, concerning low and moderate-income housing in the Northwest suburban area eventually come back to the key issue — public acceptance

It is generally agreed that all persons are entitled to a decent place to live and to bring up children, but rationality disappears when the inevitable question arises — where?

Robert A. Kole, president of Kole Realtors with offices in Rolling Meadows, Wheeling, Des Plaines and Chicago, thinks he has the answer to contrary public opinion

"Presentation of the plan to the public is the key to gaining a favorable attitude," he said. And he seems to know what he's talking about. Kole is presently involved in developing a multi-family apartment complex in Fox Lake, and claims the people there are "very receptive" to the new community

"BUT YOU HAVE to give the public a chance for acceptance. You have to approach them with plans, drawings and sketches, to show them you're not going to construct a cardboard jungle across the street."

He said he thinks the people realize the need for low-cost housing in their community, they realize some of the existing housing in their community is substandard, and with a proper presentation they will generally accept the initiation of low-income housing

The Fox Lake development might serve as a good example of the future complex of low-income housing for some time to come. Thirteen buildings, housing 16 units each, will eventually sit on the 15-acre site, complete with a 14-acre natural pond. It will be an attractive, well-landscaped complex with rents ranging from $110 per month for one-bedroom to $135 per month for three bedrooms to qualified tenants

KOLE SEES the public acceptance problem stemming from a "snob" attitude. "They forget what it is to skimp," he said. "They forget what it's like not to have enough money to go to the movies — what it's like to budget and budget closely. What are necessities for the average suburban homeowner are luxuries to low income families."

"But these people are not poor," he added quickly. "They're not dissidents — rather they are the backbone of America, trying to save some money for the future and provide a decent home and decent education for their children. They're the average buyers, the transferred American."

He leaned back in his chair and stared at the ceiling and began to philosophize. "The population needs to be balanced. Everyone should be able to own a decent home — not 'adequate' — decent. This is what America is all about. And the housing foundation is the key. Without this the whole structure could someday collapse."

HE SAID people who oppose low-income housing in the suburbs should ask themselves if they are willing to do without the services of the people who would be expected to live in those homes. "Are you willing to do without the services of the policeman, the postman, the bank clerk, the milkman, and the thousands of clerks in the various stores and shops?" he asked.

"Well, those are the people you would be denying a decent place to live. It is the obligation of the community to provide land for homes for these people if the need exists."

In regard to the St. Viator proposal he added, "I personally think there is a great need for low-income housing in Arlington Heights. If the Viator site can be obtained somehow for the right price, it would make one of the most ideal spots in the Northwest suburbs for this type housing, because of its central location."

KOLE SEES the future of low-income housing as inevitable, and while many other realtors are experiencing real "dog-days" in the sales end, he said he is currently realizing one of his best years in the business — and he attributes that to his interest in catering to the low-income family

Through his various offices, Kole has sold 98 homes so far this year, and more than 50 per cent of those have sold for less than $25,000. These are the figures he claims are undeniable evidence of the need for low-income housing in the Northwest suburbs.

The highest hurdle developers have to overcome in the low-income housing race is the price of land in the suburbs, according to Kole. He said the cost of the land should represent 20 to 25 per cent of the cost of the home to be built.

For example, then, a $9,000 lot would require a home of $36,000 for a total cost of $45,000 before money lenders would approve the loan. With land costs at that level, coupled with such a rule of thumb, low cost housing is impossible.

Many feel the answer to this problem is the development of low-cost housing in unincorporated areas where land costs are substantially lower. Kole doesn't see it this way.

The very fact that certain families are on a low income precludes the feasibility of locating them in unincorporated areas. "They have to be near the place of employment, near stores and they have to have normal municipal services available to them," he said. "Ideally, the people with the least money should live closer to the services, and the more affluent should be located further away. This doesn't seem to hold true in this area, and that is one of the problems," he said.

SITTING IN Kole's unpretentious Des Plaines office, the question arises concerning his motive. Many feel the profit margin in low-income housing is small, and looking around his office only serves to further this idea. It is small. The walls are graced only with sales awards, and photos of his wife and three children sit on the desk tops. Assorted boating paraphernalia clutter the sofa across from his desk.

"Don't get me wrong," he said, "I'm no 'goody goody.' I'm on this end of the business because I saw a void and I filled it."

Crane:McCormack Chair to Albert

Democratic Rep. Carl Albert of Oklahoma seems the best bet to succeed Speaker of the House John McCormack, U.S. Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-13th, told the Herald yesterday.

McCormack Wednesday announced that he plans to retire from Congress after his current term which ends in January. He has served as Speaker of the House, the position that is second in line in Presidential succession, since 1962.

THE NEXT SPEAKER is likely to be a Democrat since the Democrats control the House and the majority party controls the election for Speaker.

Crane, however, said he thinks Republican chances to gain control of the House of Representatives "are very good."

He said he did not have a favorite candidate among the Republicans in the event that the GOP does gain control, although he did say Rep. Leslie Arends, a Republican from downstate Melvin, Ill., should be considered for one of the GOP leadership positions.

Crane himself has been mentioned as a potential Speaker of the House.

Rep. Edward Derwinski, R-4th, in the Southwest suburbs of Chicago, predicted last December that Crane would be one of the next Republican Speakers of the House, following Republican Rep. Gerald

Ford of Michigan, currently House minority leader.

About 200 of Crane's constituents heard the prediction, which was made at a luncheon in Washington, D.C., the day Crane formally opened his Congressional office.

LAST OCTOBER, during Crane's campaign against Democrat Edward Warman, a Herald reporter asked him what his long-range plans were and he said he would like to become Speaker of the House. That announcement was made at a Crane rally in Palatine Township.

Crane, a former history professor at two Midwestern universities, was elected to his first term in the House of Representatives in a special election last November called to fill the vacancy created by the resignation of former Rep. Donald Rumsfeld.

CRANE WILL SEEK a full two-year term this November, running against Warman again.

The Republicans have held the Congressional seat since 1919 when the district included most of the Northeastern corner of Illinois and parts of Chicago.

It currently consists of the townships of Wheeling, Elk Grove, Palatine, Schaumburg, New Trier, Evanston, Niles and Northfield.

Barrington and Hanover townships and Chicago's 50th Ward were part of the district until the mid-1960s.

THE COMPLEXION of low-cost housing in the future? The artist's rendering depicts a low-cost housing project currently under construction in Fox Lake by Kole Realtors. Thirteen buildings with 16 units each are planned for the 15-acre tract. Construction was financed under Section 236 of the Federal Housing Authority.

DISABLED VETERANS will benefit from the sale of their homemade poppies throughout the country yesterday and today. Mrs. Kay Lill of the American Legion Auxiliary was giving away the poppies and seeking donations for the veterans at Jewel Food Store on Plum Grove Road where Christie Price went shopping with her mother.

'Fly-Up' Event Set

A Blue Bird "Fly-Up" ceremony for third grade girls graduating into the Palatine Campfire Girls will be held at 7:30 p.m., May 22, in Marion Jordan School.

'We're Too Conservative'

More than half of the Palatine Township Democrats who took part in a survey conducted by the local Democratic Organization think the national Democratic Party is too conservative and almost 80 per cent of them feel the Cook County Democratic Organization is too conservative.

The survey was taken of about 80 Democrats who attended the township organization's meeting earlier this month.

Results have been released in spurts by Democratic Committeeman Richard A. Mugalian.

Fewer than 50 of the persons attending the meeting answered the two questions concerning the national and county party.

Twenty-eight of 47 persons said the national Democratic Party is too conservative, while only 6 said it was too liberal, and 13 said it was just right.

ONLY ONE PERSON said the Cook County Democratic Party is too liberal, while 34 said it was too conservative, and 10 said it was just right.

The Democratic Party is generally thought of as being more liberal than the Republican Party, particularly in Palatine Township, possibly the most conservative in Cook County.

Anti-War Petitions Circulating Here

A Palatine anti-war organization plans to solicit signatures tomorrow on petitions in support of pending legislation which would curtail expenditures for the war in Southeast Asia.

The Palatine Area Citizens for Enlightened Majorities will be stationed at three area shopping centers asking for support of the amendment to the military procurement bill offered by Sen. Mark Hatfield, R-Oregon, and Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D.

The amendment would set a December, 1970, cutoff date for funds to be spent for Vietnam action and would require all American troops to be withdrawn by June 30, 1971. It also would set the same restrictions on funds for Laos and Cambodia.

Tomorrow's petition drive is part of a nation-wide effort to support the Hatfield-McGovern amendment.

Another question, asking for priorities for government spending, showed that the Palatine Democrats clearly oppose increased defense and foreign aid spending while favoring increased spending for anti-poverty programs, welfare, urban problems, mass transportation and aid to education.

On the defense spending issue, 54 persons said spending should be decreased while only four said it should be increased.

The nation's space program also fared

'Oiga Amigo' Airing Set

A half-hour show on WLS television tomorrow at 12:30 p.m. will review last winter's housing controversy involving several Mexican-American families in the Elk Grove Village area.

The program, Oiga Amigo (Listen Friend) is a weekly telecast concentrating on the Spanish-speaking people in the Chicago metropolitan area.

The show will include interviews with Rev. David Cratt of the Elk Grove Wesleyan Church, Jack Pahl, Elk Grove Village mayor, Louis Archbold, of Neighbors at Work (NAW), Clyde Brooks, manpower director of the Cook County Office of Economic Opportunity, Santana Gonzalez, who has been living in a church for several months because he is unable to find a place to park a mobile home, Rev. David Sanchez, of St. Dominic's Catholic Church, Chicago, and Allen Hullett, Elk Grove Village fire chief.

"Every suburb has the second best school system in the state," said Mrs. Mary Leiding, of 598 Wellington Ave. "I don't know who is first, but there sure are a lot of seconds."

Fun Fair Is Saturday

Plum Grove School's annual Fun Fair will be held at the school Saturday from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.

The Fair, sponsored by the Plum Grove PTA, will include games and activities for children of all ages.

The school is located at 26 W. Old Plum Grove in Palatine.

poorly in the questionnaire, with 41 persons favoring decreased spending and nine favoring increases.

ONLY THREE persons voted in favor of anti-poverty cutbacks while 55 said spending should be increased in that area.

A similar response was voiced on aid to schools, with 54 persons favoring increased spending and only one calling for a decrease.

Forty-seven persons voted in favor of increased spending on both welfare programs, and for urban problems and mass transportation while three voted against welfare spending and five voted against more spending for urban problems and mass transportation.

Mugalian said the spending increases and cuts favored by the survey participants would have an overall effect of cutting government spending, since the areas where decreases were urged such as defense spending, foreign aid and the space program, make up more than half of the federal budget.

"I TAKE SPECIAL encouragement from the expression by suburbanites to spend more money for urban problems and mass transportation," Mugalian said. "This is a small indication that our group shares one attitude that is vital to avoid eco-catastrophe."

"Our environmental problems, including survival of the species, require that great sacrifices be made for the benefit of the more general good. We may have to choose economic slowdown, drastic population curbs, huge increases in taxation and technological steps in order to reverse the trends toward environmental disaster," Mugalian said.

Lawn Mowers Can Be Deadly

by DAVE PALERMO

An 8-year-old girl, playing in the front yard of her Northwest suburban home one summer afternoon, decided it would be fun to ride dad's power lawn mower, which was left idling while dad was in the house.

The girl innocently climbed onto the tractor, not knowing that her little brother was sitting behind it playing in the grass.

The machine suddenly jerked backwards and rolled over the infant, severing his foot.

There are many accidents attributed to power lawn mowers, many of them serious and sometimes fatal.

A power mower can be as dangerous as it is convenient.

All too often somebody rolls the mower over a foot or sticks his hand underneath the machine. The causes are always carelessness on the part of the person using the mower and the result, invariably is a trip to the hospital emergency room.

JACK RYAN, PUBLIC relations director for Northwest Community Hospital in Arlington Heights, remembers one July day two years ago when the emergency room handled seven persons in one day.

The actual amount of injuries attributed to power lawn mowers is difficult to tabulate, for as Ryan says, "The emergency room is more concerned with treating the injury than the cause of the injury."

The records at Northwest Hospital may read, along the column reading cut hand or foot, "lawn mower." But there are many times when it is not scribbled in.

A female doctor who works solely in the emergency room said during a summer weekend, "We can count on four or five."

Most of the time, although the injury is serious, the victim is taken to the hospital in the family car and not an ambulance.

Mount Prospect Fire Chief Edwin Haberkamp said that only on two occasions last year, was the ambulance called to pick up a person injured by a lawn mower. There have been none so far this spring in Mount Prospect.

Last weekend Northwest Hospital's emergency room handled three cases, all middle-aged men.

"People would tend to think that most of the time children are injured by lawn mowers," said Ryan. "But often it's the adult or older person."

"Lawn mower injuries are not as prevalent as dog bites, but we get our share."

"People are usually careful of something that presents an obvious danger, like a lawn mower. The injury is always because of carelessness on the part of the user and the injury is usually serious enough that the person winds up here."

Besides the possibility of a person cutting a hand or a foot, cases where debris is hurled outward like a bullet by the rotary blades is also common.

THE U.S. DEPARTMENT of Health, Education and Welfare reported about 140,000 persons were injured in the summer of 1968 and because of the increase of mowers as a labor-saving device, the amount is rising annually.

The Consumers Union claims mowers have too much blade exposure and the National Commission on Public Safety indicates that the sale of lawn mowers should be federally regulated.

The Outdoor Power Equipment Institute (OPEI) has standards that blade exposure be only at the front and the discharge chute shielded. Only about 25 per cent of the mowers on the market meet these standards, according to the OPEI.

Most of the blame for power mower injuries is attributed to the rotary-type mower, which accounts for approximately 90 per cent of the industry's sales.

The rotary mower blade whizzes inches above the grass at about 200 mph and can hurl objects outward at high speeds.

A reel-type mower isn't as popular as the rotary mower but experts claim it is safer because it makes fewer passes in a short period of time and a hand indiscreetly placed on the blade can be removed with less damage.

But a reel mower is unfortunately more expensive than a rotary and ineffective in cutting high grass.

Another possible solution to the hazards of lawn-mowing is a rubber blade now on the market called the Deleo Flexible Mower Blade.

The blade, which costs about $9, has reportedly been tested at 3,600 rotations per minute and developers claim it will not cut a sturdy object. The blade may break a toe or finger, but it isn't supposed to cut it off.

SOME POWER mower dealers have accepted the new rubber blade, which can be attached to fit any mower, and offer it to their customers. One place where it can be purchased is Kerstings Mower Shop, 621 N. Main in Mount Prospect.

On the other hand, there was a different opinion of the new blade.

"We don't stock it because we don't think it's worth two cents," said a young man behind the counter at Charles Gray Sales and Service, 110 E. Rand Rd., Mount Prospect.

"For one thing, anything that rotates that fast has got to cut," he went on. "It costs twice as much as a normal blade and it can't be resharpened like other blades."

About the best advice is to be careful and keep the kids away from the power mower.

And then there's always the old but safe push mower.

Housing Group Collects $500

More than $500 has been collected by the Northwest Suburban Housing Coalition for their emergency housing fund. However, coalition members hope to raise a much greater amount to help disadvantaged people in the area solve their immediate housing problems.

"We are disappointed that we haven't had a bigger response," said Rudy Hazucha, member of the coalition's board of directors.

Hazucha noted that one local church has contributed $140 to the emergency loan fund and that a women's club has donated $100 to it.

"But, by and large, the idea hasn't taken hold," he added. "There have been only a small number of individual contributions, but the requests for help are coming in at an alarming rate."

HAZUCHA SAID THE group has appealed for funds to organizations directly connected with social welfare, and will now begin to contact various area service groups, such as Rotary and women's clubs.

At a recent coalition meeting, members voted to contribute $125 worth of loans to assist two Des Plaines families who were routed from their homes during a fire several months ago.

The loans will be used to pay for security deposits on a house and an apartment.

All requests for loans are screened by the staff of the Illinois Migrant Council in Palatine and the Northwest Opportunity Center in Rolling Meadows.

The Northwest Suburban Housing Coalition was formed last winter from six existing organizations which seek better housing for the area's disadvantaged.

MEMBER GROUPS include Norwesco, New Communities, Inc., The Northwest Opportunity Center, the Illinois Migrant Council, the Schaumburg-Hanover Local Opportunity Council and the Palatine Community Effort Organization.

Eight other organizations hold associate memberships in the coalition.

Meetings are held the first and third Mondays of the month at the Northwest Opportunity Center.

All donations or questions may be sent to the Northwest Suburban Housing Coalition, P.O. Box 366, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.

NOTICE TO ALL VETERANS

WHO HAVE HONORABLY SERVED THEIR COUNTRY IN TIME OF WAR OR PEACE

In view of the fact that no National Cemetery exists in the Chicago area to provide burial space for veterans, Memory Gardens Cemetery of Arlington Heights, Illinois has established a Veterans Program to be conducted by its Veterans Department and has made available a limited number of grave spaces to qualified veterans at no charge (except - a $15.00 fee for endowment care as required by Illinois State law).

Only honorably discharged Veterans of the United States Armed Forces who do not own or have been assigned burial property may apply. (Special Protective Features are available for spouse as well as for all minor children) Applications are processed in the order received. Verification of information is necessary to issue Certificate for grave space eligibility.

Since the number of grave spaces assigned to the Veterans department is limited, applications will be accepted only during the period required to complete the allocation.

We will also furnish you with valuable information on related cash benefits due you from the United States Government.

Regner Dance Set Saturday

Sen. Ralph T. Smith and U.S. Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-Ill., will join several hundred Northwest suburban Republicans tomorrow at a testimonial dance honoring State Rep. David J. Regner, R-Mount Prospect.

Regner is completing his second term in the Illinois House of Representatives and is seeking a third term in November.

The testimonial, designed to help defray campaign costs, is scheduled for 8:30 p.m. at the Flick Reedy Auditorium in Bensenville.

Besides Smith and Crane, many of the state and county Republican candidates are expected to attend.

Dancing, refreshments and door prizes are planned with one of the features being 10-cent beer.

Chairman of the event is Richard Hall of Des Plaines, former president of the Elk Grove Township Republican Organization.

Magic Show Set Sunday Evening

Members of the First Baptist Church of Palatine will see a magical performance at 6 p.m. Sunday in the Church at 1023 E. Palatine Rd.

Bob Teela will present a unique selection of tricks illustrating truths from the Bible along with rabbit and flower production and multi-colored silk tricks.

Teela is a history teacher at Naperville Central High School and a member of the Society of American Magicians and the Fellowship of Christian Magicians. He is also a graduate of the Moody Bible Institute.

To Attend Confab

Rev. Charles Chaney of the First Baptist Church of Palatine has been chosen to attend a National Consultation on the Mission of the Suburban Church next October.

Rev. Chaney is one of 250 leaders of 11,000,000 Southern Baptists invited to attend the consultation designed to determine a more effective mission strategy for the suburban church.

The consultation is sponsored by the Dept. of Metropolitan Missions of the Home Mission Board and will be held in Kentucky.

Developing a healthy personality and keen intelligence is kid stuff.

Here are science's remarkable new discoveries about child development — in a book for every concerned parent.

By the age of four, your child has developed half of his general intelligence. By six, 33% of his academic skills will be acquired. All the remarkable new research of the "growth sciences" points to one important fact: children learn, intellectually and emotionally, far earlier than was ever suspected. And what they learn is nearly impossible to change in later years. Now Muriel Beadle has translated this important new research into a book of pertinent advice for parents.

Speak Out Inoculation Plan Termed Worthwhile

by CYNTHIA TIVERS

Parents of children who go to school in Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 were almost unanimous in their approval of the Rubella vaccinations administered Wednesday.

Mrs. Francis Fenton of 1110 E. Kitson Drive in Palatine had two children inoculated at the Winston Park School. "I think the program is good," she commented. "if it's going to help them from contracting the disease. It will avoid complications later in their lives."

"If it helps like the Polio vaccine has helped," she continued, "and if it helps like the regular measles vaccine has helped — it's wonderful."

Mrs. Richard Davis of 851 Plate Dr. in Palatine helped out with Wednesday's program. "My seven and eight year olds received the shots. I think it was a very good idea and it's necessary to help prevent birth defects," she noted. "It will also avoid problems later when they become pregnant," she added.

Mrs. Stephen Eberhard of 2106 Martin Lane in Rolling Meadows said she is going to take her 3-year-old to be vaccinated on Saturday at the Sandburg School.

"I think it's a wise thing to do. None of my other children have received the vaccine but they're older and were not eligible for the Dist. 15 program," Mrs. Eberhard also mentioned that she will check with her own doctor before she has her son vaccinated.

Mrs. R. W. Glaser of 3500 Boblink Lane in Rolling Meadows said she would certainly have let her fourth grade daughter get vaccinated, but she was too old to be eligible for the program. "I don't know," Mrs. Glaser commented, "this disease has been minor for so many years. But they found out about all the problems it can cause, so it's important to be vaccinated against it."

Mrs. Yenson Chin, who lives at 258 S. Brookdale Lane in Palatine has four children. But they were too old to get Rubella shots Wednesday. "I think the vaccinations are great to prevent an outbreak of the German measles. If my children were the right age for the program I definitely would have let them get shots," Mrs. Chin remarked.

Mrs. Theodore Costa of 2102 Hawk Lane in Rolling Meadows had one of her children receive the vaccination at the Carl Sandburg School. "I think it's necessary for them to get the shots," Mrs. Costa said. "It's a good idea."

Two of Mrs. Marian Balabuszko's children were inoculated. Mrs. Balabuszko, of 2313 Eastman in Rolling Meadows, said, "It's better than having all the kids out of school at once and having the doctors overworked in case of such an epidemic."

"The program is good," she added, "because some people cannot afford to have their kids get these shots."

German Measles Shots Tomorrow

Immunization centers for the mass inoculation of preschool children at least 1-year-old and school children through third grade who did not receive the rubella vaccination for German measles in school this week will be open tomorrow from noon to 3 p.m.

Parents must fill out a consent form available at the 10 centers throughout the Northwest suburbs and must accompany their children to the center.

One center, Miner Junior High School in Arlington Heights, will be open from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. for parents who cannot take their children in the afternoon.

Consent form, schools in Section 1.

Other centers which will be open tomorrow are Barrington Middle School in Barrington; Carl Sandburg School, Rolling Meadows; Jack London Junior High School, Wheeling; Ann Sullivan School, Prospect Heights; River Trails Junior High School, Prospect Heights; Winston Churchill School, Schaumburg; Campanelli School, Schaumburg; Gregory School, Mount Prospect; and Elk Grove High School.

Creek Project Starts

Dredging operations for the widening and deepening of Salt Creek through Rolling Meadows will be in full operation within two weeks, according to Rolling Meadows Supt. of Public Works James McFeggan.

Reconstruction of the Campbell Street bridge has already begun, with a temporary bridge being built now to divert traffic while a larger bridge is built this summer.

"I DON'T KNOW THE exact completion date," McFeggan said, "but I imagine it will be done by the end of summer."

The flood relief project is being done by the Illinois Division of Waterways with funds appropriated by the legislature a year ago.

Realignment of the creek on High School Dist. 214 property south of Central Road is the first phase of the program. To give the high school a larger continuous land area, the creek will be moved about 50 feet west of its present course to flow beside Apollo Lane, formerly Barker Avenue.

No bridges except the Campbell Street bridge and a footbridge over the creek in Kimball Hill park, will be altered, though a creek deepening and paving will go on underneath the Kirchoff and Central Road bridges.

The Campbell Street bridge must be reconstructed because the twin tubes under it do not let enough water flow through when the creek is full.

"People won't see much of a noticeable difference in size on the Campbell Street bridge," McFeggan said. "The state is also going to tear out the foot bridge, which is 31-feet long now, and put in one about 55-feet long."

THE SALT CREEK project this summer will go to Euclid Avenue. During construction, 30,000 yards of channel excavation will go on, 330 square yards of stone side protectors will be put along the bank, 760 square yards of channel paving will be laid and 225 lineal feet of cast iron water mains will be installed.

Once the project is finished, the City of Rolling Meadows has agreed to maintain the creek basin and right-of-ways for the state. Attempts by Sen. John A. Graham, R-Barrington, to get appropriations for flood relief along the creek from Des Plaines to its source have been going on for eleven years. Originally, the Rolling Meadows project was part of a $1.5 million project through Rolling Meadows and Palatine.

In 1967, the legislature appropriated $500,000 for the Rolling Meadows section of the improvement. Because of a delay in obtaining easements along the creek, appropriations had to be allocated again last year, the second time for only $350,000.

Part of the delay was due to moving the creek to the edge of the Dist. 214 high school site.

Another bill may be introduced in the next general assembly for improvement of Salt Creek under the North Western Railroad tracks and Northwest Highway in Palatine.

UNDERGROUND goes Salt Creek for the summer. The Illinois Division of Waterways will be remodeling the Campbell Street bridge as part of a $350,000 flood relief project. While the bridge is being constructed, a temporary bridge will run beside it.

Mosquitoes Get Misty Future

by MARTHA KOPER

Under fire from almost every suburb in the area, Wilbur Mitchell, director of the Northwest Mosquito Abatement District (NMAD) held fast to the district's current methods of controlling the stinging insects.

He was asked to speak to members of the Northwest Municipal Conference Wednesday night because of several questions about the district's operations from local municipalities.

Don Thompson, president of the conference, asked the difference between fogging and misting mosquitoes.

In March, NMAD announced it would discontinue fogging and use only misting to kill the mosquito in accordance with an anti-pollution program.

"The same chemical will be used, but we're eliminating the oil," Mitchell explained.

THE BASIC product for both is malathion. The mist is 97 per cent water and 3 per cent malathion. The fog is 97 per cent oil and 3 per cent malathion," he added.

Mitchell explained misting can also be done during the days while fogging only was effective after sundown.

Mrs. Clayton Brown, chairman of PEP (Pollution and Environmental Problems) asked if misting would be dangerous to children playing in residential areas during the daytime.

"Oh, we won't go into residential areas with lots of children. We'll stay on the outskirts until evening," Mitchell explained.

"Furthermore, we won't mist, if it's not needed," he added.

"We'll be continuing our efforts to kill the larva, so the mosquitoes won't even become adults," Mitchell said.

However, he admitted, oil is used to vacate ponds and standing water.

"Is anything being done toward permanent control?" Mrs. Brown wanted to know.

"WE'RE STILL working on drainage," Mitchell explained. "But we don't like to do drainage without the consent of the property owner."

Standing-water is a natural breeding place for mosquitoes and a permanent control method is to drain areas of stagnant pools of water.

It was asked if broken field tiles are repaired and Mitchell explained some work has been done in unincorporated areas and farmland.

Thompson, village president of Buffalo Grove said, "Yes, but while you're making a farmer happy in an unincorporated area, you're making the taxpayers, which we represent, unhappy because they can't see anything being done."

HE TOLD Mitchell that Buffalo Grove is seriously considering withdrawing from the district.

A village trustee from Palatine, Clayton Brown, pointed out that malathion is a first cousin to nerve gas and is extremely poisonous in large quantities.

"If people receive only a small dose, it will give them the symptoms of the flu," he said.

Mitchell agreed, but said, "So is nutmeg or quinine or penicillin in large quantities."

A trustee from Barrington Hills said "That's a poor analogy. Isn't there anything you can use that isn't poisonous to humans, but will kill mosquitoes?" Mitchell shook his head.

"WHY IS THERE a mosquito district? Maybe we should just forget it altogether," a man said.

"When I came here in 1957, I was informed that petitions had been circulated demanding the creation of a mosquito abatement district. The people saw a need for it," Mitchell explained.

"But things have changed since then," someone answered.

AT 1 1/2, HORSEING around can be a lot of fun, Mark Samoedny seems to be learning. Mark saddled up at the Rolling Meadows' 15th Anniversary Carnival sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce in the Topp's parking lot on Kirchoff Road near Meadow Drive.

Architect: It Won't Conflict With Homes

(This is the fourth in a continuing series concerning low and moderate income housing in the suburbs. The Herald presents the series with the understanding that no final decision has been reached on the St. Viator land.)

by ROGER CAPETTINI

All the discussions, sometimes intelligent, often heated, concerning low and moderate-income housing in the Northwest suburban area eventually come back to the key issue — public acceptance.

It's generally agreed that all persons are entitled to a decent place to live and to bring up children, but rationality disappears when the inevitable question arises — where?

Robert A. Kole, president of Kole Realtors with offices in Rolling Meadows, Wheeling, Des Plaines and Chicago, thinks he has the answer to contrary public opinion.

"Presentation of the plan to the public is the key to gaining a favorable attitude," he said. And he seems to know what he's talking about. Kole is presently involved in developing a multi-family apartment complex in Fox Lake, and claims the people there are "very receptive" to the new community.

"BUT YOU HAVE to give the public a chance for acceptance. You have to approach them with plans, drawings and sketches, to show them you're not going to construct a cardboard jungle across the street."

He said he thinks the people realize the need for low-cost housing in their community, they realize some of the existing housing in their community is substandard, and with a proper presentation they will generally accept the initiation of low-income housing.

The Fox Lake development might serve as a good example of the future complexion of low-income housing for some time to come. Thirteen buildings, housing 16 units each, will eventually sit on the 15-acre site, complete with a 1½-acre natural pond. It will be an attractive, well-landscaped complex with rents ranging from $110 per month for one-bedroom to $135 per month for three bedrooms to qualified tenants.

KOLE SEES the public acceptance problem stemming from a "snob" attitude. "They forget what it is to skimp," he said. "They forget what it's like not to have enough money to go to the movies — what it's like to budget and budget closely. What are necessities for the average suburban homeowner are luxuries to low-income families."

"But these people are not poor," he added quickly. "They're not dissidents — rather they are the backbone of America, trying to save some money for the future and provide a decent home and decent education for their children. They're the average buyers, the transferred American."

He leaned back in his chair and stared at the ceiling and began to philosophize. "The population needs to be balanced. Everyone should be able to own a decent home — not 'adequate' — decent. This is what America is all about. And the housing foundation is the key. Without this the whole structure could someday collapse."

HE SAID people who oppose low-income housing in the suburbs should ask themselves if they are willing to do without the services of the people who would be expected to live in those homes. "Are you willing to do without the services of the policeman, the postman, the bank clerk, the milkman, and the thousands of clerks in the various stores and shops?" he asked.

"Well those are the people you would be denying a decent place to live. It is the obligation of the community to provide land for homes for these people if the need exists."

In regard to the St. Viator proposal he added, "I personally think there is a great need for low-income housing in Arlington Heights. If the Viator site can be obtained somehow for the right price, it would make one of the most ideal spots in the Northwest suburbs for this type housing, because of its central location."

KOLE SEES the future of low-income housing as inevitable, and while many other realtors are experiencing real "dog-days" in the sales end, he said he is currently realizing one of his best years in the business — and he attributes that to his interest in catering to the low-income family.

Through his various offices, Kole has sold 98 homes so far this year, and more than 50 per cent of those have sold for less than $25,000. These are the figures he claims are undeniable evidence of the need for low-income housing in the Northwest suburbs.

The highest hurdle developers have to overcome in the low-income housing race is the price of land in the suburbs, according to Kole. He said the cost of the land should represent 20 to 25 per cent of the cost of the home to be built.

For example then, a $9,000 lot would require a home of $36,000 for a total cost of $45,000 before money lenders would approve the loan. With land costs at that level, coupled with such a rule of thumb, low cost housing is impossible.

Many feel the answer to this problem is the development of low-cost housing in unincorporated areas where land costs are substantially lower. Kole doesn't see it this way.

The very fact that certain families are on a low income precludes the feasibility of locating them in unincorporated areas. "They have to be near the place of employment, near stores and they have to have normal municipal services available to them," he said. "Ideally, the people with the least money should live closer to the services, and the more affluent should be located further away. This doesn't seem to hold true in this area, and that is one of the problems," he said.

SITTING IN Kole's unpretentious Des Plaines office, the question arises concerning his motive. Many feel the profit margin in low-income housing is small, and looking around his office only serves to further this idea. It is small. The walls are graced only with sales awards, and photos of his wife and three children sit on the desk tops. Assorted boating paraphernalia clutter the sofa across from his desk.

"Don't get me wrong," he said, "I'm no 'goody-goody.' I'm in this end of the business because I saw a void and I filled it."

THE COMPLEXION of low-cost housing in the future? The artist's rendering depicts a low-cost housing project currently under construction in Fox

Lake by Kole Realtors. Thirteen buildings with 16 units each are planned for the 15-acre tract. Construction was financed under Section 236 of the Federal Housing Authority.

Crane:McCormack Chair to Albert

Democratic Rep. Carl Albert of Oklahoma seems the best bet to succeed Speaker of the House John McCormack, U.S. Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-18th, told the Herald yesterday.

McCormack Wednesday announced that he plans to retire from Congress after his current term which ends in January. He has served as Speaker of the House, the position that is second in line in Presidential succession, since 1962.

THE NEXT SPEAKER is likely to be a Democrat since the Democrats control the House and the majority party controls the election for Speaker.

Crane, however, said he thinks Republican chances to gain control of the House of Representatives "are very good."

He said he did not have a favorite candidate among the Republicans in the event that the GOP does gain control, although he did say Rep. Leslie Arends, a Republican from downstate Melvin, Ill., should be considered for one of the GOP leadership positions.

Crane himself has been mentioned as a potential Speaker of the House.

Rep. Edward Derwinski, R-4th, in the Southwest suburbs of Chicago, predicted last December that Crane would be one of the next Republican Speakers of the House, following Republican Rep. Gerald

Ford of Michigan, currently House minority leader.

About 200 of Crane's constituents heard the prediction, which was made at a luncheon in Washington, D.C., the day Crane formally opened his Congressional office.

LAST OCTOBER, during Crane's campaign against Democrat Edward Warman, a Herald reporter asked him what his long-range plans were and he said he would like to become Speaker of the House. That announcement was made at a Crane rally in Palatine Township.

Crane, a former history professor at two Midwestern universities, was elected to his first term in the House of Representatives in a special election last November called to fill the vacancy created by the resignation of former Rep. Donald Rumsfeld.

CRANE WILL SEEK a full two-year term this November, running against Warman again.

The Republicans have held the Congressional seat since 1919 when the district included most of the Northeastern corner of Illinois and parts of Chicago.

It currently consists of the townships of Wheeling, Elk Grove, Palatine, Schaumburg, New Trier, Evanston, Niles and Northfield.

Barrington and Hanover townships and Chicago's 50th Ward were part of the district until the mid-1960s.

DISABLED VETERANS will benefit from the sale of their homemade poppies throughout the country yesterday and today. Mrs. Kay Lill of the American Legion Auxiliary was giving away the poppies and seeking donations for the veterans at Jewel Food Store on Plum Grove Road where Christie Price went shopping with her mother.

'Fly-Up' Event Set

A Blue Bird "Fly-Up" ceremony for third grade girls graduating into the Palatine Campfire Girls will be held at 7:30 p.m., May 22, in Marion Jordan School.

'We're Too Conservative'

More than half of the Palatine Township Democrats who took part in a survey conducted by the local Democratic Organization think the national Democratic Party is too conservative and almost 80 per cent of them feel the Cook County Democratic Organization is too conservative.

The survey was taken of about 80 Democrats who attended the township organization's meeting earlier this month.

Results have been released in spurts by Democratic Committeeman Richard A. Mugalian.

Fewer than 50 of the persons attending the meeting answered the two questions concerning the national and county party.

Twenty-eight of 47 persons said the national Democratic Party is too conservative, while only 6 said it was too liberal, and 13 said it was just right.

ONLY ONE PERSON said the Cook County Democratic Party is too liberal, while 34 said it was too conservative, and 10 said it was just right.

The Democratic Party is generally thought of as being more liberal than the Republican Party, particularly in Palatine Township, possibly the most conservative in Cook County.

Anti-War Petitions Circulating Here

A Palatine anti-war organization plans to solicit signatures tomorrow on petitions in support of pending legislation which would curtail expenditures for the war in Southeast Asia.

The Palatine Area Citizens for Enlightened Majorities will be stationed at three area shopping centers asking for support of the amendment to the military procurement bill offered by Sen. Mark Hatfield, R-Oregon, and Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D.

The amendment would set a December, 1970, cutoff date for funds to be spent for Vietnam action and would require all American troops to be withdrawn by June 30, 1971. It also would set the same restrictions on funds for Laos and Cambodia.

Tomorrow's petition drive is part of a nation-wide effort to support the Hatfield-McGovern amendment.

Another question, asking for priorities for government spending, showed that the Palatine Democrats clearly oppose increased defense and foreign aid spending while favoring increased spending for anti-poverty programs, welfare, urban problems, mass transportation and aid to education.

On the defense spending issue, 54 persons said spending should be decreased while only four said it should be increased.

The nation's space program also fared

'Oiga Amigo' Airing Set

A half-hour show on WLS television tomorrow at 12:30 p.m. will review last winter's housing controversy involving several Mexican-American families in the Elk Grove Village area.

The program, Oiga Amigo (Listen Friend) is a weekly telecast concentrating on the Spanish-speaking people in the Chicago metropolitan area.

The show will include interviews with Rev. David Crail of the Elk Grove Wesleyan Church; Jack Pahl, Elk Grove Village mayor; Louis Archbold, of Neighbors at Work (NAW); Clyde Brooks, manpower director of the Cook County Office of Economic Opportunity; Santana Gonzalez, who has been living in a church for several months because he is unable to find a place to park a mobile home; Rev. David Sanchez, of St. Dominic's Catholic Church, Chicago; and Allen Hulett, Elk Grove Village fire chief.

"Every suburb has the second best school system in the state," said Mrs. Mary Leidinger, of 588 Wellington Ave. "I don't know who is first, but there sure are a lot of seconds."

Fun Fair Is Saturday

Plum Grove School's annual Fun Fair will be held at the school Saturday from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.

The Fair, sponsored by the Plum Grove PTA, will include games and activities for children of all ages.

The school is located at 26 W. Old Plum Grove in Palatine.

poorly in the questionnaire, with 41 persons favoring decreased spending and nine favoring increases.

ONLY THREE persons voted in favor of anti-poverty cutbacks while 55 said spending should be increased in that area.

A similar response was voiced on aid to schools, with 54 persons favoring increased spending and only one calling for a decrease.

Forty-seven persons voted in favor of increased spending on both welfare programs, and for urban problems and mass transportation while three voted against welfare spending and five voted against more spending for urban problems and mass transportation.

Mugalian said the spending increases and cuts favored by the survey participants would have an overall effect of cutting government spending, since the areas where decreases were urged such as defense spending, foreign aid and the space program, make up more than half of the federal budget.

"I TAKE SPECIAL encouragement from the expression by suburbanites to spend more money for urban problems and mass transportation," Mugalian said. "This is a small indication that our group shares one attitude that is vital to avoid eco-catastrophe."

"Our environmental problems, including survival of the species, require that great sacrifices be made for the benefit of the more general good. We may have to choose economic slowdown, drastic population curbs, high increases in taxation and technological steps in order to reverse the trends toward environmental disaster," Mugalian said.
